

Man sentenced to life in prison for 2015 Bartow murder

Santana

By JAMES SWIFT
james.swift@daily-tribune.com

Tiburcio Losano Santana, 42, will spend the rest of his life behind bars after jurors convicted him on 10 out of 12 charges Thursday, including malice murder, three counts of felony murder and feticide.

Superior Court Judge David K. Smith sentenced Santana to life in prison without the possibility of parole for the 2015 murder of Yolanda Cruz Marichon. Marichon, 36, was eight weeks pregnant at the time of her slaying.

Jurors also found Santana guilty on two counts of aggravated assault, one count of theft by taking and one count of battery. They found him not guilty, however, of one count of burglary in the first degree and one count of felony murder predicated on the commission of burglary in the first degree.

"It was a very emotional trial and we're very pleased with the jury's hard work and the outcome in this case, and we certainly hope justice was served for Mrs. Marichon — her family has been through a lot over the past few years with this," said Cherokee Judicial Circuit District Attorney Rosemary Greene. "We hope this brings closure."

She said Santana has been detained since June 2015. It's the second time the case has been tried.

"Mr. Santana was convicted of this case in November of 2016," Greene said. "There was an error during the charge of the court and a new trial was granted."

About a dozen witnesses took the stand during the trial, which began Monday morning. Dr. Sandra Parrish Thomas, a medical examiner for the Georgia Bureau of Investigation (GBI), said Marichon's cause of death was due to "multiple sharp force injuries."

One stab wound to the victim's neck, she said, was three and a half inches deep and hit Marichon's vertebrae.

Local man sets cars, porches on fire in domestic disputes

STAFF REPORT

The Bartow County Sheriff's Office is looking for a Cartersville man who allegedly set two cars and two porches on fire during two separate domestic incidents Monday morning.

As of Thursday night, Randy Weaver, of Cartersville, was still on the loose.

In one incident, Weaver and his wife got into an argument about a truck. Weaver allegedly ran the truck through a fence in the yard and into the porch at around 9 a.m. on Cedar Creek Road.

Weaver's wife told police that he was trying to run her over.

According to the police report, Weaver's wife smelled burning plastic five to 10 minutes later. She looked outside to find her porch on fire.

After the incident, Weaver moved on to his sister's home on Dogwood Lane. There, he allegedly struck his sister's roommate in the face during an argument over whether his sister's boyfriend was having an affair with the roommate.

According to the report, Weaver

TO THE COURTHOUSE, FROM THE JAILHOUSE

NEIL MCGAHEE/DTN
Cartersville attorney and lobbyist Boyd Pettit presented the county with a replica of the old courthouse, which was made by inmates in the state prison system. The replica, along with those of 20 other courthouses, is made entirely of cardboard. A fellow lobbyist saw it on display in the James "Sloppy" Floyd Building adjacent to the state capitol, purchased it and presented it to Pettit who donated it to the county. County Commissioner Steve Taylor said the replica will soon be displayed in the lobby of the Frank Moore Administration and Judicial Center.

Adairsville expands its pastime

The Adairsville City Council's Tuesday work session prepared 14 agenda items to be voted on at its regular meeting Thursday.

Historic Preservation Committee Chair Susan Gilmore reminded the council that Adairsville has always taken pride in its place in Georgia history, especially its role in the "Great Locomotive Chase," during the Civil War.

Car overturns on Grassdale Road, but no one injured

STAFF REPORT

A wreck on Grassdale Road Thursday evening looked severe, but despite an overturned car and occupants being entrapped in the vehicle, no one suffered major injuries.

Bartow County EMS arrived on scene in the area of Grassdale Road and Ledford Lane in Cartersville at around 6 p.m.

Dispatch advised there were three people, two juveniles, entrapped in the car, one with a nose-bleed. However, despite the damage to the car, all three people walked away and refused transport to a hospital.

Augmented reality sandbox helps CCES students learn geography, science

donna.harris@daily-tribune.com

Volunteers from Georgia Highlands College turned a $500 grant into a valuable learning tool for students at Clear Creek Elementary School.

GATEWAY teacher Robin Morrow received the grant from the Bartow Education Foundation to build a mobile augmented reality sandbox to help students learn about science and geography.

Augmented reality is any technology that superimposes some type of computer-generated image on a person's or group's view of the real world.

The sandbox allows teachers to create topography models by shaping real sand, which is augmented in real time by an elevation color map, topographic contour lines and simulated water.

"Augmented and virtual reality are topics our students are eager to explore, and I felt the augmented reality sandbox would be a valuable asset in teaching science and geography standards," Morrow said. "As we become more comfortable with the technology, we would like to utilize it even more in classroom lessons on topographical maps, erosion, landforms, watershed, water cycle and more. There are science and social studies lessons and standards in every grade that can be enhanced by the augmented reality sandbox."

Morrow said she first saw this new instrument of technology when she visited the St. Louis Science Center on vacation several years ago.

"It was mesmerizing," she said. "I watched as young children and grown adults were all exploring this hands-on exhibit. I wished we had something

Pettit Environmental Preserve highlights Georgia's climate story Saturday

By MARIE NESMITH

marie.nesmith@daily-tribune.com

Georgia's past and present will collide Saturday during Pettit Environmental Preserve's Georgia's Climate Story Program and Hike. Ongoing from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m., the upcoming Explore Nature Saturday offering will feature Dr. Bill Witherspoon.

"I came across Dr. Witherspoon's program that was being offered at a state park and it looked fascinating," Preserve Executive Director Marina Robertson said. "Then, I found out that the preserve educator, Mary Ann Pawlowski, had met Dr. Witherspoon when he taught the geology unit of the UGA [University of Georgia] Master Naturalist program. It seemed a wonderful opportunity to offer a look at climate history in Georgia, especially since we have never had programming on the topic. Dr. Witherspoon's background as an educator of both students and teachers at Fernbank Science Center was also a big selling point as he is accustomed to making climate and geology topics accessible to people of all ages."

"It's easy to look outside and think 'the land has always looked like it does today,' but both geology and climate science tell us this is not so. Everybody likes to talk — and complain — about the weather, but climate is different. Weather is what is happening today, but climate is about patterns that cover hundreds or thousands of years — or more — and tells a different story."

A resident of DeKalb County,

Witherspoon is a retired geologist and the coauthor of "Roadside Geology of Georgia." As Robertson noted, he is known throughout the state for his expertise on this topic, leading more than 70 presentations, workshops and walks regarding Georgia's geology since his book was published

Cely M.A. Burson

Cely "Celyta" M.A. Burson, 90, of Cartersville, died March 4, 2018. She was born November 14, 1927 in Petrópolis, Brazil.

Miss Celyta began her career at age 16 as a teacher for one of Brazil's first Seventh Day Adventist elementary schools. In a proverbial one room schoolhouse, she taught all disciplines for grades 1-8. She had 17 students. The stories Miss Celyta would tell about that time were funny — beach picnics with students disrupted by the mischievous antics of the Pastor's son; a class streetcar journey during which a very young pupil told a startled fellow passenger that Miss Celyta was their mother... In her 20's, she emigrated to the U.S. and held a key position at the Brazilian Army Commission in WDC until retirement.

Two events stand out from her time in Washington. She graduated from the George Washington University with a degree in psychology making her the first in her family to receive a college education. And she met GA native, Roger T. Burson. They married in 1984 and moved to Cartersville a few years later.

That move to "the country" was not an easy transition for her. Miss Celyta would tell of carrying $50 in her pocket for a year — "just in case" — because that was the cost of a taxi from her new home to the airport for a plane back to "the city."

Before too long, she was charmed by her friendly neighbors and embraced by her new SDA church family. And she charmed and embraced them right back.

Soon Miss Celyta wouldn't hear of moving "back East," closer to family even after the tragic death of her beloved Roger.

A woman of deep faith, Miss Celyta was an active member of the SDA church and participated in bible study, music programs (she had a lovely alto voice), and gave piano lessons to young church members.

Always the gracious hostess, Miss Celyta lived to entertain in her home and was renowned for her delicious flan and tasty pecan, cottage cheese roast.

Miss Celyta was gifted in many ways. She enjoyed painting landscapes from her native Brazil and flowers and fall foliage from her backyard.

She was a talented knitter producing exquisite tiny booties for newborns and in later years became a prolific knitter of scarves for service men and women overseas, friends, family, and acquaintances.

In 2013 Miss Celyta became a U.S. citizen and proudly voted for the first time in the 2016 elections.

She traveled widely and often in the U.S., to Brazil, and to Europe and took lots and lots and lots of pictures.

Those who knew her will agree that Miss Celyta was kind, generous, and always ready to lend a helping hand or sympathetic ear. Beloved aunt and cherished friend, Miss Celyta will be sadly missed and lovingly remembered by all whose lives she touched. She is survived by her nieces Angela Jackson of Boston, Celyta Jackson of NYC, Pat Jackson of San Francisco, 3 grand nieces, one grand nephew, and two cats.

A memorial service will be held on Saturday, March 10 at 2:30pm at the Cartersville Seventh Day Adventist church.

Instead of flowers, the family suggests that a donation be made to the Cartersville Georgia Seventh Day Adventist Church Dorothy Hughes Memorial Scholarship Fund.

Granddaughter is blind to fiance's abusive potential

DEAR ABBY: My granddaughter is getting married in seven months and I'm worried for her. I see many red flags she's ignoring. Because I'm old, I don't think she will believe me.

You have printed a list of warning signs of an abusive mate. Can you print it again so I can give it to her? — PERCEPTIVE IN PENNSYLVANIA

DEAR PERCEPTIVE: Gladly, because it could be a lifesaver.

(1) PUSHES FOR QUICK INVOLVEMENT: Comes on strong, claiming, "I've never felt loved like this by anyone." An abuser pressures the new partner for an exclusive commitment almost immediately.

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

(2) JEALOUSY: Excessively possessive; calls constantly or visits unexpectedly; prevents you from going to work because "you might meet someone"; checks the mileage on your car.

(3) CONTROLLING: If you are late, interrogates you intensively about whom you talked to and where you were; keeps all the money; insists you ask permission to go anywhere or do anything.

(4) UNREALISTIC EXPECTATIONS: Expects you to be the perfect mate and meet his or her every need.

(5) ISOLATION: Tries to isolate you from family and friends; accuses people who are your supporters of "causing trouble." The abuser may deprive you of a phone or car, or try to prevent you from holding a job.

(6) BLAMES OTHERS FOR PROBLEMS OR MISTAKES: It's always someone else's fault if something goes wrong.

(7) MAKES OTHERS RESPONSIBLE FOR HIS OR HER

FEELINGS: The abuser says, "You make me angry" instead of "I am angry," or says, "You're hurting me by not doing what I tell you."

(8) HYPERSENSITIVITY: Is easily insulted, claiming hurt feelings when he or she is really mad. Rants about the injustice of things that are just a part of life.

(9) CRUELTY TO ANIMALS OR CHILDREN: Kills or punishes animals brutally. Also may expect children to do things that are far beyond their ability (whips a 3-year-old for wetting a diaper) or may tease them until they cry. Sixty-five percent of abusers who beat their partners will also abuse children.

(10) "PLAYFUL" USE OF FORCE DURING SEX: Enjoys throwing you down or holding you down against your will during sex; finds the idea of rape exciting.

(11) VERBAL ABUSE: Constantly criticizes or says blatantly cruel things; degrades, curses, calls you ugly names. This may also involve sleep deprivation, waking you with relentless verbal abuse.

(12) RIGID GENDER ROLES: Expects you to serve, obey, remain at home.

(13) SUDDEN MOOD SWINGS: Switches from sweet to violent in minutes.

(14) PAST BATTERING: Admits to hitting a mate in the past, but says the person "made" him or her do it.

(15) THREATS OF VIOLENCE: Says things like, "I'll break your neck" or "I'll kill you," and then dismisses them with, "Everybody talks that way," or "I didn't really mean it."

Anyone at risk should contact the National Domestic Violence Hotline at (800) 799-7233 or the-hotline.org.

Mississippi close to having most-restrictive abortion law in country

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Mississippi lawmakers on Thursday passed what would be the nation's most restrictive abortion law, making the procedure illegal in most cases after 15 weeks of pregnancy. The state's only abortion provider pledged to sue, and the attorney general said he expected a tough legal battle ahead.

Lawmakers in the Republican-controlled Legislature appeared to not only expect, but to encourage, such challenges in hopes the issue will eventually make its way to the U.S. Supreme Court.

The House voted 75-34 in favor of the bill, and Republican Gov. Phil Bryant said again Thursday that he would sign it. Because of necessary paperwork, it won't reach his desk until next week. The Senate passed the measure Tuesday.

"We are protecting more women, we are protecting more children," said House Judiciary B Committee Chairman Andy Gipson, a Braxton Republican. "By 15 weeks, you have a child in the womb who has a heartbeat, who for all practical purposes has taken on the form of a person."

Under the Supreme Court's 1973 Roe v. Wade ruling establishing a nationwide right to abortion, states were permitted to restrict abortions after viability — the point when the fetus has a reasonable chance of surviving under normal conditions outside the uterus. The ruling offered no legal definition of viability, saying it could range between 24 and 28 weeks into a pregnancy.

The Mississippi measure "seems like a pretty simple bill designed to test the viability line that the Supreme Court has drawn," said David Forte, a law professor at Ohio's Cleveland State University.

Abortion-rights-groups immediately spoke out against the bill, saying it is not legally or medically sound.

"We certainly think this bill is unconstitutional," said Katherine Klein, equality advocacy coordinator for the American Civil Liberties Union of Mississippi. "The 15-week marker has no bearing in science. It's just completely unfounded and a court has never upheld anything under the 20-week viability marker. ... We expect that this bill will be challenged in court and it will lose and, in the process, Mississippi will lose thousands upon thousands of taxpayer dollars." Anti-abortion groups applauded the measure.

"We're thrilled that Mississippi lawmakers are taking a step to protect the basic right to life, as well as protecting maternal health," said Jameson Taylor, acting president of the conservative-leaning Mississippi Center for Public Policy. The center helped craft the bill.

There are two exceptions to House Bill 1510: if the fetus has a health problem that would prevent it from surviving outside the womb at full term, or if the pregnant woman's life or a "major bodily function" is threatened by the pregnancy. Pregnancies as a result of rape and incest are not exempt.

It's unclear if a 15-week ban will move forward elsewhere. A bill has been filed for Louisiana's upcoming legislative session. Gipson said lawmakers in Texas, Georgia, and "some Midwestern states" are exploring the idea. An appeals court in 2015 struck down efforts in North Dakota to ban most abortions after six weeks, when a fetus develops a detectable heartbeat, and in Arkansas after 12 weeks.

Democratic Attorney General Jim Hood said Thursday that he expected legal challenges and he noted that less-restrictive measures banning abortion after 20 weeks of pregnancy have been struck down in other states. The U.S. Senate earlier this year rejected such a ban nationwide when supporters couldn't reach a 60-vote supermajority to act. Mississippi's 20-week ban has never been legally challenged, in part because the state's only abortion clinic, the Jackson Women's Health Organization, doesn't perform abortions that late in pregnancy. According to state Department of Health statistics, 85 percent of abortions in Mississippi took place before 12 weeks in 2016.

Rep. Adrienne Wooten, D-Jackson, questions House Judiciary B Committee Chairman Andy Gipson, R-Braxton, about House Bill 1510, on what is likely to be the nation's most restrictive abortion law, Thursday at the Capitol in Jackson, Mississippi.

President Donald Trump holds up a proclamation on aluminum during an event in the Roosevelt Room of the White House on Thursday. He also signed one for steel.

Trump orders stiff trade tariffs

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Unswayed by Republican warnings of a trade war, President Donald Trump ordered steep new tariffs on steel and aluminum imports to the U.S. on Thursday, vowing to fight back against an "assault on our country" by foreign competitors. The president said he would exempt Canada and Mexico as "a special case" while negotiating for changes to the North American Free Trade Agreement.

The new tariffs will take effect in 15 days, with America's neighbors indefinitely spared "to see if we can make the deal," Trump said. He suggested in an earlier meeting with his Cabinet that Australia and "other countries" might be spared, a shift that could soften the international blow amid threats of retaliation by trading partners.

Those "other countries" can try to negotiate their way out of the tariffs, he indicated, by ensuring their trade actions do not harm America's security.

Surrounded by steel and aluminum workers holding hard hats, Trump cast his action as necessary to protect industries "ravaged by aggressive foreign trade practices. It's really an assault on our country. It's been an assault."

His move, an assertive step for his "America First" agenda, has rattled allies across the globe and raised questions at home about whether protectionism will impede U.S. economic growth. The president made his announcement the same day that officials from 11 other Pacific Rim countries signed a sweeping trade agreement that came together after he pulled the U.S. out of the Trans-Pacific Partnership last year.

Though he focused on workers and their companies in his announcement, Trump's legal proclamation made a major point that weakened steel and aluminum industries represent a major threat to America's military strength and national security.

Workers tie down ropes from a container ship at a port in Qingdao in eastern China's Shandong province Thursday. China's exports in February surged 44.5 percent over a year earlier while its politically sensitive trade surplus widened amid mounting tension with Washington.

The former real estate developer said U.S. politicians had for years lamented the decline in the steel and aluminum industries but no one before him was willing to take action.

Despite a week of furious lobbying against his plan by Republican lawmakers and some of his own advisers, Trump said he would go ahead with penalty tariffs of 25 percent on imported steel and 10 percent on aluminum. But he also said the penalties could "go up or down depending on the country, and I'll have a right to drop out countries or add countries. I just want fairness."

Century Aluminum Chief Executive Michael Bless said the tariffs would allow his company, which produces high-purity aluminum used in military aircraft, to recall about 300 workers and restart idled production lines at its smelter in eastern Kentucky by early 2019. And Trump took note of U.S. Steel's announcement that it planned to ramp up activity at its plant in Granite City, Illinois, and recall about 500 employees because of the new tariffs.

But there was political criticism aplenty, especially from Trump's own Republican Party.

House Speaker Paul Ryan, appearing with Home Depot employees in Atlanta, warned of "unintended consequences." And Sen. Ron Johnson of Wisconsin called the tariffs "a very risky action" that could put agricultural and manufacturing jobs at risk.

"I'm not sure there are any winners in trade wars," said Johnson, who once ran a plastics manufacturing business in his home state.

Democratic Sen. Dick Durbin of Illinois said Trump's action was "like dropping a bomb on a flea" and could carry "huge unintended consequences for American manufacturers who depend on imported materials."

Business leaders, too, sounded their alarm about the potential economic fallout, warning that American consumers would be hurt by higher prices. They noted that steel-consuming companies said tariffs imposed in 2002 by President George W. Bush ended up wiping out 200,000 U.S. jobs.

"Tariffs are taxes, and the American taxpayer will pay the cost of a trade war," said Cody Lusk, president and CEO of the American International Automobile Dealers Association. "Even with limited exemptions, tariffs will raise the sale prices of new vehicles."

Stocks ended the day higher after the announcement, with investors relieved by the carved out exceptions for key allies.

At the White House, an upbeat Trump chatted with the steelworkers, invited them to the Oval Office and autographed a hard hat. He invited some of the workers to speak from the presidential podium, and several said that excessive "dumping" of foreign steel and aluminum had negatively affected their jobs and families.

The European Union warned before the announcement that it was ready to retaliate with counter-measures against iconic U.S. products such as Harley Davidson motorcycles, Levi's jeans and bourbon.

EU Trade Commissioner Cecilia Malmstrom tweeted after Trump's announcement that "the EU should be excluded from these measures." Malmstrom said she would be meeting with U.S. Trade Representative Robert Lighthizer in Brussels on Saturday.

The British government said tariffs "are not the right way to address the global problem of overcapacity" and said it would work with EU partners "to consider the scope for exemptions outlined today."

Trial

Another stab wound to her head was three inches deep. "This one actually goes all the way through the skull," she said during her testimony, "and it goes into a part of the brain."

Karen Williams, a forensic biologist for the GBI, said blood samples taken from a pocket knife in Santana's possession matched Marichon's DNA.

Praxedis Chavez, who lived with Marichon, discovered her body in their mobile home at 278 Mac Johnson Road in Cartersville in the early hours of June 18, 2015. Once police arrived, investigators spotted a trail of blood leading to Santana's trailer next door.

He was discovered passed out on a bed, with a bloody shirt wrapped around his severely lacerated right hand.

Bartow County Sheriff's Office Sgt. Jonathan Rogers recalled seeing Santana at the hospital shortly after he was arrested.

"He smelled like an alcoholic beverage," Rogers said, "like he'd been drinking prior."

Santana's attorney, David Marshall, argued that Santana had been attacked by the "real" perpetrator of the crime, who fled the scene after slashing his client's hand.

Marshall also suggested that Santana was not "properly" informed of his Miranda rights and that Marichon's purse was "planted" in his residence.

"The evidence against my client has been poisoned," he advised jurors during his closing argument. "Don't eat it."

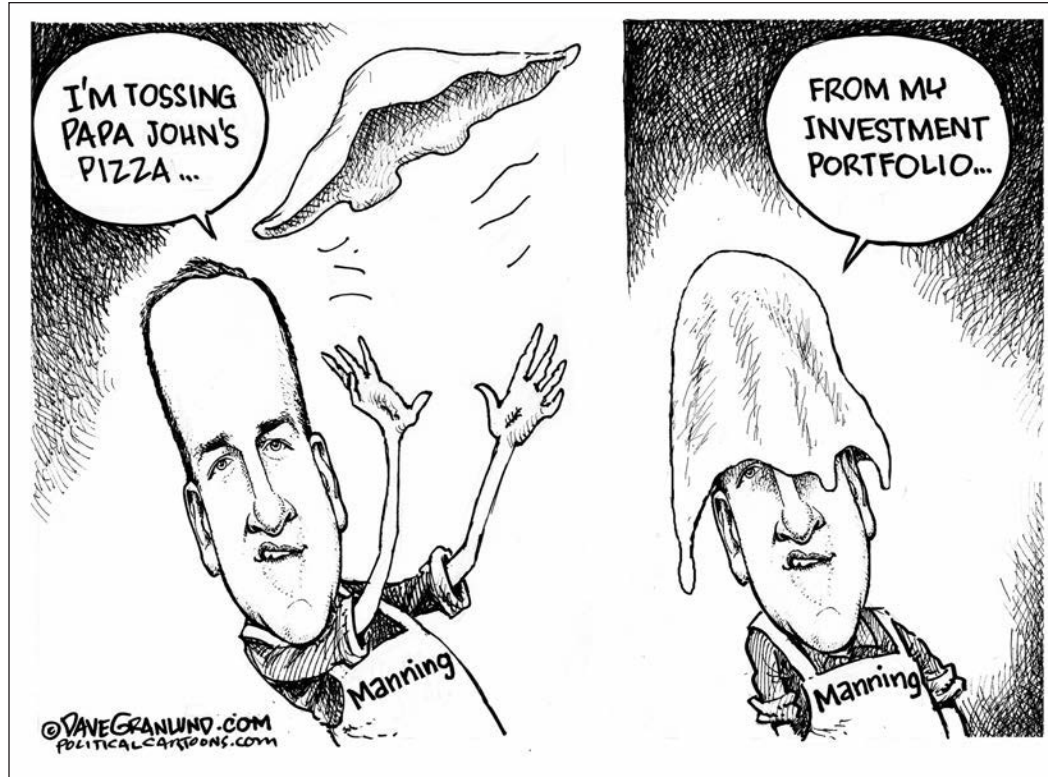

During her concluding remarks, Greene brought up Santana admitting that he lied to a paramedic about the cause of his injuries and cited several inconsistencies in his testimony.

"She was naked and alone," Greene said. "And she died a horrible death at his hands."

According to a 2006 legal document, Santana, who is an undocumented immigrant from Mexico, was to be deported in 2005. However, a senior U.S. district judge representing the Eastern District of Washington ruled that those deportation proceedings "did not comport with due process" and that Santana "was prejudiced by the defects in his deportation proceeding because he was not advised he may have been eligible for 'fast-track' voluntary departure."

Marshall said he plans to appeal Thursday's decision and will make a motion for a new trial for Santana.

2. Again you are declarer at Six Spades, but this time with a slightly different hand. North leads the four of spades, and you win South's ten with the jack. How would you play the hand?

 1. The contract is ice-cold regardless of how the cards are divided. To assure the slam, play another trump, then cash the A-K of clubs and A-K of hearts. If both defenders follow suit in hearts, you can't lose more than one heart trick, so let's assume the worst — that one opponent started with the Q-10-x-x of hearts. If North is the player with the Q-10-x-x, you next lead the four of diamonds to dummy's nine. (If North produces the jack or ten, you cover with dummy's queen.) South wins but must yield a ruff-and-discard or return a diamond into the A-Q. In either case, you get rid of both of your heart losers.

 If South has the Q-10-x-x, you make the slam simply by leading a diamond to dummy's ace and returning a heart toward your J-9.
 2. Despite the striking similarity between this hand and the previous one, there is a world of difference in the correct approach to the play. (Both hands were composed by Israeli expert Paul Lukacs.)

Again you can guarantee the slam against any distribution. But because this time dummy has the eight of diamonds instead of the nine, and also has an extra entry in the form of the king of clubs, you must adopt a different approach.
 Draw the one missing trump, cash the ace of hearts (assume both defenders follow low) and ace of diamonds, then ruff a diamond. Next cash the A-K of clubs and ruff the queen of diamonds.

Having eliminated both minor suits, you now lead the nine of hearts. If North started with the Q-10-x-x, he wins with the ten but must return a heart into your K-J or yield a ruff-and-discard.
 If South started with the Q-10-x-x, he must win and return a heart, allowing you to take the proven finesse, or else yield a fatal ruff-and-discard by returning a minor suit.

Today's Horoscopes

FRIDAY March 9, 2018

ARIES (March 21 to April 19)
 Take it easy today, because things will look worse than they actually are. Don't go up against bosses, parents and VIPs. Keep your head down and your powder dry.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20)
 Don't be down on yourself today. Someone older might be critical, which does not mean that you are in the wrong. Relax.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20)
 A conversation with a friend, especially someone older, might be difficult today. Perhaps this person is critical, or perhaps he or she is giving advice. Hey, sometimes advice is handy!

CANCER (June 21 to July 22)
 Discussions with bosses, parents and VIPs might be dicey today. Someone might want you to account for yourself. (Yikes!) Just say as little as possible and see which way the wind is blowing.

LEO (July 23 to Aug. 22)
 Avoid controversial discussions about politics, religion and racial issues today, because they will be a bummer. Someone is negative and pessimistic today. (Oh well.)

VIRGO (Aug. 23 to Sept. 22)
 You might be disappointed in your fair share of something. A lot of people feel this way today. Wait until next week to renegotiate financial matters.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22)
 Tread carefully when talking to friends and partners today, because the vibes out there are a tad negative. It's not your fault, and it's not their fault. It is what it is.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21)
 Someone older might have excellent advice for you today. Admittedly, someone older also might be critical or discouraging. Don't take it personally.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21)
 Something might depress you today when dealing with a social occasion, a party, a sporting event or even romance or your relationships with your kids. Don't take this personally. It's just a passing vibe. Stay positive.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 19)
 This is not an ideal day to get advice from your parents or an older family member. Nevertheless, they're going to give it. Your best option is to be polite. Don't let anything get you down.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 to Feb. 18)
 It's easy to be in worry mode today. Corrie ten Boom said, "Worry does not empty tomorrow of its sorrow; it empties today of its strength."

PISCES (Feb. 19 to March 20)
 Your finances might look bleak today. "Why is there always so much month left at the end of the money?" Chill out. Things will look better next week.

Trump talks violence with gamer execs and critics

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
WASHINGTON — President Donald Trump raised concerns about the graphic depiction of violence in video games at a White House meeting Thursday with members of the industry and some of their most vocal critics.

Searching for ways to respond to last month's Florida school shooting, Trump has questioned the impact of video games, although decades of research have failed to find a link between gun violence and graphic depictions of violence in games. Meeting attendees said he sought to hear from all sides.

"He asked a lot of questions and he raised concerns with the violent nature of these games and asked the question: Is this causing the kids to have (this) violent behavior?" said Rep. Vicky Hartzler, R-Mo.

Those attending the meeting from the video game industry included representatives of the Entertainment Software Association and the Entertainment Software Rating Board and two CEOs of video game publishers.

The Entertainment Software Association released a statement after the meeting, saying they "discussed the numerous scientific studies establating that there is no connection between video games and violence, First Amendment protection of video games, and how our industry's rating system effectively helps parents make informed entertainment choices."

Also attending were a representative of the Parents Television Council, a conservative watchdog group, as well as conservative activist Brent Bozell — a longtime critic of video game violence who founded the council — and the author of a book linking mass killings to violent video games.

PTC program director Melissa

Henson said she sought to convey the challenges of keeping violent games away from kids "even for the most diligent parent."

She described the meeting as a listening session, saying there were no decisions about next steps.

"I don't think there are easy answers and I don't think that we're going to be able to figure out the solution in the course of a one-hour conversation," Henson said.

Trump has focused on video games as he seeks solutions to deal with the scourge of guns in the wake of the Florida school shooting that killed 17 people. After weeks of public deliberation — including expressing support for some gun control measures — Trump has not yet outlined what he would like to see in legislation.

Trump has invoked his son Barron as he speaks about video games. At a recent meeting on school violence, he said: "The video games, the movies, the internet stuff is so violent. It's so incredible. I see it. I get to see things that you wouldn't be, you'd be amazed at. I have a young, very young son, who, I look at some of the things he's watching, and I say, how is that possible" day, Trump congratulated Florida on school safety legislation approved by state lawmakers, saying the state "passed a lot of very good legislation last night."

The measure would raise the minimum age to buy rifles from 18 to 21 and create a waiting period on weapons sales. It also would create a so-called guardian program, enabling school employees and many teachers to carry handguns if they go through law enforcement training and their school districts agree to participate. Republican Gov. Rick Scott has not said if he will sign the bill.

and his sister, Johnnie Houston, threatened to burn the house down. Weaver proceeded to set two cars, including the one he crashed into his porch earlier, on fire with a "flamethrower." He also set the porch to that home on fire.

After setting the fires, Houston and Weaver left.

According to the report, warrants for Weaver's arrest have been taken out under charges of two counts of second-degree arson, two counts of first-degree arson and battery.

Warrants for Houston have been taken out under charges of battery and two counts of terroristic threats.

Now, the city is beginning its quest to become a certified local government.

If that sounds familiar, it should — the city is already a certified local government — just not in the area of historic preservation.

And that is really important if you want to preserve historic stuff. "In order to get all the grants we need," Gilmore said. "We need to become a certified local government in historic preservation. It's kind of a lengthy process and we have been working on that diligently."

In order to meet the state requirements for certification, Gilmore said the city must have a historic commission that meets regularly, a designated historic district and ordinances governing that district, a survey of all historic places in the city, and a set of preservation guidelines. She added that Kennesaw State students will be conducting the survey.

"Becoming a certified local government for historic preservation allows us to apply for federal and state historic grants," Gilmore said. "If we want to redo a building — we're looking at the old Butler shoe store or the Gholston House — we will have the resources to do that."

Gilmore said historic preservation committees from Adairsville, Euaharlee, Dalton, Rome and other cities will meet at the Adairsville Depot on June 13 to meet Sarah Rogers, the new state coordinator and learn what steps to take to ensure the city gets the certified designation.

In other business, council:

- Heard four rezoning requests, including three asking to be changed from R1 to R2 and one requesting a change from R1 to C1.
- Heard requests to approve special events permits for "St. Paddy's on the Square," "BBQ & Blues," and summer and fall concerts at Logtown.
- Heard requests to approve donations to the depot museum, including a carved marble slab from the water plant donated by Joe Bowdoin, a bonnet donated by Patricia Eastin and a Bible from Wanda and Danny Pelfrey.
- Heard a request to authorize the city manager to enter into an agreement with BS&A Software not to exceed $16,000.
- Heard a request to approve $235,000 for repairs to the King and College Streets collection system.
- Heard a request to approve the nomination of Gregory R. Harris to the Unified Zoning Board, as recommended by Mayor Kenneth Carson.

By Georgia law, city councils are forbidden to vote during a work session.

City Manager Pam Madison said she expects every resolution to pass at Thursday's regular meeting.

Stocks rise as Trump signs tariffs

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
NEW YORK — After hours of indecisive trading, stocks finished with modest gains Thursday after President Donald Trump formally ordered tariffs on steel and aluminum imports with terms that were less harsh than investors had feared.

Stocks rallied following reports that Canada and Mexico will be exempted indefinitely from the tariffs and that other countries will be invited to negotiate for exemptions as well.

Congressional Republicans and business leaders oppose the tariffs and have pushed for the administration to take a more measured approach that would invite less backlash from other countries.

"The president's tone was far more pragmatic," said Quincy Krosby, chief market strategist at Prudential Financial. "This certainly is not the strict tariff proposal that the president had suggested in the past couple of weeks."

Health care companies rose after pharmacy benefits manager Express Scripts accepted a $52 billion offer from health insurer Cigna. Technology companies also moved higher, but energy companies slipped along with oil prices.

The Standard & Poor's 500 index climbed 12.17 points, or 0.4 percent, to 2,738.97. The Dow Jones industrial average rose 93.85 points, or 0.4 percent, to 24,895.21. The Nasdaq composite rose for the fifth day in a row, gaining 31.30 points, or 0.4 percent, to 7,427.95.

The Russell 2000 index of smaller-company stocks dipped 2.57 points, or 0.2 percent, to 1,571.97. The index had jumped 4.5 percent over the previous four days as discussion about the proposed tariffs prompted investors to buy U.S.-focused companies and sell multinational firms.

Friday could prove to be another dramatic day on Wall Street as investors review the government's February jobs report. Stocks tumbled after the January report showed unexpectedly strong growth in wages, which set off worries about inflation.

The insurer Cigna will spend about $52 billion to acquire the nation's biggest pharmacy benefit manager, Express Scripts, the latest in a string of proposed deals as health care's bill payers attempt to get a grip on rising costs. Express Scripts jumped $6.30, or 8.6 percent, to $79.72 while Cigna lost $22.25, or 11.5 percent, to $172.

Pharmacy benefit managers run drug plans for insurers and employer-based plans. Like health insurers, they have struggled to corral spiraling costs, so in the last few years several big health insurers have created their own pharmacy benefits management businesses or bought them. And late last year, drugstore chain and pharmacy benefits manager CVS agreed to buy insurer Aetna for $69 billion.

Grocery store Kroger posted a bigger fourth-quarter profit and said its digital sales almost doubled in the past year, but its profit forecast for the current year disappointed investors. Kroger expects to earn between $1.95 and $2.15 a share for the year, while FactSet says analysts expected a profit of $2.15 per share on average. The stock fell $3.25, or 12.4 percent, to $22.98.

Newspaper publisher Tronc plunged $4.77, or 24.1 percent, to $15.05 after its quarterly profit fell far short of Wall Street's forecasts.

Benchmark U.S. crude fell $1.03, or 1.7 percent, to $60.12 a barrel in New York. Brent crude, used to price international oils, lost 73 cents, or 1.1 percent, to $63.61 a barrel in London. That led to more losses for energy companies.

Sandbox

closer for my own students to experience."

The next year, Morrow said she saw a mobile version of it at the Atlanta Science Festival Exhibition, and she was "able to evaluate the basic design and necessary components" needed to build one.

During a conversation she had with Dr. Greg Ford, dean of natural sciences and physical education at GHC, she said she mentioned the AR sandbox, "and he agreed to help make it a reality."

"My knowledge level of open-source programming, Linux and hardware is severely limited," she said. "Georgia Highlands College has been a generous supporter of the local schools, and they were intrigued by the concept from the beginning."

Ford said Morrow's passion for science, technology, engineering and mathematics as well as for her students "made me want to work with her and support her programs."

"Just like me, Robin understands that to gamer interest in STEM, students have to be fully engaged through interactive activities," he said. "So Robin wrote a grant for this technology that I had never heard of and asked if I could assist. I wholeheartedly accepted the challenge."

Ford said the cost of a mobile unit would have been close to $2,000 so the natural sciences and information technology services employees who agreed to work on it brainstormed about how to do it for less.

The team decided the best way to help the school build the sandbox on a $500 budget was to create everything from the ground up, with the science department working on building a mobile module while the IT department constructed a computer to run the augmented reality program, according to a press release.

With the college providing the labor and some materials and designing and building multiple components, the result was a fully functional, mobile augmented reality sandbox for less than $500.

"We were able to complete the project [under budget] because I work with some of the best people in the world who care about the students and the communities we serve," Ford said. "Mark Huguet researched and found the best components to fit within the budget and built the computer from the ground up. Mark also programmed the computer [from home on weekends] and set up the hardware once the table was constructed. Jason Christian and I designed and built the table from an extra rolling cart we had in a lab and parts we purchased from a local hardware store. Finally, the Kinects unit, the projector and power cords were donated by parents."

Ford said the project "took several months to complete because all of the labor was done on a volunteer basis."

"I reached out to the entire IT department, and in the middle of several major projects, they collaborated with me, and we made a plan to pull this off," he said.

Morrow said the finished product is "a dream come true."

"It took some time to make it a reality, but our patience was rewarded," she said. "I am thrilled to see they have taken the concept and made it even better."

The AR sandbox made its debut at Clear Creek's Pi Day event last March.

"We wanted it to be our Pi Day station because it was really fun to play with, and I love science," said fifth-grader Alyssa Heathers, 10. "When we brought the kindergartners to try it, they were pretty excited to see the sandbox, and when they figured it out, they had lots of fun."

Rylie Bright, an 11-year-old fifth-grader, said the sandbox is a "table filled with sand with a projector and a motion sensor that when you move the sand, it changes the landform projected on the sand."

"The reason I chose to do this station is to see kids get excited about landforms and science," she said. "We got some kindergartners to test out the sandbox, [and] these kids had so much fun making mountains and valleys."

Ford said he also was "very happy with the final product."

It turned out so well, in fact, that the team built a larger stationary unit for the geology lab on GHC's Floyd campus and plans to construct one for the Cartersville site.

"I will present two slideshows with animations, about how Georgia's climate has changed as Georgia has drifted from near the South Pole to its present position," Witherspoon said, referring to his 10:30 a.m. and 12:30 p.m. presentations at the preserve. "Volcanic eruptions, the crash of an asteroid, movement of tectonic plates and Earth's orbit around the sun have all affected climate over time. People are often surprised to learn that Earth has a natural thermostat that has kept temperatures right for life. Georgia's climate has affected many of its mineral deposits, as well as its landscapes.

"I will also lead two family-friendly walks, pausing to notice the stones and soil along Pettit Environmental Preserve's trails. On the 1:30 [p.m.] trail hike, we will definitely see some rock outcroppings that are large enough to reveal how the rock layers in this part of Georgia were folded under great pressure. This happened about 300 million years ago — almost unimaginably long ago — as Africa collided with North America. While supplies last, I will give away rocks from the Cartersville area that are more than three times that age, which contain unusual blue quartz."

Situated off Ga. Highway 61 on the Bartow/Paulding county line, the preserve was formed as a private, nonprofit corporation — The Margaret and Luke Pettit Environmental Preserve Inc. — in 1999 when the late Gay Pettit Dellinger and her children initially donated 60 acres of property.

Open to the general public during scheduled programs, the 70-acre venue consists of various trails, a swinging bridge, a 9-acre lake, two aquatic stations, three amphitheaters, self-contained composting toilets and a Learning Shed. More than 18,000 patrons have visited the preserve or received outreach through its programs since the site opened in 2006.

"I often get calls from people who just want to hike the trails, and I always encourage them to come out for our second Saturday events," Robertson said, referring to the Explore Nature Saturdays offering that launched in May 2017. "But, I always emphasize that our primary mission is environmental education. There are lots of trails in Bartow County, but not a lot of opportunities to learn about nature and the environment. In our technology-laden society, nature knowledge is getting left behind at the same time that we have lots of research showing the importance of our connection to nature for physical and mental health. By having fun topics each month, we nurture that connection.

"We have lots of fun topics coming up this year. In April, we'll focus on how coyote populations have grown and adapted to urban life and what that means for humans. Later in the year, we'll cover invasive species and what you can do about them; the importance of pond and lake ecosystems; native bees; identifying trees by knowing what mushrooms and fungi grow on various tree species; the importance of bats to our ecosystem; what amphibians do to survive in the winter and the science of snow. All of the topics are on our website, www.pettitpreserve.org, on the events page."

Free to preserve members, Saturday's event will cost $3 per person, with a maximum $10 fee per family. Along with the climate program, the offering also will feature self-led hikes and children's crafts and activities.

In addition to the preserve's website, more information about the site and Saturday's event can be obtained by contacting Robertson at director@pettitpreserve.org or 678-848-4179.

In a June 26, 1928 file photo, American aviatrix Amelia Earhart poses with flowers as she arrives in Southampton, England, after her transatlantic flight on the "Friendship" from Burry Point, Wales. Bones found in 1940 on a western Pacific Ocean island were quite likely to be remains from famed aviator Amelia Earhart, a new analysis concludes. Until somebody disproves the link, "the most convincing argument is that they are hers," University of Tennessee anthropologist Richard Jantz said in a statement from the institution.

Bones found in 1940 seem to be Amelia Earhart's, study says

BY MALCOLM RITTER
AP Science Writer

NEW YORK — Bones found in 1940 on a western Pacific Ocean island were quite likely to be remains from famed aviator Amelia Earhart, a new analysis concludes. The study and other evidence "point toward her rather strongly," University of Tennessee anthropologist Richard Jantz said Thursday.

Earhart disappeared during an attempted flight around the world in 1937, and the search for an answer to what happened to her and her navigator has captivated the public for decades.

Jantz's analysis is the latest chapter in a back-and-forth that has played out about the remains, which were found in 1940 on Nikumaroro Island but are now lost.

All that survive are seven measurements, from the skull and bones of the arm and leg. Those measurements led a scientist in 1941 to conclude the bones belong to a man. In 1998, however, Jantz and another scientist reinterpreted them as coming from a woman of European ancestry, and about Earhart's height. But in 2015, still other researchers concluded the original assessment as a man was correct.

Now Jantz weighs in with another analysis of the measurements, published in January in the journal Forensic Anthropology.

For comparison, Jantz used an inseam length and waist circumference from a pair of Earhart's trousers. He also drew on a photo of her holding an oil can to estimate the lengths of two arm bones.

Analysis showed "the bones are consistent with Earhart in all respects we know or can reasonably infer," he wrote in the journal article. It's highly unlikely that a random person would resemble the bones as closely as Earhart, he wrote.

In a phone interview, Jantz noted that some artifacts found on the island also support the possibility that the bones came from Earhart.

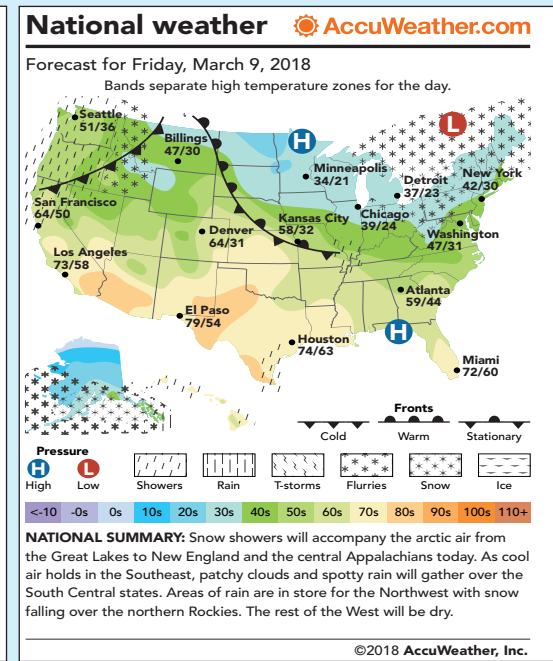

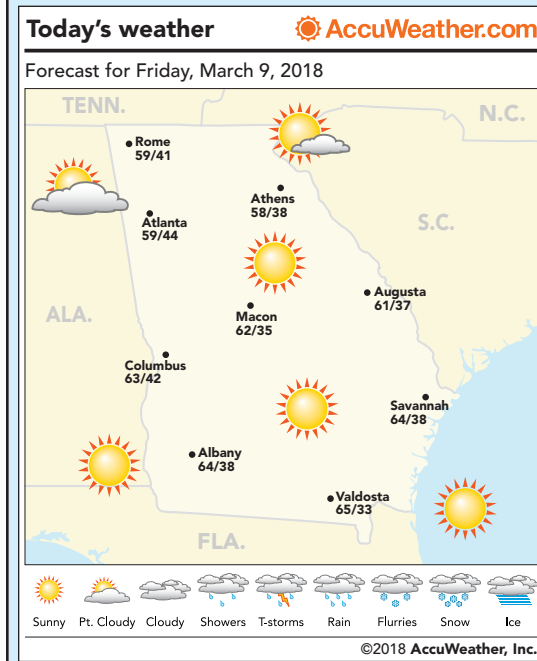

"I think we have pretty good evidence that it's her," he said.

Cartersville reaches quarterfinals of Perfect Game HS Showdown

STAFF REPORT

Josh Davis and Jordan Wilkie had incredible performances at the plate to lead the Cartersville baseball team to a first round victory Thursday in the Perfect Game High School Showdown.

Davis finished 2-for-2 with three runs and two RBIs, while Wilkie drove in three runs to complement his 2-for-3 showing in a 7-4 win over Seminary (Mississippi).

Cartersville advances to the quarterfinals to Grayson at 3:30 p.m. Friday at LakePoint's Field 15.

The Loganville-based school defeated College Station (Texas) 2-1 on Thursday. The Canes (9-3) scored twice in the bottom of the second to hand Mason

Barnett an early cushion, but the Bulldogs (1-5) answered with a three-spot in the fourth inning, thanks to a pair of Cartersville errors.

It didn't take long for the Canes to respond.

Jake Gooch walked and Davis was hit by a pitch to open the bottom of the fourth. Both moved up 90 feet on a passed ball and later scored on a single by Wilkie that gave Cartersville the lead for good.

Barnett helped his cause in the fifth. He and Devin Warner hit consecutive singles to set the table, and Davis came through with a clutch hit to drive in courtesy runner LaDarius Winburn and Warner.

An error later in the inning allowed the Canes to take a seemingly comfortable 7-3 lead into the sixth inning.

Seminary didn't go down without a fight, though.

With two outs in the seventh, the Bulldogs hit consecutive singles followed by a run-scoring double.

The outburst forced Cartersville coach Kyle Tucker to bring Anthony Seigler in to get the final out. The senior came through, coaxing a groundout to escape the jam and end the game.

Barnett pitched six solid innings with all three runs being unearned. The junior Auburn commit struck out eight, while allowing a pair of walks and a pair of hits.

TIGERS TAME 'CATS

RANDY PARKER/THE DAILY TRIBUNE NEWS

Adairsville senior Kyler Pelfrey delivers to the plate during a win Thursday over Woodland in Tiger Valley. Pelfrey threw all seven innings, striking out nine while allowing one run on two hits and no walks.

Pelfrey does it all as Adairsville edges Woodland

BY NICHOLAS SULLIVAN

nicholas.sullivan@daily-tribune.com

Kyler Pelfrey seems to be at his best when he's facing Bartow County rivals, then again the Adairsville senior has been outstanding regardless of who the Tigers have faced this year.

Having earned a win against Cass earlier in the season, Pelfrey improved to 2-0 against intra-county competition with a fantastic performance in a 3-1 home victory over Woodland on Thursday.

"Kyler did what Kyler does," Adairsville coach Billy Roper said. "He's done that for us for three years. This year, he's feeling good. Last year, he had some arm trouble early, and we weren't able to use him like this."

"Now, we know what we're going to get. We're going to get six or seven innings out of him. We need to get him some runs. We were fortunate enough to get him some runs early and let him get in a groove and go. He does what we expect him to do."

The Tigers (7-3) grabbed the early edge against Wildcats starter Kenny Jinks, who pitched a stellar game himself, with a run in the first inning.

Pelfrey, who recently moved back to the leadoff spot after hitting there last year, opened the game with a walk. Courtesy runner Wade Conduff advanced to second on a pitch in the dirt, and Hunter Hice drove him home with a double down the left field line.

It was the only earned run Jinks would allow. The left-hander struck out 10 over six innings, allowing the lone walk to Pelfrey and just three hits.

His defense let him down in the third inning, leading to two runs for the Tigers.

RANDY PARKER/THE DAILY TRIBUNE NEWS

Adairsville's Wade Conduff slides safely into second base after a wild pitch during Thursday's game against Woodland in Tiger Valley.

B.J. Roper reached on a throwing error, and Pelfrey drove him in with a key triple on the first pitch of his at bat. Conduff, running for the pitcher, scored on another Woodland error to give Adairsville a 3-0 lead.

"I knew the last inning, he started me with a fastball right down the middle, but we had a take, because it was the beginning [of the game]," Pelfrey said. "He did it again, so I just tried to put a good swing on it and it flew."

That gave Pelfrey, who struck out 14 Armuchee batters in six innings his last time out, more than enough breathing room.

He punched out nine Thursday, while also doing an excellent job of pitching to contact.

"We were trying to get them to hit groundballs, trust our defense," Pelfrey said. "That gives you a lot of confidence as a pitcher knowing you've got a good defense behind you to make those plays."

Hice, in particular, was phenomenal in the field, as Pelfrey needed just 83 pitches in his complete-game effort, which included no walks and two hits allowed.

"Hunter had by far his best game defensively," Roper said. "He's come out late from basketball. He's right now getting in his groove offensively and defensively. He made some big plays to take them out of key situations."

Despite Pelfrey cruising much of the evening, the Wildcats (6-6) still had chances to push across runs with three runners reaching third base. Woodland, though, only took advantage one of those times.

In the fourth inning, Chris Mills led off the frame with a single. He used heads up base running on a hit-and-run to go from first to third on a groundout to the third baseman, Hice.

Bailey Ward drove him in on a chopper up the middle that Pelfrey knocked down and wisely chose to take the out at first.

But the Wildcats' hitting woes, which had somewhat dissipated after a slow start to the season, reared its ugly head for the second time in three days.

Including Tuesday's 10-inning loss to Sonoraville, Woodland has just four hits in its last 17 innings.

"We're struggling hitting right now," Wildcats coach Colby Coursey said. "We're struggling to score runs, getting guys in. We're getting them in positions, but somebody's got to step up and score the guy."

"I think we had opportunities." Sometimes, though, the pitching on the other side is just too good. That could certainly be the argument after Pelfrey once again showed why he's one of the top pitchers in the area.

Roper knew what he would get out of his ace, but the offense wasn't guaranteed to show up against a solid Jinks. But the fact the offense scratched across enough runs has the Adairsville coach confident with Region 6-AAA play starting next week.

"It's good to win the 10-0 games, but in our region, that's not going to happen," Roper said. "... You've got to win 3-1 games and only have four or five hits. The fact that you can have four or five hits and win a ballgame, that tells a lot about your team."

Balanced Colonels down Murray Co.

STAFF REPORT

Nobody had multiple hits for the Cass baseball team Thursday evening, but six of the nine batters recorded one and two others reached via bases on balls in a total team win over Murray County by a 7-1 score.

Having won a 3-0 home game with Murray County (3-8) earlier this week, Cass (6-5) took advantage of being the visitors to score right off the bat.

Bryson Markley walked and came around to score on a double by Clay Means, who later scored on an error for a quick 2-0 lead.

Control issues by the Murray County pitcher gifted Cass another run in the third. Matt Shook was hit by a pitch, and he eventually scored off of three walks.

The Colonels continued to pitch well, and they looked destined for another 3-0 win before finally scoring again in the sixth inning.

Shook singled, Means was plunked and Evan Hinton singled to load the bases for Steven Spell, who delivered a sacrifice fly.

Cass added three more insurance runs in the seventh for a 7-0 lead.

A sacrifice fly from Shook, a run-scoring double by Markley and a passed ball to score Markley provided the cushion for the Colonels, who allowed an earned run in the bottom of the seventh.

Means led the offense, going 1-for-1 with two walks, a run scored and an RBI. Markley reached three times and scored twice with one run driven in.

Shook finished 1-for-2 with two runs and an RBI. Spell wound up 0-for-1 officially, but he walked twice and drove in a pair.

On the mound, Blaine Ingram struggled with his control but managed to get through four scoreless innings. Hinton allowed three hits, but he used four strikeouts to put up zeros over his two frames.

Cass heads to Sonoraville for a 5:30 p.m. game today.

'Cats, Canes take every set in dominant wins

STAFF REPORT

In anticipation for the collegiate-style format at the DecoTurf High School Tennis Team Championships next weekend in Chattanooga, the Woodland girls tried out a new lineup Thursday.

Despite the shakeup, the Wildcats cruised to a 5-0 home win over East Paulding.

The lineup change placed Woodland's usual Nos. 2 and 3 singles players in a doubles match. The duo of Gloria Gore and Deanna Dodson dropped just one game in rolling to victory.

None of the Wildcats' other matches involved much drama, either.

Christy Turner won 6-0, 6-0 on the No. 1 line.

Caroline Gore and Whitney Harris, who normally team up in the No. 1 doubles match, had no issues on their own. Gore won 6-2, 6-1, while Harris didn't drop a game.

Breanna Shook and Becky Wesley won the team's other doubles match by a 6-2, 6-0 final.

The Woodland boys traveled to East Paulding and returned in a first-place tie in Region 7-A-A-A-A-A with Carrollton with a 3-0 mark.

The two schools face off Tuesday for the region's top spot.

Thursday, the Wildcats weren't caught looking ahead, as they easily dispatched of the Raiders by a 5-0 score.

Woodland didn't drop a game in either doubles match with Alex Banta and Hayden Lusk and Max Costlow and Nick Warren cruising to victory.

Georgia beats Missouri to advance to SEC semifinals

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

ST. LOUIS — With the Southeastern Conference tournament in St. Louis and heralded freshman Michael Porter Jr. returning, Missouri fans were hoping to be treated to a weekend-long show from the Tigers.

Yante Maten and the Georgia Bulldogs did their best job to prevent that from happening.

Maten scored 21 points and grabbed 10 rebounds and Georgia squeaked out a 62-60 victory over Missouri in the second round of the Southeastern Conference Tournament on Thursday.

Georgia, the 12th seed, led throughout the second half, but fifth-seeded Missouri narrowed the Bulldogs' lead to just two points with seven seconds left. The Tigers drew up a play for their leading scorer, Kassius Robertson. But Robertson's 3-point attempt went long and Georgia secured the victory.

After starting the game down 10-0, the Bulldogs (18-14), who face fourth-seeded Kentucky in Friday's second quarterfinal, charged back with a 12-0 run of their own. The trend continued throughout the contest: Missouri makes a run, Georgia responds.

"I felt like we got off to a very slow start but eventually found a rhythm defensively in the first half," Georgia coach Mark Fox said. "(We) were able to just kind of grind to the finish."

Maten and the Bulldogs put Missouri in foul trouble early. Missouri bigs Jeremiah Tilmon and Kevin Puryear fouled out and Jontay Porter finished with four fouls.

"We did a poor job of fouling," Robertson said. "We put them in the bonus really early, and they made a lot of money at the free-throw line."

Jontay Porter led Missouri (20-12) with 20 points and eight rebounds. His brother, Michael, a projected lottery pick who played just two minutes in the season opener and later had surgery, finished with 12 points and eight rebounds, but shot just 5 for 17 from the field.

Teshaun Hightower came up big off the bench for Georgia, matching his career high of 13 points. Hightower played a big role in Georgia's win over Vanderbilt Wednesday night, when he scored 13 and had six assists.

The Bulldogs looked impressive against Vanderbilt in the first round, and they looked solid against Missouri here in the second as well. Maten will need to have a big game against Kentucky to keep Georgia's tournament hopes afloat.

With a home court advantage, Missouri was obviously hoping to make it past the second round in the tournament. But the Tigers should still be safe on Selection Sunday. Porter Jr. looked good at times, but he didn't shoot well overall. If the Tigers make the NCAA tournament, it will be interesting to see his role Missouri's offense.

Missouri's Jontay Porter and Georgia's Maten were going back and forth on the offensive end and on the boards. Each player led his team in both points and rebounding. For Porter, the 20-point performance marked his fourth game with 15 or more points in his last five contests.

"He's coming in and consistently getting the work in, working on his shots, ball-handling, his passing," Missouri coach Cuonzo Martin said.

For Georgia, Maten's 21-point performance comes after his 25-point showing against Vanderbilt in the first round.

"He's been just a tremendous producer for us this year," Fox said. "He can shoot threes, he can get to the foul line, he can post up and go over both shoulders."

Missouri's Michael Porter Jr. played the fifth-most minutes of Missouri players Thursday, but shot seven more times than any of his teammates. Many questioned whether Porter Jr.'s return would hurt the team's offensive flow. And while Martin said Missouri's offense didn't flow as well, he attributed that to foul trouble, rather than Porter's return.

Georgia will take on Kentucky today in the quarterfinals of the SEC tournament.

Georgia's Yante Maten shoots over Missouri's Jontay Porter during an SEC tournament game Thursday in St. Louis.

Bryce VanOrder took Line 1 singles by a 6-1, 6-0 score; Blake Bottegall battled to a 6-3, 6-2 win on Line 2; and Connor Gunnell overcame a tight first set to win by a 6-4, 6-0 score.

Cartersville dominates Troup

The girls and boys tennis teams lost just three combined games in rolling to a pair of 5-0 wins Thursday at Troup County.

All six singles players won by identical 6-0, 6-0 scores.

On the girls side that consisted of routs by Ashley Popham, Emma McCary and Ansley Thompson; for the boys, it was Will Allen, Matthew Slocum and Davis Edwards dominating the competition.

In girls doubles action, Jordan Ross and Lydia Wiedetz won 6-0, 6-0, while Alice Terry and Chloe Satterfield triumphed by a 6-1, 6-0 score.

The pairings of Juan Zazueta and Ross Norwood and Ivy Nelson and Luke Kottemann dropped one game apiece in their own easy victories.

Tigers split with Phoenix

The Adairsville girls took a big step towards qualifying for the state tournament with a couple of come-from-behind wins Thursday at Sonoraville.

The Phoenix won on Lines 1 and 2 in singles action, but the Tigers took the other three matches in a thrilling 3-2 win.

The Line 1 doubles pairing of Hannah Adcock and Olivia Long earned a comfortable 6-1, 6-3 win for Adairsville (3-1 in Region 6-AAA).

But the other two victories didn't come so easily.

Line 3 singles player Brantley Hughes rallied for a 1-6, 6-3, 6-2 win. The Line 2 doubles team of Micaela Pardo and Audrey Mixon pulled out a stellar win after also dropping the first set, earning a 4-6, 6-2, 10-5 win in a tiebreaker.

In boys action, Houston Medlock was the lone winner for Adairsville as Sonoraville earned a 4-1 victory.

Medlock cruised at Line 1 singles, 6-1, 6-1.

While the Phoenix easily handled a couple matches, the Tigers had good showings by Cody Kimbrough on Line 3 and the Line 1 doubles team Zach Ogle and Jason Burdette.

Adairsville hosts Murray County at 4 p.m. Tuesday.
