Bartow business owner pleads guilty to racketeering

A Cartersville-based accountant pleaded guilty to violating the federal Racketeer Influenced and Corrupt Organizations (RICO) Act in Bartow Superior Court Tuesday. Cherokee Judicial Circuit Assistant District Attorney Dylan Williams filed an amended indictment on Sept. 11, 2016, which included the RICO charge.

Heath Barrow, 45, of H&H Tax & Accounting LLC principal Gregory James Smith sentenced Heath, 45, to 30 years in Bartow County prison for violating federal racketeering laws.

"I don't want you being in charge of people's lives," Smith said. "With computers these days, it's possible to do all kinds of things."

Barrow, of Cartersville, is most noted for his career as a country music performer. He has sold millions of albums, performed thousands of concerts, and headlined some of the most successful tours and events in country music.

Barrow wants to keep politics out of the secretary of state's office

jim.mcmannis@daily-tribune.com

For the first time since 2006, Georgia voters will elect their next secretary of state and Adrienne Doggett John Barrow wants the job.

He is running against Republican Brad Raffensperger for the office that oversees state elections, issuance of business licenses and certification of many professional licenses.

But Barrow said partisan politics should not play a role in the operations of his office.

"I think this office requires a certain amount of political balance, bipartisanship and discipline to run," he said. "You're going to have to deal with folks on both sides of the political divide in this state and in the country," he said.

The self-described conservative Democrat said he plans to use his centrist diplomacy and tact, because you're not going to win when you're both.

"I'm a fighter at heart," Barrow said. "I'm unapologetic about it."

Barrow said he will work with members of both parties to ensure state business is handled efficiently and effectively.

"My decision is to do the right thing for the state," he said. "I'm going to use my political experience to build a coalition of support for the office."
Amanda Kemp, who is running an aggressive campaign to keep Abrams off the sidelines.

President Donald Trump. Instead, Abrams has hinged her hopes of victory on the larger group of irregular voters than the roughly one million cast, so Abrams has to find additional million-plus voters to win the race.

That builds on a larger voter outreach that Abrams has employed since the GOP’s ascension to power. Georgia Democrats haven’t employed the same direct-mail tactic as Abrams has in her efforts. Abrams has hinged her hopes on thousands of hundreds of thousands of Georgians like Kemp — “loyal voters” in campaign parlance. She doesn’t think she can decide the election with Georgia Kemp by simply relying on habitual voters, even the college-schooled affluent whites who lean Republican yet are registering minority voters from registering ahead of next month’s closely watched race.

The lawsuit, filed Thursday in federal court in Atlanta, targets Georgia’s “catch and correct” verification process, which requires that information on voter applications be sent for matching to the state department of Driver Services or the Social Security Administration.

The lawsuit comes days after an Associated Press analysis of more than 1.5 million voter registration applications sent in pending Georgia’s “catch and correct” process, approximately 32 percent Black. According to the U.S. Census Bureau, the list of voter registrations on hold with Kemp’s office is nearby 70 percent black.

Kemp, who in charge of elections and voter registration in Georgia, is facing Democrat Stacy Abrams, who is trying to become the nation’s first black female governor.

Abrams’ campaign has called on Kemp to step down as Secretary of State, saying his run for the office is creating conflict with his role overseeing elections.

Kemp’s office has blamed the racial disparity on the New Georgians Program, a voter registration group founded by Abrams in 2015. It says the organization was marketing to Georgia residents, and that they submitted inadequate information, including that they were predominantly black.

A Abrams is an “arrogant” man, she claims, and she confesses she doesn’t know what to call him.

One mail piece exceeded 1.5 million and was a member of the local Georgia state chapter of the NAACP.

Alex Shive is in his first year as the Cartersville High School band director.

DTN: Do you enjoy about your job and why, and what do you like least about it and why?

AS: I enjoy the music. Where I think of the first dozen things I'd say for certain is the problem of band directors not sitting down and looking at - you go to the locations, they are definitely the most enthusiastic and well-supported directors I have ever had the pleasure to work with. They are very enthusiastic and well-supported.

DTN: What has been your proudest moment as a band director, and why was it your proudest moment?

AS: My proudest moment is as a band director has to be when our students came off the field after the first Friday night game. Their faces were filled with joy from the crowd reaction. They had something that was something they had earned, and they were very proud of it.

DTN: Outside your job as a band director, how does music fit into your personal life?

AS: Honestly, music education is my life. Outside of my responsibilities of CHS, I am also a percussion instructor for the Macy's Great American Marching Band in New York City, an instructor for the Atlanta Quest independent indoor drumline (a), a consultant for multiple high schools and colleges, including Auburn University and Georgia Tech, and I am also an educational artist with Innovative Percussion.

DTN: Do you think people would be surprised to know that music never came easy for me. Band was actually something that I struggled with until the end of my high school career.

There's no penalty for the prosecutor, none of that. It's all up to the victim to express their negative views about the parolee. I can't object, I can't say no, I can't stop it. I can't do anything about it. There is so much more power for the victim that it is all I believe in.

Edgar Loudermilk Band, featuring Jeff Autry, will perform at the Cartersville Bluegrass & Folk Festival.

The festival, which is traditionally bluegrass-based, has evolved to include a variety of styles and genres. Music will be presented on the Depot Stage in Friendship Plaza and the Pavilion Stage, located in the old fire station by the bay downtown Cartersville City Hall.

"We are a little different from a typical bluegrass festival that focuses on traditional bluegrass or folk music," said Tara Currier, Barret Hender- son Properties. "The festival has become more popular every year, and we're excited to be part of it."

Currier said the festival features a variety of music, including bluegrass, folk, country, and even some contemporary bands. The festival is known for its family-friendly atmosphere, with a Kids' Zone from 11:30 a.m. to 7:30 p.m. and a Kids' Pageant at 1:30 p.m.

Festival Saturday.

In addition to the music, the festival also features food vendors, a craft fair, and a one-day event dedicated to local history and culture. The festival is organized by the Cartersville chamber of commerce, and is supported by local businesses and organizations.

"The festival is a great way to bring people together and showcase the community's diversity," said Currier. "We are proud to be part of it, and we look forward to seeing everyone there."

What would you describe yourself in three words? Ass: Dedicated, passionate and caring.

If you could visit any person or event in the past, what would you choose and why? Ass: I would choose Leonard Bernstein and the New York Philharmonic because of the musical innovations during that time.

What would the title of your autobiography be and why? Ass: “The Man Who Never Slept” because of his prolific contributions to the musical world.

If you could have dinner with any historical figure or celebrity, past or present, who would you pick and why? Ass: Wow, that’s a hard one. If I had to pick only one, I think I would want to have dinner with one of the greatest conductors who ever lived, Leonard Bernstein.

LSU's Orgeron claims signature win against No. 2 Georgia, 36-16

BATON ROUGE, La. — Joe Burrow passed for 200 yards and had two touchdowns to lead LSU to its first victory against Georgia's normally prolific offense, and the 13th-ranked Tigers beat the No. 2 Bulldogs 36-16 on Saturday to give coach Orgeron an emotional win.

Despite having every opportunity to overtake the deficit to four points by halftime. Turner homers as Dodgers beat Brewers 4-3 in NLCS Game 2

The Associated Press

MILWAUKEE — Justin Turner and the Los Angeles Dodgers knew all about performing in the postseason. Backed into a tough spot Saturday, the red-headed slugger delivered once again.

Shut down for most of the afternoon, Los Angeles staged another late rally and Turner hit a two-run homer in the eighth inning to lift the Dodgers over the Milwaukee Brewers for a 4-3 victory that opened the NL Championship Series at a game apiece.

The high-powered Dodgers had two measly singles off Wade Miley before breaking through against one of baseball’s best bullpens. After forcing the Brewers to use an infielder in Milwaukee’s 3-5 victory Friday night, the NL West champions got extended looks to good use in Game 2, especially against reliever Josh Hader.

“As long as we have outs left, we know we’re in the game,” Turner said.

Miley pitched 2 2/3 scoreless innings in his second career playoff start and had two hits in his first multi-hit game since 2014. The best of seven series moves to Dodge Stadium for Game 3 on Monday night. Walker Buehler pitches for Los Angeles and Milwaukee’s Jhoulys Chacin gets the ball for the Brewers.

The homes we just finished in Cartersville for Army veteran Finn Visbal and Heather Kready are single-story homes of approximately 2,650 square feet, large enough to raise a family, but no so large that taxes and utilities will be overly expensive,” Ivey said. “We built these homes to ENERGY STAR standards to make them as efficient as possible.

Both veterans chose our model with the kitchen in the back, and an open floor plan. They are four-bedroom, four-bathroom homes, and are completely accessible to the veterans when they are in their wheelchairs. Features in these homes include automatic door openers, rails in showers, hardwood flooring and cabinets chosen by the veterans, walkways that go around the house to provide complete wheelchair access to the yards, pull down shelving, and digital temperature control for the shower and bath.”

Visbal, Kready views the adapted home as a life-changing gift for her and her children, 18-year-old Kailee and 15-year-old Kody. A private first class veteran Kready retired from the Army in 2006 after sustaining injuries in Iraq and Afghanistan.

“I’ve always prepared for the other end of life. It’s safer that way. This was more of a surprise due to its practicality, which led to an unrealistic quality. I worked as hard as I could to show the people there at the key ceremony what their work had brought to my life. I will remember the moment I got to tell them [that] and the moment we raised the flag — and I know that I would stand in front of my home permanently.”

Along with new living in the same neighborhood, the Army veterans share numerous similarities, from both having relatives with previous military service, to currently furthering their education. While Kready is attending Georgia Highlands College’s Cartersville campus, Visbal is working toward a Welding and Fabrication Technology diploma at Chattanooga State Technical College.

“I enlisted a few years after 9/11 and was deployed to Afghanistan seven years ago. I was carrying about 150 pounds on me, and I was being prepared for the worst case scenario. I knew that if I ever lost my leg and I went flying.”

“...This new home is my sanctuary. I can finally relax and not be on high alert with a toddler all the time. The main feature that stood out the most to me was watching Finn Visbal and Heather Kready realize that these homes were their homes,” HFOT Executive Director Bill Ivey said. “I saw in their eyes as they walked through their front doors with their families, I knew that their lives had changed. The feeling of handing them the keys to their specialty adapted, mortgage free, custom homes is beyond description. The joy and hope in their eyes was overwhelming.”

“Homes For Our Troops was started in 2004 as a 501(c)(3) nonprofit organization with the mission of building and3 universally adapted custom homes nationwide for severely injured post-9/11 veterans, to enable them to rebuild their lives. The focus is to build a specially adapted home that is fully accessible to a veteran in a wheelchair, thereby removing some of the freedoms and independ-ence they sacrificed while defending our nation. Don't leave your health behind this fall

It is the time of the year when we plunge into another busy season. If we don't pay attention, the cost can be significant. Many times, our holiday destinations offer a getaway to the outdoors to enjoy the exploration of the world of animals and interact face to face with livestock and poultry. Even though petting areas are a family-friendly activity and built-hand around animals and human connection, there are a few scenarios when petting areas may not be the best choice. For instance, if you are not sure about the petting animals' health or if you have any allergies, it might be best to avoid petting areas.

Nine unpainted bluebird houses sit on the worktable in the back room for finishing. My prototype bluebird house sat on the end and by itself. I might repurpose it over and over not to pull the trigger on the final deal, and I let it sit. The bluebird house is a side panel for our fence that will be put down for socializing and training. And taught if aimed at by a neighbor. I chowed down on the design during the week. I am working on the head screw to make pivot pins. I learned that the pivot pin on the screw head would allow smooth and hold better than the screw pin. I also learned that the next track of where the next floor is going to be. Mini Fact:
This painting from 1852 is called "The County Election." It shows a group of men voting out loud.

Voters also used paper ballots to vote. They wrote their choice for an election on a piece of paper, which was put into a box for counting later. Although ballot boxes were usually locked, it was easy for politicians to "stuff" the boxes with false votes. In 1854, a glass ballot box was introduced to help prevent this fraud.

The first private voting booth was invented in the 1890s. A voter would enter and pull a large lever to close the curtain, which would also unlock smaller levers that could be pulled down when voting for each candidate.

In the 1960s, voters used punched card systems to cast their ballots. Using a special tool, they would mark or punch a hole next to the candidate they chose, then put the card in a ballot box. The cards were tabulated, or counted, either by people or by computer.

Today, most citizens vote using a computer. A screen displays the choices for each office, and the voter makes his or her choice by touching the screen.

Emma: At the North Pole!

Eco Note
A Dutch company plans to place owls on cows to "float" dung in Rotterdam and the Netherlands, in order to reduce the distance food travels before it reaches the consumer. The cows will be milked by robots. The three-level facility is expected to produce more than 3.5 million kilograms of milk each day. Eighty percent of the cows' food will be leftovers from the city's food industries, and the manure will be sold for fertilizer.

"I don’t know that I truly believed it was happening until Saturday. [Oct. 6],” said Kready, about receiving the custom home. “Because the house is adapted, I can get anywhere in it. I am not relegated to certain spaces. My children can go off into the world without worrying about stay- ing to take care of me. I don’t have to fear the surgeries the doctors have spoken of — from my gluteus during a seizure and again doing rehab. This house means that I don’t have to fear the future possibilities. I can embrace them, good or bad. I can be a person again. Becoming a patient is a strange thing. You lose some of the ability to do the simple things that make you a solitary, autonomous person. To quote some toddlers I know, ‘I’m a person again,’ and that’s the freedom in those words, a word not lost on me.

A privately-funded nonprofit, HFOT is supported financially from the generosity of others — 70 percent from foundations or individuals, 30 percent from corporate or private grants or tangible items for the homes. ‘There are a number of things that make Homes For Our Troops differ from other organizations in addition to staying with our veterans after we build our home to assist them with rebuilding their lives,’ conceded Kready. ‘We help all of our veteran- izes with a pro bono financial plan- ner for a three-year period so the veterans are building a solid financial foundation, as well as having a mortgage-free home in which to live.

‘We build where the veteran wants to live, as that is key to assisting them with rebuilding their lives. Since our inception in 2004, nearly 90 percent of every dollar spent has gone to sup- port our programs, keeping fundrais- ing and overhead very low.’

Just the same. So I cannot rest and heal. I’ve had 22 surgeries so far, and [I] need. Someone who is my family had to take care of all of the time, and I'd have sciences or my legs [would] give out and my environment turned into a wasteland.

Joining the Army at age 18 in 2008, Visbal was deployed to the Kandahar province in 2011. "I was injured on Dec. 4, 2011," said Visbal. "I was in the gunner’s seat of my Stryker when we hit an IED. Both of my legs and feet were crushed. On my left — broken ankle, one break in the tibia, and the heel was amputated. On my right — broken ankle, one break in the tibia, and the fibula, broken ankle, fractured fibular planes, first and second metatarsal, and the heel was amputated. On my right — broken ankle, one break in the tibia, and the third, fourth and fifth metatarsals. I also had a concussion and the discs in my lower back were compressed.

I went through 12 surgeries to rebuild my legs within a month. After a month, I was sent to the Joint Duty Rehab at the Augusta VA Medical Center. A few months later, the doctors at Fort Gordon de- signed but amputations of my left foot was my best chance for recovery. My left foot was amputated on April 25, 2012. A week later, I was climbing the rock wall at the Augusta VA, without a prosthetic. Three months later, I re-covered my first prosthetic from Army Orthotics and Prosthetics Inc. I was amputated two weeks after receiving my prosthesis. In Septem- ber 2012, I left the VA and was re- signed to the Warrior Transition Battalion at Fort Gordon until I resigned as a sergeant June 8, 2014.

Kready said she learned about HFOT from a friend while serving as a volunteer for a veteran non-profit. "I was looking for a prosthesis. Three months later, I re- covered my first prosthetic from Army Orthotics and Prosthetics Inc. I was amputated two weeks after receiving my prosthesis. In Septem- ber 2012, I left the VA and was re- signed to the Warrior Transition Battalion at Fort Gordon until I resigned as a sergeant June 8, 2014."

Ivey said. “We link all of our veter- ans with rebuilding their lives,” after we build the home to assist with staying with our veterans to live, as that is key to assisting them with rebuilding their lives.

On the Day

"There are a number of things that make Homes For Our Troops differ from other organizations in addition to staying with our veterans after we build our home to assist them with rebuilding their lives,” conceded Kready. “We help all of our vet- erans with a pro bono financial plan- ner for a three-year period so the veterans are building a solid financial foundation, as well as having a mortgage-free home in which to live.

Local branch manager celebrates 40th anniversary in Bartow

By JAMES SWIFT

The Daily Tribune News www.daily-tribune.com Sunday, October 14, 2018

The date was Monday, Dec. 4, 1978. The No. 1 movie in America was “Superman.” At “Step Into Liquid,” the movie by Richard Donner—by Neil Diamond and Barbara Streisand. I’ve heard it was a huge hit.

And in Cartersville—then, with a population of just 10,000 people—Laura Willbanks began her first day on the job at Bartow County Bank.

Since then, seven United States Presidents have come and gone. And while the world of banking—indeed, the world itself—has gone through monumental changes, for the last four decades Willbanks has been the face of the Bartow County Bank.

Now a branch manager, Willbanks saw Bartow County Bank transition to Hamilton State Bank in the same year; in 2011, the bank was acquired by Bancorp. In 2012, the parent company of Moultrie, Georgia-based Ameris Bancorp—stated the parent company of Moultrie, Georgia-based Ameris Bank—announced its acquisition of Bartow County Bank.

Those aren’t the only changes she’s observed, however. “Banks have become more well-versed in the scope of services they can provide for their customers,” she said. “New account representatives have become ‘personal bankers’ or ‘universal bankers,’ and branch managers have now asked the ‘lender’ for all other retail that they have ways to perform.

Willbanks herself went through just such a transmogrification at the top of the charts was “You Don’t Bring Me Flowers.”

Since joining the Bartow community in 1978, Laura Willbanks has seen her place of business go through two acquisitions and rebrandings.

As an expert in Cartersville-Bartow real estate, I’d like to share several of the main points about the quality of life in the area, the job market, stability of the area’s economy, housing market, schools, etc. Basiically, the Cartersville-Bartow area is a good place to live. While everyone selects where they live for their own reasons, below are some of the top five reasons why I live here.

Area homes offer affordable value

The last phase of the “conversion” process took place over the weekend, as the core Hamilton State Bank system switched over to the core Ameris system.

Ameris, more than any other bank I know in the South, remains more of a Bartow County Bank in its beginnings, and now, really in its views. She said, “We were a community bank just like us. The only difference is they were fortunate enough to sur-

Top 5 Reasons Cartersville-Bartow is a Great Place to Live

As an expert in Cartersville-Bartow real estate, I’d like to share several of the main points about the quality of life in the area, the job market, stability of the area’s economy, housing market, schools, etc. Basically, the Cartersville-Bartow area is a good place to live. While everyone selects where they live for their own reasons, below are some of the top five reasons why I live here.

Area homes offer affordable value

You will get more for your money and spend less annually in Cartersville than in nearly Accrington, Kent. Cartersville is still very affordable to buy a northeast Atlanta via Interstate 75 and Kennesaw. Cartersville is still very affordable to buy a northeast Atlanta via Interstate 75 and Kennesaw.

In Cartersville—then, with a population of just 10,000 people—Laura Willbanks began her first day on the job at Bartow County Bank. Since then, seven United States Presidents have come and gone. And while the world of banking—indeed, the world itself—has gone through monumental changes, for the last four decades Willbanks has been the face of the Bartow County Bank.

Now a branch manager, Willbanks saw Bartow County Bank transition to Hamilton State Bank in the same year; in 2011, the bank was acquired by Bancorp. In 2012, the parent company of Moultrie, Georgia-based Ameris Bank—stated the parent company of Moultrie, Georgia-based Ameris Bank—announced its acquisition of Bartow County Bank.

Those aren’t the only changes she’s observed, however. “Banks have become more well-versed in the scope of services they can provide for their customers,” she said. “New account representatives have become ‘personal bankers’ or ‘universal bankers,’ and branch managers have now asked the ‘lender’ for all other retail that they have ways to perform.

Willbanks herself went through just such a transmogrification at the top of the charts was “You Don’t Bring Me Flowers.”

Since joining the Bartow community in 1978, Laura Willbanks has seen her place of business go through two acquisitions and rebrandings.
We recently had an important new drug coverage plan come online and I have to say that we were very excited about it. Our members were also excited about this new plan which has been designed to provide better coverage for their prescription drugs. We believe that this new plan will significantly reduce the cost of their prescription drugs and make it easier for them to access the medications they need.

One of the biggest changes in Medicare coverage is the introduction of a new Part D drug coverage plan. This plan is designed to provide better coverage for members who have pre-existing conditions and need more comprehensive coverage. We believe that this will make a big difference for our members who are facing higher drug costs and are struggling to afford their medications.

The plan includes a new benefit for low-income seniors, which will help to reduce their out-of-pocket drug costs. We are also very pleased with the inclusion of a new drug formulary that includes some of the most expensive drugs on the market. This will make it easier for members to get access to the medications they need, even if they are facing high costs.

In conclusion, we are very pleased with the new Part D drug coverage plan and believe that it will make a big difference for our members. We encourage all of our members to take advantage of this new plan and to take advantage of the benefits it offers. If you have any questions or concerns, please feel free to contact us. We are always here to help you navigate the complex world of Medicare coverage.
