No change in deputy's condition; blood drive on Sunday

By Kevin Fambrough

The Livingston Parish News DENHAM SPRINGS — There has been no change in the condition of wounded East Baton Rouge Parish Deputy Nick Tullier, according to a social media post by his father.

Meanwhile a benefit is scheduled for Tullier on Saturday and a blood drive is set for Sunday, both in Denham Springs. "Just an update on Nick: No change. No better but no worse. So that's not a bad thing," said his father, James, in a message posted early Monday morning on the Facebook page "Nick Tullier Strong."

"No surgery since late last week. This phenomenal medical staff is

"He is still extreme critical. Please keep caring and most important please keep praying for Nick.

The Nick Tullier Benefit, sponsored by Backing the Blue, will begin at 10 a.m. Saturday at Dodge City Veterinary Hospital, 102 Hatchell Lane. It will feature a tent sale, bake sale and silent auction.

All of the proceeds will go to the Nick Tullier Benefit Fund and Backing the Blue for his medical expenses and "to provide officers better protection," according to its announcement. To donate items for the auction, contact Melynda Smith, (225) 291-9360.

Board member Thomas Lay cast the lone vote to grant the request.

The city grants former employees a 60-day window to air their grievances to the Civil Service Board.

Kistler's appeal was set to begin Monday, Aug. 1 this week at City Hall.

His hearing would have followed an appeals hearing for former DSPD Paul Scott Jones, which stretched over five nights and ended June 1.

they already voted to the termination of Jones, which they believe would put impartiality at question.

Kistler argues in his lawsuit against the city that he did not act illegally when he chose to issue a summons rather than arrest City Councilman Davis, although 21st Judicial District Attorney Scott Perrilloux ordered the councilman's arrest in February in compliance of state law related to domestic abuse cases.

"The board is the tribunal that hears the appeal. In this particular case, because the board is neutral, the board will not express its way one way or another.

"The bottom line is that in this case. Mr. Kistler and his lawyer waived the sixty-day deadline and made sure they were very specific about that and made it very clear they were waiving it," Olinde said.

Olinde said he would not take a stand on the court's decision on continuance.

"The board is completely neutral and won't take position on this issue," he said. "The most the board may do is to provide information to the court so the court can make the decision it decides to make."

Mayor Gerard Landry terminated Kistler.

A vote by the council was not required for Landry to fire the police captain.

Landry on Feb. 17 placed Jones and Kistler on paid administrative leave for the duration of a six-week investigation on their handling of an alleged domestic abuse case that involved City Councilman Chris Davis and his wife Robyn.

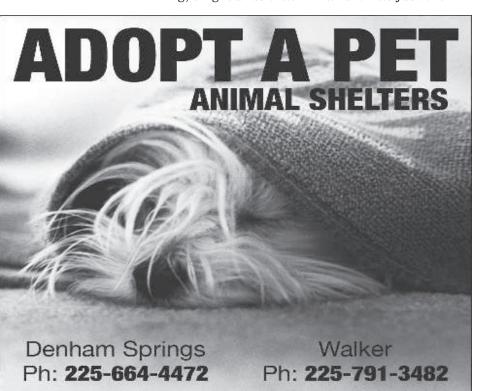

City Police first obtained an arrest warrant for Councilman Davis, but opted for a summons after his wife recanted her story about a head injury she sustained in an argument with her husband.

She told police the injury was accidental.

The committee reviewed volumes of documents, interviewed witnesses and listened to audio related to the handling of the Davis case.

Davis turned himself into authorities Feb. 11 for booking on a charge of simple battery domestic violence stemming from the incident.

He was allowed to post the standard bail of $1.500.

Assess the Need program helps 2,500 prepare for class

By Kevin Fambrough

The Livingston Parish News

WALKER — Tuesday's heat did not impress Jeff Taylor; the Livingston Parish assessor knows summer in his home parish.

But for the 16th year, he still is awed by the outpouring by parish residents to the Assess the Need program, which helps children have the proper supplies to begin the school year.

"I've traveled this state and country with my parents, who are ministers, and two brothers are ministers, but I've never found people with more generosity in their hearts than here," Taylor said.

The 2016 Assess the Need campaign rolled Tuesday morning when vehicles from parish schools rolled up to the Livingston Parish Literacy and Technology Center in Walker to pick up school supplies

This year's efforts will help from 2,500 to 2,700 children, "Maybe more," Taylor said, since the program has added children in foster care to its list.

"Maybe 3,000," he said.
"Kids have moved from the back of the class to the front of the class," because they have the school supplies they need, Taylor said.

The assessor is quick to say Assess the Need is not a Jeff Taylor program. "The people of Livingston Parish are doing this," he said, with more than $600,0000 in donations, and school supplies, received in 16 years.

It took volunteers three days to sort the orders by school and stack them separately in the automotive area, said Krysta Watts, Assess the Need coordinator, and an Assessor's Office employee.

The supplies, bound in

The supplies, bound in shrink-wrap, were unloaded by a fork-lift from a flat-bed truck, Watts said, both donated by Volks Construction.

And what used to take three days to deliver to schools is handed out in less than five hours.

authority," Taylor said.
"I just put it together," Watts said.

Watts' role starts in February, contacting principals to get an estimate of what much is needed in school supplies, and corporate sponsors, who usually donate from $500 to $1,500 annually.

Donations buy school supplies in bulk using a basic school supply list for elementary, junior high and high schools so age-appropriate supplies go to the right location, she said.

"I can't say enough about the Assessor's Office workers," Taylor said of his 30 employees who volunteer their spare time.

When his office closes at 5:30 p.m., "They sit down and ask what do we need to do next week and next month," he said.

"We depend heavily on volunteers," Watts added, estimating another 250 volunteers help at the Wal-marts in Denham Springs, Walker and Watson.

After the school distribution ended, volunteers were going to the Wal-marts to collect donations to be sorted and packaged.

As the school year goes on, Watts said, Assess the Need will help new students who might move into the parish, children who enter foster care or families who lose everything in a fire or flood.

"People only see us at the beginning of school, but we work year-round," she said.

To make 2017 a success, Watts will be planning October's Chef Showcase, its major fundraiser.

The school superintendent said the social media campaign includes the web site LPsocialmedia@lpsb.org in addition to its regular web site, www.lpsb.ord.

The school system is joining the Twitter world with the Twitter handle LivingstonPPS and the hash tags #LPpride, #LPRocks and #Sumacenter

"We're branding our schools. We're getting our story out," Wentzel said.

Some of the good news from the summer was that the Louisiana Teacher of the Year honors were brought to Albany Middle School as seventh-grade science teacher Joni Smith received the honor.

Livingston Parish also got good news last week that student scores on the ACT test were up.

The school system's overall score was 20.5, an increase of 0.4 from 2014, according to the state Department of Education.

In the greater Baton Rouge area, Livingston is tied for fourth with West Feliciana, behind Central Community Schools, 21.1; Zachary Community Schools, 20.7; and Ascension Parish, 20.6

Central actually dropped 0.2 from 2014, while Zachary went up 0.5 and Ascension remained the same.

A total of 26 school systems out of 75 are above the state average of 19.4, according to the state Department of Education. The state average in 2014 was 19.2.

"Not every state gives the ACT to every student like we do in Louisiana," Wentzel said. "We're continuing to grow, improve and offer opportunities for learning. We're really focused on that."

One of those new opportunities is the Jump Start initiative started by the state Department of Education.

Jump Start is Louisiana's new career and technical education program to prepare students to go directly into the workforce.

Among the 47 "pathways" offered are web design, digital media, cybersecurity, auto service, welding, masonry, carpenter, electrician, plumber, pipefitter, HVAC technician, nursing assistant, basic EMT and hospitality and tourism management.

A groundbreaking at Walker High School this summer kicked off a major improvement project that will add a two-story, 31-class building, a new library, gym, cafeteria, band room and a vocational-technical education building for agriculture, carpentry and welding classes.

"(Walker Principal) Jason St. Pierre has been on the forefront on workforce opportunities and other schools are joining in," Wentzel said.

Recent additions to the campus have been a credit union, Marine Corps ROTC program and digital media studio, home of Wildcats Productions.

While the school system is prepared for the excitement at the start of another school year, Wentzel said schools also are ready for any fallouts from the tragedies of this summer.

The news media and social media have bombarded children with the shooting death of a Baton Rouge man, the demonstrations that followed, the slayings of five police officers in Dallas, then the ambush slaying of three law enforcement officers and wounding of three more in Baton Rouge.

Children may react to this in many

"We know parents will be taking care of what they need to," to ease children's concerns, Wentzel said, but schools will be ready.

"We're going to be proactive," Wentzel said.

Guidance counselors and the supervisor for guidance of counselors will take the lead, the superintendent said.

"This is kind of situational," Wentzel said about the school system's approach.

Guidance counselors will address any problems based on the individual student, he said.

"We're always concerned about safety. We're made principals aware of that and they deal with it every day.

"These tragedies affect teachers as well as our communities. All of our communities are close-knit," Wentzel said. Wentzel said he sees the numerous prayer vigils held locally as a positive step.

"They need those kind of things.

Those are therapeutic," Wentzel said. Professional development for teachers and administrators also will have an "increased emphasis," Wentzel said, that will pass down into the

Slick Clinton strategy to cope with scandal

(McHugh David is on vacation this week. In place of his "Follow the Money" column, we will revisit a column from May 7, 2015, when his father, the late Jeff David, discussed the start of the Hillary Clinton presidential campaign, which has since led to her nomination in a race against Republican nominee Donald Trump in November.)

'y own personal opinion about the Clinton Foundation is that it's a ruse of many dimensions. But the "not-for-profit" route has become a well-used one in 21st Century America, and as former President Clinton repeatedly points out, there's nothing illegal about it.

Or so he hopes.

A4

Shielded behind carefully crafted nooks and crannies of the Internal Revenue Code, trillions of dollars stay out of the greedy reach of Uncle Sam's tax collectors each and every day. The Clinton version is only one of many. But few who indulge in the massive tax dodge, slowly but surely created through years of expensive lobbying, dare to expose their financial dealings to the extent required by candidates for the modern American presidency.

As Mr. Clinton himself learned the hard way, life as a White House occupant or even a White House wannabe is life in the goldfish bowl. If you engage in inappropriate sexual activities in the Oval Office after normal business hours, the whole world will be watching, Mr. President.

Selling out on your fame as a former President and First Lady is one thing. Selling out, and then declaring yourself a candidate for the presidency is quite another. It takes gall. And if nothing else, the Clintons possess a helluva nerve.

The conservative columnist George Will recently observed amidst the media blitz directed at the Clinton Foundation that the former President and his wife appear to share one character trait in common: It is impossible to embarrass either one of them. Mr. Will, unlike both Bill and Hillary, is not a lawyer and never exposed himself to the rigors of a legal education. He does not understand that after three years of standing up in front of a law school class and having a law professor beat your ego to a pulp, you learn that embarrassment pays no dividend

No, Bill and Hillary Clinton will not back off of their Foundation one inch. She is a committed candidate and no matter how embarrassing revelations of the Foundations activities may prove to be, she will not pull out. She will continue to stand on her feet and keep talking. That's the way you get to be a lawyer.

Ms. Clinton's current difficulties have made not one dent in the Democratic Party faithful. Most of them assume she is the nominee already. The fear is that if they don't hop on the Clinton bandwagon early, it will pass them by. That's good news for Ms. Clinton, who will carry the Northeast and West Coast states as the Democratic candidate no matter what revelations come to light about her.

But there is, at least for the moment, a visible chink in m'lady's armor. The independent voters in the swing states where the next presidential election will be decided have jumped off of Ms. Clinton in droves. The destroyed e-mail server scandal and the current media frenzy to examine the Clinton Foundation have eroded the former Secretary of State's credibility with this important voting segment. Even in New Hampshire, considered a sure-shot winner for the Democratic candidate in 2016, recent polls show unaffiliated voters moving away from

Ms. Clinton. Instead of beating all possible Republican opponents in the early polls, New Hampshire voters put her in a dead heat with a "generic" Republican, you name him/her.

Ms. Clinton probably won't lose New Hampshire in the 2016 general election, but she may very well lose the key states of Florida, Ohio, Iowa, Wisconsin and Colorado where current polls also show a substantial erosion of support for her among swing voters

The Clinton campaign faces a major repair job in the aforementioned key states, a job which they fumbled so far. The first faux pas was to put out front the Clinton's only child Chelsea, a bona fide trust fund baby with a Stanford degree, who pronounced to a waiting public the many virtues of the family enterprise. Yeah, sure kid.

It got worse when reporters were welcomed aboard a Bill Clinton trip to Africa where the Foundation was to be shown doing wonderful things for the poor people of that continent. What came out was an awkward interview with the former President during which he put his foot in his mouth several times and came off looking like . . . well, like Slick Willie.

That's really the nature of the Clinton response to trouble. Slick. It was slick to destroy e-mails that might have exposed some serious misdeeds by both Clintons, but especially by Ms. Clinton whose activities as Secretary of State remain under congressional investigation. It was slick to throw Chelsea out front to take on the media while her mother hid behind a veil of busy appointments. It was slick to take reporters along for a ride to Africa courtesy of the do-good Foundation.

Slick doesn't always work, but over the long run the political and financial success enjoyed by Bill and Hillary Clinton shows that slick works often enough. America's leading couple is hoping it will work one more time.

Mental health services vital to parish well-being he rating by the state Department of Health and Hospitals that puts Livingston Parish at the bottom of the heap for availability of mental health services per capita income should come as a concern to residents and public officials alike.

It's not necessarily a sign that Livingston Parish reports more cases of post-traumatic stress disorder, child abuse or other issues that could pose long-term mental and emotional anguish.

In fact, Livingston Youth and Family Counseling Inc. Director Martha Wilson was quick to point out last week that it's our rapid growth of population – coupled with the inability to bring more services to the area – that relegates our parish to the nadir.

Even so, we must not take solace in that sad designation.

Mass murder in the recent months – actually, several years - should raise the level of urgency to provide more availability of mental health services in the area. In nearly all cases, the assailants have suffered from PTSD or other mental-health

The first thing we could do is insist the Capital Area United Way restore funding it cut from the LYFC, which has provided services to residents of the area for the past 32 years.

At the office in Denham Springs, counselors offer services for those coping with bipolar disorder, depression or the hardships of transition, such as divorce, custody battles, loss of loved ones or PTSD – all issues that could have long-lasting effects if not addressed in the early

Insurance now serves as the major funding mechanism for LYFC, but we need services available to those who cannot otherwise afford them,

Community leaders in business and government should step up to the plate and make the expansion of these services a major priority.

We also can help by supporting the LYFC's fundraiser, set for Aug. 27 at PARDS.

Livingston Parish has made significant progress in many areas in the past few decades. We have two outstanding physical health-care facilities, both of which continue to grow by leaps and Now it's time to take the same approach to mental health.

lable of radio chatter gives the former klansman a chance to build on his current candidacy in the U.S. Senate race. But the fact remains that he is a candidate, one with universal name recognition in Louisiana. Ignoring Duke will not make him go away.

Still, many people think something — anything – needs to be done. That's why there are informal talks in some corners of the state Republican Party about offering a bulk endorsement to all of the major GOP candidates. Except for Duke. It's part of an ongoing castigation of Duke, for which practically every Republican of note has already added his voice to the chorus.

It's probably not a popular idea amongst the other candidates, though, as supporters of Treasurer John Kennedy and retired Air Force Col. Rob Maness are already trying to gather enough signatures from the Republican State Central Committee to get an endorsement for their respective camp. Those efforts, however, are in their infant stages and other candidates are hoping for the same. If it does come down to a vote of the central committee, it may happen at the body's next meeting on Aug. 27.

As a backup plan, Republican leaders also are considering a change to the GOP's state bylaws to ban candidates from using the elephant party label on ballots if they are convicted felons or are current or former members of hate groups. Duke has been convicted of tax evasion.

And, as former Gov. Edwin Edwards noted during their 1991 gubernatorial runoff, "The only thing we have in common is that we both have been wizards beneath the sheets." A KKK grand wizard in Duke's case. So such a change in the GOP's bylaws would hit Duke on both fronts. That conversation too could end up on the agenda for next month's Republican State Central Committee meeting. Forum and debate organizers, meanwhile, are quietly considering how to handle Duke's inclusion – or more like exclusion. While establishing a high monetary threshold for fundraising requirements will do the job, most candidate gatherings also have guidelines for showings in polls.

Which brings up a good question. What is Duke polling at in Louisiana these days? Martin Johnson, the LSU political science professor who holds the Kevin P. Reilly Chair at the Manship School of Mass Communication, believes the runoff candidates from a field of two dozen will likely pull electoral shares in the low 20s. When he last ran for the U.S. Senate in 1996, Duke had a fourth place finish with 12 percent.

Yet with 24 candidates on the ballot, debate organizers have every reason to want to limit the number of candidates. So there will be hurt feelings — even for contenders not named Duke. It has actually already happened, with Denham Springs lawyer Caroline Favard criticizing the Louisiana chapter of the National Federation of Independent Business for not including her in its recent forum and former legislator Troy Hebert issuing a statement last week questioning why the Louisiana Municipal Association squeezed him out with its criteria.

It's all about the free or earned media, like this column, for Duke in his bid for the U.S. Senate. He won't be able to spend the same kind of money he did in previous races, especially compared with 1991. So he needs the kind of coverage few reporters probably want to churn out, but will anyway. The social media clickbait potential is too high and Duke has added an unsettling twist to this race that quite simply makes for good copy about bad things.

All things considered, though, there's not a lot of concern about Duke making it to the runoff at this point. Nonetheless, his radical views will probably siphon votes from the right, hurting most the candidacies of Maness, particularly, and to a lesser degree Congressman John Fleming.

Maness, for his part, has launched an all-out war on Duke on social media and in news releases. Then there are the firsttime candidates who are trying to gain traction against a ghost from Louisiana's political past. They want reporters to pay attention to them instead of listening to the only candidate who's campaigning to "stop the ethnic cleansing of America.'

New Orleans businessman Abhay Patel, an Indian-American candidate whose platform mirrors the issues embraced by the tea party movement in Louisiana's 2014 U.S. Senate race, is getting around this by asking Duke to debate him directly. There's no word from Duke yet, but it may be the last debate invitation he receives.

For those Louisiana voters disgusted by Duke's entrance in the race, the last thing they should do is tune him out. History, whether it's from yesteryear or currently in the making, should never be ignored. It's how we learn and grow.

If you're downright furious that Duke wants your vote, then please be sure to show up on Nov. 8 to give it to another candidate. Because they want it too.

ing the U.S. might not honor its NATO commitment, under Article 5, to fight Russia for Estonia, our foreign policy elites declaimed, Trump has undermined the security architecture that has kept the peace for 65 years.

More interesting, however, was the reaction of Middle America. Or, to be more exact, the nonreaction.

Americans seem neither shocked nor horrified. What does this suggest?

BUCHANAN

Behind the war guarantees America has issued to scores of nations in Europe, the Mideast and Asia since 1949, the bedrock of public support that existed during the Cold War has crumbled. We got a hint of this in 2013. President Obama, claiming his "red line" against any use of poison gas in Syria had been crossed, found he had no public backing for air and missile strikes on the Assad regime.

The country rose up as one and told him to for-

We have been at war since 2001. And as one looks on the ruins of Afghanistan, Iraq, Syria, Libya and Yemen, and adds up the thousands dead and wounded and trillions sunk and lost, can anyone say our War Party has served us well?

On bringing Estonia into NATO, no Cold War president would have dreamed of issuing so insane a war guarantee.

Eisenhower refused to intervene to save the Hungarian rebels. JFK refused to halt the building of the Berlin Wall. LBJ did nothing to impede the Warsaw Pact's crushing of the Prague Spring. Reagan never considered moving militarily to halt the smashing of Solidarity.

Were all these presidents cringing isolationists? Rather, they were realists who recognized that, though we prayed the captive nations would one day be free, we were not going to risk a world war, or a nuclear war, to achieve it. Period.

In 1991, President Bush told Ukrainians that any declaration of independence from Moscow would be an act of "suicidal nationalism."

Today, Beltway hawks want to bring Ukraine into NATO. This would mean that America would go to war with Russia, if necessary, to preserve an independence Bush I regarded as "suicidal."

Have we lost our minds?

The first NATO supreme commander, Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, said if U.S. troops were still in Europe in 10 years, NATO would be a failure. In 1961, he urged JFK to start pulling U.S. troops out, lest Europeans become military dependencies of the United States.

Was Ike not right? Even President Obama today riffs about the "free riders" on America's defense. Is it really so outrageous for Trump to ask how long the U.S. is to be responsible for defending rich Europeans who refuse to conscript their soldiers or pay the cost of their own defense, when Eisenhower was asking that same question 55 years ago?

In 1997, geostrategist George Kennan warned that moving NATO into Eastern Europe "would be the most fateful error of American policy in the post-Cold War era." He predicted a fierce nationalistic Russian response.

Was Kennan not right? NATO and Russia are today building up forces in the eastern Baltic where no vital U.S. interests exist, and where we have never fought before -- for that very reason.

There is no evidence Russia intends to march into Estonia, and no reason for her to do so. If she did, how would NATO expel Russian troops without air and missile strikes that would devastate that tiny country?

And if we killed Russians inside Russia, are we confident Moscow would not resort to tactical atomic weapons to prevail?

After all, Russia cannot back up any further. We are right in her face.

On this issue Trump seems to be speaking for the silent majority and certainly raising issues that need to be debated.

How long are we to be committed to go to war to defend the tiny Baltic republics against a Russia that could overrun them in 72 hours?

When, if ever, does our obligation end? If it is eternal, is not a clash with a revanchist and anti-American Russia inevitable?

Are U.S. war guarantees in the Baltic republics even credible?

If the Cold War generations of Americans were unwilling to go to war with a nuclear-armed Soviet Union over Hungary and Czechoslovakia, are the millennials ready to fight a war with Russia over Estonia?

Needed now is diplomacy.

The trade-off: Russia ensures the independence of the Baltic republics that she let go. And NATO gets out of Russia's face.

Should Russia dishonor its commitment, economic sanctions are the answer, not another European war.

CALL & COMMENT

I never have to wonder who to vote for. I simply listen who the liberal media and Hollywood supports. Easy choice.

A CBS News poll revealed last week that 67 percent of voters do not think Hillary Clinton is honest and trustworthy. Her campaign manager, Robby Mack, says voters will trust her after she is elected president. Sound familiar? Remember when talking about Obama Care, Nancy Polosi told us that we have to pass the bill before we know what's in it? This is the same liberal sauce they feed voters over and over hoping we are all stupid enough to ingest it and believe in it. Fortunately, not every voter is as stupid as some people think.

Former New York Governor Michael Bloomberg, a registered Independent, a billionaire, and 10 times richer than Donald Trump, made this comment during the Democratic National Convention, "Throughout his career, Trump has left behind a well-documented record of bankruptcies, thousands of lawsuits, angry shareholders, and contractors who feel cheated, and disillusioned customers who feel ripped off. Trump says he wants to run the nation like he's run his business. God help us. I'm a New Yorker, and New Yorkers know a con when we see one.'

NOTE: WE ENCOURAGE A HEALTHY DEBATE OF IDEAS. PLEASE REFRAIN FROM NAME-CALLING AGAINST OTHER CONTRIBUTORS WITH WHOM YOU DISAGREE.

Any voter who is black and votes for the Democratic Party, which founded the KKK, is either showing their ignorance from the dumbing down from politicians and a liberal school system, or are showing they really have no real convictions.

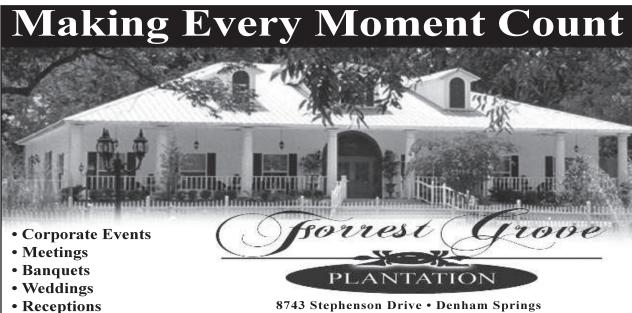

George H.W. Bush negotiated and signed off on NAFTA with the leaders of Mexico and Canada. The agreement was sent to Congress for ratification with the majority of Republicans voting to approve NAFTA, while the majority of Democrats voted against it. In the meantime, Bill Clinton became president and signed off on NAFTA in 1993. Considering Republican presidents negotiated NAFTA, and the majority voting for NAFTA in congress were Republicans while the majority of Democrats voted against it, one could say NAFTA is really a Republican Agreement. Bush Jr. made no effort to terminate NAFTA. The U.S. Chamber of Commerce credits NAFTA with increasing U.S. trade in goods and services with Canada and Mexico from $337 billion in 1993 to $1.2 trillion in 2011. The WSJ reported last May, "Evidence suggests that China's full entrance into the global economy helps explain this under-performance, but NAFTA had nothing to do with this.'

So Hillary is going to build roads, bridges, give more cash to schools, firefighters, police, help the VA, help the middle class, increase the minimum wage, and just make all things better, just like Obama did. Need I say more?

It astonishing that the Democratic Party was once pro-life without question. Fast forward to today and Hillary believes that killing an unborn child all the way up to nine months should be a garmented right for any reason at all. If that doesn't show us how far away these people are from God and how closely they have aligned themselves with the devil, I don't know what does. Shame on anyone who votes for these Democrats.

not uncommon to rural areas, Wilson said.

"I love it here because I'm from a small town in Mississippi and I love the community feel of Denham Springs, but nobody wants to think there are problems with bipolar behavior, for example" she said. "But everywhere you go in this state and across this world, there will be problems.'

Transition covers the majority of the counseling cases. It can range from issues of family divorce and custody battle to grieving the loss of a family member and dealing with post-traumatic stress disorder.

Children and families represent the largest demographic, but adult cases also make up a sizable portion of the case load.

"We've had kids as young as two or three, and many of them were referred by CASA (Court Appointed Special Advocacy)," Wilson said. "What's very sad to hear is that the CASA director told me the child abuse cases almost doubled between 2010 and 2016."

Insurance has become the biggest means of funding for LCFY.

The group now turns to fundraising to make up the funds lost by budget cuts.

The Denham Springsbased group covers a five-parish region that also includes St. Helena, St. Tammany, Tangipahoa and Washington parishes.

The LFYC began 34 years ago as a bureau to help youth deal with family troubles.

It hopes the upcoming "Evening in the Park" gala 6-10 p.m. Aug. 27 at PARDS on Eden Church Road. The event will feature multiple entrees, both hot and cold dishes. The ticket price of

The event will also allow include the drawing for a raffle of two LSU season football tickets.

Deal to allow Chief Brignac to finish out term on Dec. 31

From A1

Hughes Foster presided over the objection case Monday. Prior to the hearing, BOE attorneys struck a deal with Brignac that would allow him to remain in office until his term expires Dec. 31.

The French Settlement Board of Aldermen will likely appoint an interim chief until an election can take place to fill the vacant seat.

The vote would come just over a year after tensions flared between Brignac and the aldermen when the village asked voters to decide whether the position of police chief should remain an elected post or become and appointed position.

Brignac, 69, was elected to the office in 1984. He went unopposed in three elections.

The BOE stated in records that it provides objection to candidacy of a candidate based on the grounds that the defendant falsely certified notice of candidacy that he does now owe any outstanding fines, fees or penalties pursuant to the Code of Governmental Ethics.

Brignac did not state on the form that he did not owe the money, but Board of Ethics provides each Clerk of Court office a list of delinquencies on fines for violation.

Records indicate Brignac failed to file his 2013 Tier 3 annual personal financial disclosure statement by May 15, 2014. The Board of Ethics issued him a Notice of Delinquency demanding he filed the statement within seven days.

The BOE on June 26, 2015 ordered Brignac to pay $1,500 in late fees for failure to file the disclosure statement. The Board issued a "final and absolute" assessment of late fees on Brignac for failure to pay the fees by Feb. 11, 2015, according to records.

"Mr. Brignac, again, has never filed the report, nor has he requested a waiver of the late fee nor appealed the Late Fee Order," the Board stated in its objection.

The Board states it issued a demand for payment Aug. 18, 2015 "in an attempt to amicably resolve the matter."

The BOE also stated that Brignac's failure to pay would result in the matter being transferred to the Attorney General's Office for collection "and that his failure to pay would have an adverse effect on his ability to run for office in the future." The Board stated it issued Objection of Candidacy letters Aug. 27, 2015 and June 8 which stated that nonpayment would lead to its attempt to halt a reelection bid.

The BOE imposed the second fine on Brignac after it said he failed to file a 2014 Tier 3 personal financial disclosure statement on May 15, 2015. He received a Notice of Delinquency on Nov. 4, 2015, in which the Board demanded payment within two Nearly 80 percent of the votes cast in a Nov. 21 election in French Settlement asked the village to keep the police chief's post an elected position.

It remains uncertain when a special election would take place. Secretary of State Tom Schindler would make the decision based on dates either for spring or fall of next year.

The Secretary of State's office cannot take any action on the matter until Foster signs off on the original judgment once it reaches the Clerk of Court's Office, which must forward it to Schindler's office.

"We won't know when anything will take place until the signed judgment reaches the Secretary of State's Office," Livingston Parish Clerk of Court Tom Sullivan said.

"Until she signs that judgment, the Secretary of State won't do anything at all – including speculating as to what will happen or make a statement or anything else.'

A March 25 primary election would be the earliest date in 2017 to let village voters decide on a police chief, according to the Secretary of State website.

Mayoral primaries in Springfield and Killian are already scheduled for that date. Run-off elections - if necessary – would be held April 29.

"Those are the next elections scheduled, but I won't speculate on which one it would be," Sullivan said. "It's too early to tell."

Not until the cows come home

Womacks among last of dairy farmers

By John Dupont The Livingston Parish News DENHAM SPRINGS -Dairy farmers Victor and Joy Womack survived droughts, floods, hurricanes and tornadoes – and now they face a bigger challenge.

This time, it comes from the industry itself, said Maurepas native Joy Womack, who spoke at the July 7 meeting of the Kiwanis Club of Denham Springs.

The Womacks – who operate the last remaining dairy farm in East Baton Rouge Parish – represent a dying breed.

They were among 1,500 dairy farmers statewide in the 1980s when they began overseeing the farm Victor's father started in 1952.

In 34 years, that number has dwindled to 90. Some milk is shipped from out of the state, much of it from Arkansas and Florida, Joy said. The Womacks still enjoy the work, despite the mounting hardships. "It's a hard living, but a good life," she said. "It keeps us close to family, close to the earth and keeps us in good health.'

Womack Dairy, a Zachary-based farm, provides milk for Kleinpeter Dairy Products.

The farm sells its milk at a price of $14.64 per 100 pounds, she said. "We're not getting rich selling milk," Joy Womack said. "We pay our selves out of our check and the hauling is taken out every time we get a check. Do the math."

The Womacks milk around 80 cows a day in the summer and 110 in the fall on an 800-acre farm.

"It's an eight-day-aweek, thirty-six hour day, as I've told my children," Joy Womack said.

"There is no time you can really call your own."

A typical day for Victor begins shortly after midnight, when he heads out to the pasture to feed the cattle.

He goes to sleep after sunrise, naps and then heads to the dairy farm, where he endures the extremities of the climate to continue his work. "I wouldn't like a job like others have in which they did the same job over and over or sit behind a desk all day and not get out," he said. "To me, if I'm not getting up and moving around, I'd feel worse than I did if I worked all day.' Joy spent her childhood years at Val's Marina, a business started by her parents. She slo worked as an OB-GYN before she and Victor were married.

When Joy married Victor, she took "til' death do us part" beyond the nuptial agreement.

Joy resolved she would spend the rest of her life in farming. She even rejected offers to leave the industry. "During one of the big government buyouts in the mid-

Maurepas native Joy Womack and husband, Victor, tend to one of the 100-plus cows at their dairy farm in East Baton Rouge Parish. They are among the last in a steadily dwindling number of dairy farmers across Louisiana.

1980s, my father-inlaw called to tell me they had gotten an offer for the family farm, and asked if we had considered selling out," Joy said. "I told him I married a dairy farmer, and as long as he wants to be a farmer, I want to be a farmer's wife."

Victor and Joy have since stuck with their business, for better and for worse.

Government buyouts, soaring operational costs, increased global competition and reluctance from the younger generation to pursue farming all have made the industry a dying breed.

"Nine of every ten young people don't want to do this," she said.

"It's very demanding and takes almost all your time." Joy said she never considered a career in farming before she married Victor.

"I knew nothing about dairy farm, but now I can do just about anything on my own," she said.

"I learned and learned fast – and you have to, if you want to survive."

She handles many of the same day-today activities as her husband, along with repairs, bookkeeping, payroll and preparing meals for the farmhands. The dairy business has its similarities to the restaurant business.

"Dairy farming and running a restaurant are both occupations in which the business runs you rather than you running the business," she said. "There's so much work that goes on enough about the business to become a liaison between government and agribusiness.

Joy has learned

She serves on the state Dairy Advisory Board, the state Dairy Promotional Board, the state Dairy Stabilization Board, the Louisiana

Cattlemen's Association and the Women's Committee for the Louisiana Farm Bureau. Tighter restrictions from the Board of Health, Environmental Protection Agency and other governmental entities added to the burdens of farmers, Womack said.

Womack has also worked with Louisiana Agricultural Commissioner Mike Strain to block legislation that would allow the sale of raw milk.

She testified three times with Strain. Forty others signed their opposition to raw milk legislation during the session. "More people signed for the raw milk legislation than they did to oppose the cuts in TOPS," Womack said. "There are people who want the sale of raw milk, but they also oppose vaccination and don't circumcision of their children, and insist on everything being organic."

Government regulations have led many farmers to throw in the towel, she said.

A recently enacted federal law requires dairy farmers to use veterinarians, due to the government regulations.

Technology also plays a role. Farms in California now use robotic technology to milk many more cows than the Womacks handle on a given day. The advanced technology has sped up the milking process, but it remains costprohibitive for the Womacks and other farmers.

"We're just a small farm," Joy said. "It's tough to stay in busi-

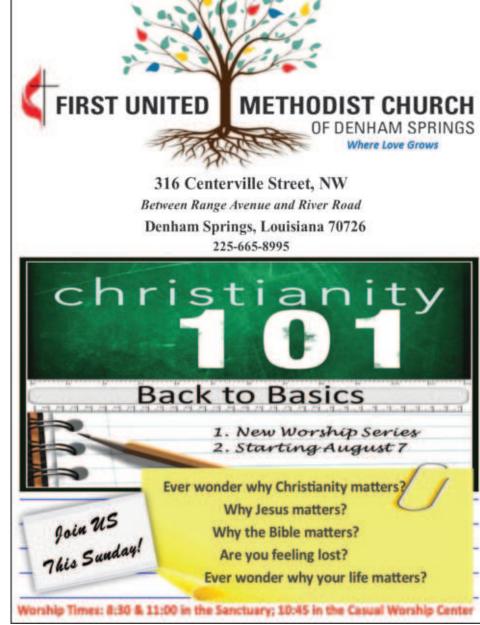

Joy said she and her husband will not go down without a fight, but cost of technology may deliver the final blow to dairy farmers.

"Frankly, I doubt we'll have a single dairy remaining within ten years," she said.

Joy jokes that she often cries over spilled milk.

"And I get a good case of the reds, too,"

TEACHER FEATURE

Turning tragedy into triumph

ALBANY MIDDLE SCHOOL TEACHER Joni Smith overcame adversity to become the Louisiana Teacher of the Year.

> By Tommy Comeaux The Livingston Parish News

s impressive as it is that 32-year-old Joni Smith was recently named the Louisiana Teacher of the Year just seven years into her career, the accomplishment becomes astonishing when she talks about the obstacles she's overcome along

It's hard to imagine anyone could survive the brutal childhood Joni and her siblings endured, let alone turn tragedies into triumphs like

For most people, their youth would have been a formula for failure, but Smith turned her hardships into lessons, lessons she turned into a teaching style that earned her the title of the state's best teacher.

Graduating from high school, even, would be considered successful given the toxic family into which she and her siblings were born. Their parents argued continuously, Smith said, and often their arguments turned violent.

Hers is no happy-ending story and it's not easy for the young teacher to tell, but after a warning about the possibility that she might cry – she did – Smith told her tale of woe.

She talked about "a rather chaotic upbringing" with parents "who made bad decisions, sometimes together and sometimes apart." The worst decision made by either of her parents came when she was just 9, after her mother and father seemed to have split up for good.

"They were very violent with one another," Smith said, but one day that violence, that toxicity, came to a screaming halt. Through tears, she explained how her father murdered her mother, how he emptied a gun into a woman Smith called her lifeline. "My mom and I were really close."

With her mother deceased and her father sentenced to life in prison, where he later died, Joni and her younger brother Jay found themselves orphaned.

"Our family members were not interested in taking us in and that hurt because our whole world had just fallen apart," Smith said. "Truly, the only person that tried to fight for us was our half sister, Judy, who lived in central Florida."

"For two years, we were bounced from home to home and entered into the foster care system," she continued, but despite the challenges and the sadness Smith's life had been filled with, there were sparks of hope. One came in the form of "a great principal" she had at Northside Elementary, Mr.

"He was wonderful," Smith said. "He really was. He was so kind, so considerate. He helped us out a whole lot. He even gave us knew our story, and he was there for us."

Fast forward to the seventh grade, and Joni and her brother were adopted by a family in the Live Oak school district. "We were so happy because we were together," Smith said. "When the judge asked me if that's what we wanted. I told him. 'I desperately want a family. I just want normalcy." But that adoptive home didn't turn out to be the bed of roses Smith had hoped, and both children left their adoptive home at early ages, Joni to attend Southeastern Louisiana University and Jay to join the U.S. Army. "I was ready to be an adult and to make my own way in the world."

Smith's plan was to become a nurse, because of a deep-seated desire "to help people," a challenge at the least because the only financial assistance she received was TOPS, the result of the 3.7 grade point average from which she graduated Live Oak High.

She roomed with four other girls to ease the strain of making ends meet, and she worked two jobs, sometimes three, to stay financially afloat while she struggled with her course load.

Whenever times became tough for the young student, Smith turned to her faith in God. "I found – and still do – my strength in my personal relationship with Christ."

"I always go to Him in prayer when I am struggling, and those prayers are always answered," Smith said, and during her second year in nursing school, her prayers professor" she studied under, Lindsey Domiano, and the other was Debbie Summers, who she came to tables to earn money for college. She did wonderful > Smith said of Domiano. "She knew I was struggling. She was always encouraging me." Summers took her in, calling the troubled college student "the daughter I never had." "She was wonderful," Smith said. "Her

imily accepted me and they were just so kind. I was still seeking to find a good mother and father figure in my life."

Unexpectedly, Summers was diagnosed with cancer, and it took little time for the disease to take her life away, and while Summers' husband Doug "was like a father" to Smith, the death of the woman she loved was almost too much for

Her college work began to slide. She had already been struggling because of her work load, but now brokenhearted, Smith said school became "so hard for me" but she refused to give up. "I had worked so hard to get as far as I had."

Southeastern's nursing program requires near perfection, and when Smith missed the required grades in two classes, she was booted from nursing school and changed her major to general studies.

"I would figure out what I wanted to do after I graduated because I still wanted to make a difference," Smith said. "I wanted to help people so desperately."

While battling to complete college and find her professional way in the world, Smith said advice she'd received along the way came back to her.

"Darling, you missed your calling," said one supervising nurse who worked with her at a psychiatric ward and saw the patience she showed the mentally ill while she was still in nursing school, Smith said. "Nursing is not for you. You need to be an educator."

TOMMY COMEAUX I THE NEWS Joni Smith, a seventh grade science teacher at Albany Middle School, begins preparations for the new school year.

Professor Domiano had told her something similar: "With your type of patience, you need to be in education."

Smith became aware of a "fast track program" that would allow her to get her teaching certificate, and she liked the idea of becoming an educator, thinking it would still provide her with the opportunity to help people.

"It was seamless, it was smooth and I loved it," she said of the change in educational focus.

'I remember going home and telling my husband Marshall, 'I don't know why I never thought about becoming a teacher, but teaching is what I'm supposed to be doing, Smith told him. "I'm called to do

Her own troubled childhood became a valuable asset as a teacher and gave her the insight to handle what school systems call "at-risk students."

Smith's first assignment was teaching seventh and eighth grade science at Westside Junior High School under Principal Steve Link, who took the new teacher under his wing.

"He came into my class and observed my teaching, found areas I needed help with and provided me with constructive criticism," Smith said. "I took his advice and ran with it. I wanted to be better, and I wanted to improve every year that I taught."

"After a few years, my scores began to soar, my children were at the top, and that was empowering to me because in a very short time, I was able to have a positive impact on their lives," she said.

Two years ago, the ever-improving life science teacher was transferred to Albany Middle School, where she found yet another mentor, Jennifer Vicknair.

"She helped guide me and she helped me with lesson planning, and if she found an area that needed improvement, she would guide me through it," Smith said. "I remember telling her that I was going to be 'Teacher of the World' because of her."

"I think the reason I have this title, Louisiana Teacher of the Year, is because of the people I've had in my life," Smith said. "I have always worked with dynamic educators that have fed back into me."

Albany Middle School Teacher Joni Smith was named 2017 Louisiana State Teacher of the Year. (See our story on Page B1). Here is a blog post she wrote about that experience in July:

So this is what it feels like to win an Oscar.... On the evening of July 15, 2016, at the 10th Annual Cecil J. Picard Educator Excellence Symposium and Gala presented by La. Dept. of Education and Dream Teachers, I was recognized as the Louisiana State Teacher of the Year! I was in such disbelief because I was surrounded by so many prestigious educators that I didn't have the slightest inclination that I would win. Actually, I had asked my family and friends to be happy if my name was not called because I was already so incredibly proud of myself for making it to finals. Even if I lost, I would still be the third in the

My story is different from the average teacher story. Although had good teachers, I didn't have this one passionate teacher that fed into me and / or established a strong connection with me. I don't come from a long line of educators, and I didn't have any financial assistance from family while pursuing college. I worked two jobs while attending Southeastern and when money got tight, I picked up a third job. There wasn't anyone to help so I leaned on my faith and self-determination to accomplish the goals that I wanted to achieve. I definitely didn't have it easy, but I wasn't going to let that be an excuse.

My difficult background has made me the person that I am today. I can relate to my students if they too had a difficult childhood and I can empathize with them if they are briefly going through a difficult time in their life. My students are my second family. I love them! Not just for who they are, but who they are going to be.

Thank you to all the wonderful kids that I have had the pleasure of teaching. Every one of you inspire me to be better! Thank you to the supportive parents that have been involved with their child's learning. Thank you to the wonderful teachers and administration that I have worked with that have fed into me.

The next year of my life is going to be an incredible journey. I can't wait to share it with you all!

A soil sample is more than just a handful of soil taken from the middle of a field. The sample should be representative of the average soil that is in a field. Since it is an average, the more spots you collect from within the field the more accurate the results I would take subsamples from within a specific growing area randomly from all over the field. In a pasture of up to 20 acres I will take 20-30 subsamples. These subsamples are taken from a depth of 2-4 inches deep and you should remove any sod or vegetation. Place that subsample in a bucket along with all the other subsamples for that specific field. Then mix those subsamples together with your hand and take approximately one pint of soil from the bucket and label it with the field

You will receive a detailed report of these nutrient amounts in the soil and a rating from very low to high. Accompanying this report will be recommendations for fertilizing your growing area based on your soil profile, nutrient base, your desired yield and the crop you intend to grow.

The hunting seasons are relatively short and by the time most hunters realize they have a problem the season is over before they can be corrected. Arts & Entertainment one of its many film or adaptations, Acorn Thea is bringing a show to the Wholly Ground Theater in Walker starting tonight that you won't want to

For the fourth year in a row, the acting troupe is producing a show for Livingston Parish that is anything but traditional.

"We are basically a Shakespeare loving family who have a reunion each year that ends with a big show. This year we are producing 'Romeo and Juliet.' However, we don't do traditional Shakespeare. We like to take Shakespeare's work and put it in different time periods and different places," Director Joni Bankston said.

"For 'Romeo and Juliet' we are setting it in the post-Civil War era Appalachian Mountains, sort of like the Hatfields and McCoys. Two rivaling families and their children who dared to defy them in the name of love," she said.

Fans of the play will want to stay right to the end of this show for a surprise.

"We kept most of the original script, but we did switch a few things around in the end that makes this performance very special,"

Bankston teased. Bankston is a Walker High School graduate who is now a senior at the University of New Orleans majoring in theatre, and she plans to pursue acting and/or directing in the future. A long-time member and actor in the Acorn Theatre troupe, Bankston is swapping jobs with Acorn Theatre President Shane Stewart, who directed their previous performances and will play Friar Lawrence in this upcoming show.

"Acting is something I've done since I was 12, and it's something I am quite comfortable in, especially comedic roles," Bankston said.

"Directing was something entirely different. I kind of just jumped right into it. I had no idea what I was doing. But Shane helped me out a lot. He taught me how to put myself in the scene and imagine how I wanted the scene to look, and how to interpret the image to the actors. It's been a very educational experience for me," she said. Stewart is entering his 15th year Middle Academic Magnet and School for the Visual and Performing Arts.

Bankston said they came up with the theme for the show around Christmas of last year.

"We chose this because of the universals in 'Romeo and Juliet' of falling in love with the wrong person. We see it mirrored throughout history, and the story of the Appalachian rivalry of Hatfield and McCoy almost seemed too perfect," Stewart said.

"Historically there was the rivalry of the two families in West Virginia and Kentucky, but there was also the love story of Rosanna McCoy and Johnse Hatfield during all that. Many historians refer to it as the 'Romeo and Juliet' of the mountains. It felt like a story that people were familiar with and a way to semimodernize 'Romeo and Juliet,' which in itself is already one of Shakespeare's more popular plays," he said.

One thing about this show that people can look forward to is the music. Stewart said there will be a live bluegrass duet playing the preshow, during the show and during intermission.

Another is the chance to see some familiar faces.

"The majority of our cast is current and former Livingston Parish theatre students, which will always be the trademark of our shows," Stewart said.

The two leads are both graduates of Live Oak High School.

"I had the opportunity to cast Joey Carroll, who is in his first year at Northwestern State University, and Haley Miller, who just graduated valedictorian at Live Oak High, in the title roles, and I felt I couldn't pass it up," Stewart said.

"Joey is one of the most dedicated actors I know, and I knew he would pour his soul into the role and give more than a surface performance of Romeo, and Haley is the portrait of youth and innocence. With those two, there wasn't really any way I couldn't produce 'Romeo and Juliet," Stewart explained of his selection for this year's show.

Many current and former cast members studied Shakespeare with Stewart. "We have students from Walker, Live Oak and various colleges in the area in the production," he said.

In addition to Carroll and Miller, other "Romeo and Juliet" cast members include Elizabeth Thomas as Nurse, Courtney Jarrell as Benvolio, Justin Stafford as Mercutio, Madeline Miley as Tybalt, Miranda Bordelon as Capulet, Kelsey Murray as Lady Capulet, Ean Hill as Paris, Wil Thomas as Montegue, Emily Maranto as Prince/Friar John, Parker Guarisco as Gregory/page/apothecary, Makaylee Secrest as Sampson/page/ Balthazar, and Breli McCollister as "We have quite a few figureheads in the Baton Rouge theatre and art scene appearing," Stewart said.

"Elizabeth and Wil Thomas are both talented theatre teachers in Baton Rouge and are heavily involved in Playmakers of Baton Rouge who donated much of the wood used in our rustic set. Heather Feierabend and Alan Morton, who are our bluegrass playing minstrels for the show, are also both talented teachers in East Baton Rouge.

"Justin Stafford and Madeline Miley make their return as Mercutio and Tybalt. You will remember them as Beatrice and Benedick from last year. And of course Joni, our director, played Dogberry."

Acorn Theatre has performed three other Shakespearean plays in Livingston Parish, "A Midsummer Night's Dream" in 2013, "The Comedy of Errors" in 2014 and

"Much Ado about Nothing" in 2015. They already have a play picked out for next year. They will be performing Shakespeare's "Twelfth Night," a romantic comedy.

Performances of "Romeo and Juliet" start tonight at the Wholly Ground Coffee House Theater, located at 28245 Walker South Road.

The doors open at 6 p.m., and the shows will start at 6:30 on Aug. 4, 5 and 6. Tickets will be $10 at the door. For more information, call 225-274-

St. Margaret's Catholic Church is a Hungarian footprint

n old church with a young pastor, St. Margaret's Catholic Church was built in the early 1900s to accommodate the tremendous influx of Hungarian immigrants to east Livingston Parish.

Drawn to the area between Albany and Springfield in the late 1800s by the promise of jobs at a sawmill where I-12 now crosses La. 43, many Hungarians purchased 20-acre tracts from the Brackenridge Lumber Mill after the company surveyed land it had already cleared of timber.

"By 1909, Catholics in the area were ready to build a church of their own," according to Royanne Kropog in her book "The Story of Árpádhon." "Securing sufficient land for the church, a rectory, additional buildings and a cemetery was the first hurdle for the small community" of Hungarian Settlement.

Hoping to get by with a small piece of property, an acre or two, the bishop at the time insisted more land would be required. "Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Juhasz stepped forward and donated the 20 acres and Mrs. Joseph Juhasz stepped forward and donated the 20 acres that the church sits on today," Kropog's book continues. Hoping to name the church after a saint with Hungarian roots, original parishioners wanted the church named for a Dominican nun named Margaret, the daughter of King Bela IV of Hungary, but they were denied because, while the process had begun centuries earlier, she had not been canonized when the church became active in 1909. Intent on using the name St.

The church is now representative of Margaret of Hungary, a result of her own canonization by Pope Pius XII in 1943. A statue of her graces the church's altar.

Through the years, St. Margaret's has had pastors belonging to four orders – the Benedictines, the Dominicans, the Oblates of Mary Immaculate and the Diocese of Baton Rouge.

Over its history, the church has accepted the responsibilities of four mission churches, Immaculate Conception in Denham Springs, Sacred Heart in Livingston, St. Mary in Bear Island and St. Thomas in Springfield. St. Margaret's current pastor, Father Jamin David, still presides over Mass at St. Thomas.

David, a native of Morganza, northwest of New Roads, has been the pastor at the old church for five years, having spent time as the associate pastor at churches in Napoleonville, Labadieville and Plattenville and graduating with a degree in canon law from The Catholic University of America in Washington, D.C.

He said the church's membership is currently trying to raise funds for a major renovation, a $1.5 million project to return St. Margaret's to her original glory.

Through the years, the once solid wood church has been covered in vinyl siding, its solid oak floors concealed by carpet and its metal roof covered with a modern shingled one.

"It looks just like it did when I was a child," said Alex Kropog, Royanne's husband and the grandson of the Juhasz's. "With the siding, they cosmetically made it look like it did when it was wood."

About 750 families are members of the small church, which David said is well attended. "We probably get about 700 to come to church over the course of an average weekend."

"He has been so good for this church," Royanne Kropog said about David. "We now have people coming from all over the area."

A detailed history of St. Margaret's Catholic Church and other aspects of the Hungarian settlement of eastern Livingston Parish is available in Royanne Kropog's book, "The Story of Árpádhon: Hungarian Settlement, Louisiana."

Jackets' standout Cade Doughty sparks USA wins

USABaseball.com

IWAKI, JAPAN — Cade Doughty is finding a nice comfort zone at the highest level of baseball for his age group.

In two lopsides wins for Team USA at the World Baseball Softball Confederation World Cup, the Denham Springs' native collected 6 hits, 4 RBIs and 5 runs scored to extend a solid tournament at the international event.

Team USA rolled past New Zealand 16-1 and thumped Mexico 16-0 to stay unbeaten in the tournament.

With the wins, the U.S. wrapped up the opening round with a 5-0 record and claimed first place in Group B. Team USA has now outscored opponents 65-7 in five contests, holding opponents to two runs or less in four of the games.

USA returns to action Thursday to play either Japan, Columbia or Cuba before playing the other two teams on Friday and Saturday.

Team USA 16, Mexico 0

Doughty had an impressive day, going 2-for-4 with three RBIs and four runs scored to lead the U.S.

The standard was set early Tuesday, as the U.S. plated two runs in the 1st inning on a Justin Campbell (Simi Valley, Calif.) double that plated Doughty and Carter Young (Selah, Wash.).

Staked to the early 2-0 lead, starting pitcher Landon Sims (Cumming, Ga.) was outstanding in his 4 innings of work, allowing just one hit and a walk while striking out two batters.

Ethan Long (Gilbert, Ariz.) and Tony Jacob (Acton, Calif.) both were solid in relief, as Long struck out two in an inning of work and Jacob needed just 11 pitches to mow through the bottom of the 6th.

Leadoff hitter Victor Zazueta had both of Mexico's hits, as the rest of the lineup was a combined 0-for-18.

With the pitching on lockdown, the U.S. offense broke open the game with a big, six-run 3rd inning.

Anthony Volpe (Watchung, N.J.) was 2-for-2 at the dish with two RBIs, two walks and two runs scored. Jasiah Dixon (Santa Ana, Calif.) had a hit, a walk and two RBIs, Young posted two walks, an RBI and two runs scored,

Campbell had two hits and three RBIs, Colton Olasin (Spring Hill, Fla.) had a three-RBI double, a walk and a run scored and Christian Cairo (Clearwater, Fla.) tallied a hit, a walk, a hit by pitch and two runs scored.

Team USA 16, New Zealand 1

Doughty turned in a 4-for-4 offensive effort with an RBI and two runs scored.

Carter Young (Selah, Wash.) had two hits, three RBIs and two runs scored and Ethan Long (Gilbert, Ariz.) went 2-for-2 with two RBI and two runs scored. Colton Olasin (Spring Hill, Fla.) had two RBIs, including the game-ending sac fly, and Coleman Brigman (San Jose, Calif.) tallied two hits, a walk, an RBI and two runs scored.

Team UA pounded out 17 hits in a 6-inning victory that clinched Group B for the Americans.

As has been the case for much of the tournament, pitching was solid for Team USA. Joe Naranajo (1-0) earned the start on the mound and posted 4 strong innings, allowing five hits and a run while striking out four batters. Sammy Faltine (Richmond, Texas) and Jared Jones (Whittier, Calif.) closed out the game by allowing just one hit over the final two frames.

While the offense certainly did its part, Berkwich really set the tone as he had little trouble during his outing. He scattered four hits, allowing only an unearned run over 5 innings of work and needed only 54 pitches. After Berkwich carved up Panama for 5 innings, Landon Sims (Cumming, Ga.) and Nick Gorby (Port St. Lucie, Fla.) finished off the final two frames, allowing two hits and one walk combined while striking out a batter.

LOH's Brown shines; Patriots season ends

Staff report

POWDER SPRINGS, Ga. — It took a pitcher who could finally cool off the Marucci Patriots' resurgent offense to shut the door on them last week.

The San Jose Sting clipped the Patriots 2-1 on Friday in an elimination game at the ASA-sponsored 2016 USA 18U Junior Olympic Cup Tournament, ending Marucci's season.

Patriots' pitcher Ali McCoy pitched 7 innings and allowed only 5 hits and 2 runs, but Marucci couldn't generate a whole lot of offense in the loss.

The lone run the Patriots scored came home on former Live Oak star Lauren Brown's RBI single in the 5th inning as she capped her pre-college
