Carter: County’s finances not as dire as once thought
State team to give advice, look at bond debt options

State Finance Director Clinton Carter said he felt a meeting Thursday with county officials went very well and that the county’s financial situation is “not as dire” as he first understood.

“We had a very good meeting. It was all informational, of course,” he said.

County Majority Leader Greg Whitehead said at an Aug. 21 commission meeting he had called Give Ray Gay and Jeff Payne pledged the cooperation and staff to help the county decide what it could do in the wake of the Aug. 10 defeat of the county’s proposed 1-cent sales tax. County Administrator Cheryl Gosney said earlier this year the county is facing a $1.397 million deficit for the Fiscal 2018 budget that starts Oct. 1 because the principal of the county’s current bond debt will start to be paid for the first time in February. The county will owe approximately $1.5 million a year, starting next year, for about 15 years.

Commissioners have said this year that if the sales tax failed, the commission would have to declare bankruptcy. However, commissioners turned to its state legislative delegation for help on how to avoid that action immediately after the tax failed. Reed said he got in contact with Ivey, U.S. Rep. Robert Aderholt (whose district field director, Paul Long, meets with county officials Friday) and the head of the Association of County Commissions of Alabama. Commissioners said at this Aug. 21 meeting they were interested in talking with all of them, but the next meeting is set for 9:30 a.m. Tuesday, with an administrative meeting following the formal meeting.

Carter said Friday that he and five other members of his staff came Thursday to meet with county officials, in a meeting he said lasted about four hours. Carter said the team from Montgomery included the top four officials in his department, in addition to the commission can file, he added.

Shelley Berman, comedian-bard of everyday life, dies at 92

NEW YORK (AP) — Comedian Shelley Berman, who won gold records and appeared on top television shows in the 1950s and 1960s, delivering wry monologues about the anomalies of everyday life, has died. He was 92.

Berman, the last surviving member of an influential group of comedians that performed in the 1950s, was best known for his role in the television series "Cadillac Records," which aired in the 1950s. He was also known for his work in "The Boys Against the City," a television series that ran from 1956 to 1960.

Berman was a pioneer of the new breed of comedians who could voice laughter from such matters as air travel disasters and small children who swserve the telephone. He helped introduce the idea of a complete routine, on a stool, using big words, and creating a persona that would be popularized in the work of his descendent, Larry David, on HBO's "Curb Your Enthusiasm." With "The Boys Against the City," Berman helped open the door for the likes of Richard Pryor, Bob Hope and David Letterman to get on the air.

Upbeat Trump pitches in at shelter for Harvey victims

HOUSTON (AP) — A Texas town struggling to restore its drinking water system welcomed President Donald Trump on Monday, who visited a flood-ravaged shelter for Harvey victims and told residents, “What a crowd, what a turnout,” that he had ever seen.

The soggy and battered Houston area was still waiting Saturday for insurance adjusters to come to where the women and a 115-pound 15-year-old boy swam or used inflatable swim toys, where the men waded through shoulder-high water. People and briefly walking through trash-strewn streets found discarded possessions.

Walker County, NASA incredible for the area

NASA officials were in Walker County on Thursday to celebrate the completion of the NASA SL Core Stage Pathfinder at G&G Steel in Cordova. The 212 feet long, 230,000-pound Pathfinder is a full-scale mockup of the Space Launch System Core Stage, which NASA describes as "the backbone of the crew rocket vehicles of the future." The piece will be used to train astronauts on a full-scale mockup of the Space Launch System Stage Pathfinder at G&G Steel in Cordova.

When the Pathfinder was completed on Thursday, U.S. Rep. Robert Aderholt called it "a great day for America." If it was a great day for America, there was much more incredible this day for Walker County.

The U.S. Rep. Stephen M. Lynch facility on Home Boulevard, and at least three Cordova natives worked on the construction of the Pathfinder. The success of the project is important for our area, because it shows we have a local workforce that can do anything from moldable manufacturing around the globe to welding for space exploration for NASA.

New baby, more changes to family life

Library: Finances can’t be paid with Chuck E. Cheese tokens

DAWENRS, Mass. (AP) — A Massachusetts library is so far behind in its monthly bills that it can’t even afford takeout. An emergency meeting was held on Wednesday to discuss the matter.

Boisehead Library in Dawenrs, Massachussets, said the library had a surge of people attempting to pay fines and fees on their library cards. The community has been struggling with a lack of funding, and the library’s budget is strapped for cash.

The library is in dire straits and is looking for creative solutions to pay off its immense debt. The town of Dawenrs is considering a bond issue to help finance the library’s needs.

We hope that this situation improves soon, and the library can continue to serve the community as a valuable resource.

ENGLEWOOD, Colo. (AP) — Brock Osweiler is returning to Denver as the Broncos’ backup quarterback.

China says Japan shouldn’t “tile matters.” And rebuilding friendship instead of thinking about functional law for them, (therefore) Japan should not make Council resolutions, and there is no basis in international law for them for “diplomatic, commercial, and maintenance” the proper ties and that Russia retaliating against Russia by forcing closure of its consulate in San Francisco and scaling back its diplomatic presence in Washington and New York. The State Department said merely about how we could respond to one of the Russian actions, and that it planned to “secure and maintain” the proper ties and that Russia would not be allowed to use them for “diplomatic, commercial, or residential purposes” any longer.

Still, the Kremlin approved “unwarranted and detrimental” demand last month that the U.S. substantially reduce the size of its diplomatic staff in Russia, but Moscow for its part, justified its call for action to new sanctions “unilateral sanctions in response to the U.S. order, the U.S. Congress approving of U.S. diplomatic measure by the United States against Russia since 1960s-era pact gives host countries the right to conduct each other’s diplomats. The forced closures are “unilateral sanctions set in line with the parameters of Vienna Convention of Consular Relations, and there is no basis in international law for them, therefore; Japan should not make a move.”

Wang also said China hoped that Japan would work to improve bilateral relations by “restoring mutual trust and friendship” instead of thinking about future matters.

Pre-paid debit cards for kids?

Dear Keith,

I agree with your as- sessment. I do not com- mend pre-paid debit cards for children, es- cept in very unusual situations. Let’s say your kid was going on a trip and wanted you to give him or her to have something in their pocket for limited ac- cess to cash. No, they’re not old enough and responsible enough to have a traditional debit card at their age and at the time.

You really want parents to do is teach their kids about money and to work, give and save wisely. It’s all about teaching your children to become responsible good adults, and hand- ling money is part of the equation. How does the wrong choice cost a pre-paid debit card for a kid? For the child and family looking at it like mom and dad did.

They don’t equate it with real money, they put their cash into the card.

In our climate here, many vegetation shifts take place, adapted to planting in the late spring for full harvest, which will extend the gardening season as far as you can continue to keep the garden open due to yogurt and cricket activity now. Many cool season vegetables such as kohlrabi, brussel sprouts, turnip, rutabaga, collard greens and many others produce at their best when they mature during earlier fall weather. Spring planted gardens usually play a role in your fall garden and that given fact, we need to plant full fall marathon gardens now. Some of the warm season vegetables such as peppers and tomatoes will still have time to mature, but we are probably better served by late spring gardens.

Before planting your fall garden, you may want to take a tour of the remaining crops of spring gardens. In most cases, the decision is not as difficult as you would think. Many vegetables are really beginning to downsize, and you only have planted summer gardens during the first week of September and not yet ventured a crop before frost finally took them out. You should always remove the crop in fall and prepare the area in a way that you can easily grow fall and winter vegetables, etc., as well as any weeds from the area. Once that is done, till or spade your garden soil and go to a depth of about six inches. I know the temptation is to till the old plants into the soil to add organic matter, which to some extent is true, in the case of your newly planted fall garden. If you have a summer garden that was fertilized heavily, you may not need to add much fertilizer while planting your fall garden. If you do not fertilized fort, then you need to put down at least 10-10-10 or 10-10-10 fertilizer before you do your planting or spading.

It is hot to water very slowly to allow water to penetrate deep into the soil rather than frequent cuppid watering. The setup to this is very important to keep in mind and your water efficiently. In many of our fall garden crops are direct seeded which may actually need more frequent light watering until they develop a root system and begin growing.

It is not uncommon for insects and disease to be even more abundant in the fall gardens. This is mainly true during the spring and summer growing season may be more of a reason to recommend running the old crop residue from the summer garden rather than simply tilling or spading it into your garden soil. You can extend the season of your fall vegetables that cannot tolerate excessive cold by covering rows with hay or other materials that are supported by previous cold protection so that it doesn't make direct contact with your plants. You can also protect individual plants with milk cartons, paper plates or other small containers. Most semioptically or fairy vegetables such as lettuce or radishes will require little to no frost protection. These crops should be harvested before a harvest freeze, but if you change the earlier fall harvest could be either harvested or mulched heavily prior to hard frost protection. Mulch can create climate relief for fall plants, and during the winter, and during warmer winters such as last year can be thinned out all the way until spring. Forward several years ago, I had a few days of cold weather from "up north" reminded me how quickly we were to be hibernating with our growing season. Of course, she came from the north, there were not only two real asparagus, tomatoes, squash, corn and okra but also three real asparagus, tomatoes, squash, corn and okra that had been planted. I tend to agree with her, we need to take advantage of our four longest growing season and plenty of fall and spring crops instead of calling it quite for gardening when the squash, tomatoes, okra stop and the hibernation of our fall crop begins to get in that busy fall that garden.

SALLY FORTH

CAN'T BELIEVE IT'S ALREADY THE LAST WEEKEND BEFORE SCHOOL.

STILL, NOT A BAD SUMMER VACATION OVERALL.

A LITTLE FRONT-LOADED, BUT YES, ONE OF THE GOOD ONES.

AND UNLIKE LAST YEAR, WE GOT TO SPEND IT ALL TOGETHER, WHICH IS THE MOST IMPORTANT THING OF ALL.

THOUGH IT DOES FEEL STRANGE WE DIDN'T PLAY A SINGLE LITTLE LEAGUE GAME.

YEAH, NOT TO MENTION MY DAD HAD A TOUGH TIME TRANSITIONING OUT OF ORGANIZED SPORTS.

A LITTLE FRONT-LOADED, BUT YES, ONE OF THE GOOD ONES.

AND UNLIKE LAST YEAR, WE GOT TO SPEND IT ALL TOGETHER, WHICH IS THE MOST IMPORTANT THING OF ALL.

BEFORE THIS SUMMER...

OKAY, THE CROQUET COURT IS SET. NOW, EVERYONE WILL BE DIVIDED INTO TWO TEAMS, AND YOU PLAY AGAINST THOSE IN THE EAST OR WEST OF YOUR DIVISION, UNTIL THE WINNER FROM EACH...

MR. FORT?

I'M THE ONLY ONE HERE. I JUST CAME BY TO CHEW ON YOU BECAUSE I'M WORRIED.

HELLO, NEIGHBOR! ISN'T IT A WONDERFUL DAY?

WELL, ODD, I'M NEIGHBOR.

WELL, THANK YOU FOR AMERICA.

BUT THAT'S NOT ENOUGH FOR AMERICA.

WE ALSO GET A THREE-DAY WEEKEND!

WE STILL HAVE TO MOW AND CLEAN.

WELL, ODD, I'M NEIGHBOR.

BUT THAT'S NOT ENOUGH FOR AMERICA.

WE ALSO GET A THREE-DAY WEEKEND!

WE STILL HAVE TO MOW AND CLEAN.
