

MAN CAUGHT WITH STOLEN GOODS SERVES 190 DAYS

BY CJ BAKER
Tribune Editor

After serving more than six months in jail, a Phoenix man caught driving a stolen U-Haul truck loaded with stolen goods in the Cody area has been placed on the federal government's equivalent to supervised probation.

At a sentencing hearing in U.S. District Court this month, Austin J. Kelly, 25, was credited for the 191 days he'd served in jail and ordered to begin serving three years of supervised release for possessing a stolen firearm.

Kelly was pulled over by a trooper with the Wyoming Highway Patrol on Feb. 27, north of Cody. Inside the rental truck, authorities found items that included methamphetamine and marijuana, clothing, tools and jewelry that still had price tags attached, dozens of Viagra pills, 100 unopened tins of chewing tobacco, counterfeit World Series rings and a credit card stolen from a man in the Phoenix area. A Park County prosecutor said earlier this year that authorities suspected the items "were from numerous smash and grabs from numerous states."

But it was a handgun, stolen from a woman in Montana, that landed him in real trouble.

The Park County Attorney's Office initially charged Kelly with multiple crimes. However, prosecutors in the U.S. Attorney's Office opted to take over the case in

May. Kelly and his defense attorneys attempted to suppress the evidence against him, arguing the trooper lacked probable cause to make a traffic stop, but he eventually agreed to plead guilty to possessing the stolen gun. A second count of possessing a firearm while a convicted felon was dismissed under the deal.

On Sept. 5, U.S. District Court Judge Scott Skavdahl of Casper approved a sentence of time served, followed by 'The State of Arizona didn't do us any favors with the sentences they handed him in the past.'

Choir director Jason White leads the Sunday Service music as Kanye West (in yellow hoodie at left) and a large crowd join in.

Kanye hosts Sunday Service in 'God's country'

BY MARK DAVIS
Tribune Staff Writer

Cody's newest celebrity resident brought gospel music to town on Sunday morning in a quickly scheduled performance of his weekly Sunday Service.

Although news of Kanye West's Sunday Service at the Buffalo Bill Center of the West only broke on Friday evening, hundreds of fans from around the country — including a strong contingent from the Big Horn Basin — lined up for hours for a chance to witness the concert. Long before sunrise, a crowd began to gather at the guarded gate to the center's Powwow Garden.

By the time Bryer Benham, a student at Kelly Walsh High School in Casper, and several of his classmates arrived at the venue they had already been through an adventure.

"We got pulled over on the way here and then slept in the van. And we had to shower with bottled water in the lot," Benham said.

Despite the inconveniences on the road to Cody, the group — all wearing West's shoe creations called Yeezy's (priced at more than $300) — found itself all alone at the front of the line hours before anyone else arrived.

"I love Kanye," Benham said. "It's all worth it."

West has been holding private Sunday Services since January, often attended by celebrities like Brad Pitt, Katy Perry, Orlando Bloom and Dave Chapelle. There has only been a handful of public appearances

'I'm so proud of the community and [those visiting] coming together to worship.'

In honor of fallen deputy, group donates funds for new Powell K-9

BY CJ BAKER

It's been more than eight years since Converse County Sheriff's Deputy Bryan Gross died trying to rescue a 14-year-old girl from the chilly waters of the North Platte River. But Gross's legacy of service lives on.

On Friday, two of the deputy's friends presented a $5,000 check to the Powell Police Department on behalf of the Bryan Gross Memorial Fund.

Gross was a K-9 handler in Douglas and the funds given to Powell police will help purchase a new narcotics detection dog for Officer Reece McLain.

"That would be what Bryan wanted: Help make sure that K-9s are still in operation," Keri McNare said Friday, as she and her husband Ron presented the funds.

"We hope that it helps," Ron McNare added.

"It does," said McLain.

"... In more ways than financial," added Powell Police Chief Roy Eckerdt.

Officer McLain has been searching for a new drug detection dog since January, when medical issues forced his K-9, Zeke, into retirement.

Zeke was initially believed to have a debilitating case of arthritis, but the ailment was later diagnosed as cancer. The 8-year-old German shepherd — who served with the department for five years — had to be put down this summer.

A fellow K-9 handler at the Converse County Sheriff's Office, Mark Dexter, heard about McLain's loss and suggested the Bryan Gross Memorial Fund could help replace the dog.

The McNares and deputy Gross's widow, Amy, agreed, culminating in Friday's check presentation.

McLain told the McNares that the support is comforting.

"It's nice to know there are

'It's nice to know there are other guys out there who are looking out for you.'

Homecoming week arrives at Powell schools

BY RACHEL KUNTZ

Homecoming offers a time for the Panther community to reminisce on their days as a Panther while showing team spirit and support for the future of the Powell Panthers.

This is homecoming week, meaning many activities and events are going on throughout the week in the Powell school system — dress-up days, Homecoming Olympics and various sporting events.

Monday was Sports Day, where Powell High School students and staff dressed up in various jerseys and sportswear. Meanwhile, the Panther freshman football team hosted Lovell High School and the cross country team traveled to the Foster Gulch Golf Course in Lovell for the Rocky Mountain Invitational.

Next up today (Tuesday), is Rock 'n' Roll '80s Day, a tailgate party at 6 p.m. and a Buff Puff Volleyball tournament following at 7 p.m. The Lady Panther swim team will compete in a dual in Cody at 5 p.m. and the Lady Panther volleyball teams are away in Lovell. The freshman, junior varsity and varsity teams play at 4, 5 and 6 p.m., respectively, facing the Lady Bulldogs.

Powell lets the dogs out

Powell's first-ever dog park was officially unleashed upon the community Saturday. Dozens of dogs and their humans ran, spun, and played with toys at the grand opening of Wiggly Field — all without any leashes to hold them back.

The park, which is next to the city water tower at Homesteader Park, allows people to unleash their dogs within the fenced area. It includes water, benches, trash receptacles and, for the dogs, cement tubes and a fire hydrant.

Despite over a dozen dogs of different breeds and sizes running free inside the park Saturday, the pets got along very well.

Among the dog lovers who brought their pets out to enjoy the park was Jamie Davis, with her service dog Sasha. Davis doesn't have a yard for Sasha to run in, and she's been eager for a place to let the dog run free.

"She's my whole world on four little paws," Davis said.

Tina Fagan, with help from Judy Londo and Michelle Gutierrez, drove a campaign that raised over $26,000 in cash donations for the park, with Powell Economic Partnership acting as the fiscal agent. The city donated the land, and businesses, such as Griffis Quality Fencing, provided in-kind donations.

'It's taken a lot of people to help make this happen.'

"It's taken a lot of people to help make this happen," Fagan said during the ribbon-cutting ceremony. "Thanks to all of our friends and family who put up with us through it all."

Her husband Pudge Fagan — who brought their dog Zoey to the park — said the opening has generated quite the buzz in town.

"Everyone I talk to said they can't wait to bring their dogs here," he said.

Christine Bekes, executive director of PEP, said the park will be a key amenity for current and future residents of Powell.

"It's something that's really been needed, and it will bring a lot of value to the town," she said.

Tina Fagan is continuing to collect donations for further upgrades to the park, including a shelter for the dugout and more toys for the dogs. Those wishing to help with the effort can donate via the park's GoFundMe site at www.gofundme.com/powell-dog-park.

the three years of supervised release.

As the charges indicated, it was not Kelly's first brush with the law; at a court appearance in state court in March, then-Deputy Park County Attorney Leda Pojman said Kelly's record included convictions for burglary, theft and "numerous" misdemeanor drug offenses.

Federal prosecutors indicated that he remains on some form of probation for a prior felony offense in Arizona and Judge Skavdahl ordered Kelly to "resolve all outstanding warrants within 60 days."

Mark Trimble, a spokesman for the U.S. Attorney's Office, said the deal for no additional prison time was accepted because Kelly's past felony case in Arizona may go away; Kelly's conviction in Arizona, Trimble said, is contingent on whether Kelly successfully completes probation and other factors.

"Our sentencing guidelines are for convictions that stand, not ones that can be modified or reduced later for 'good behavior,'" Trimble said. "The State of Arizona didn't do us any favors with the sentences they handed him in the past."

Kelly likely would have passed through Park County without any trouble on Feb. 27, but he slid into a snowbank alongside Wyo. Highway 120.

A Wyoming Department of Transportation snowplow driver spotted Kelly, spoke with him and radioed dispatch that a trooper or wrecker would need to help get the U-Haul out of the snow.

Wyoming Highway Patrol Trooper Rich Scovel pulled this U-Haul truck over on Feb. 27 after noticing front-end damage and a snow-covered license plate. Scovel wound up finding a slew of apparently stolen goods inside the truck. Courtesy photo

When Trooper Rich Scovel arrived in the area, Kelly appeared to have just gotten back on the road. With the hood and grill noticeably damaged and the rear license plate covered by snow, Scovel stopped the truck.

Kelly said the damage was pre-existing, charging documents in the case say, but the rental agreement for the truck didn't list it.

Scovel's suspicions only rose from there, as the trooper smelled marijuana in the truck and learned that Kelly didn't have a valid driver's license — and that the U-Haul had been reported as stolen. In Kelly's pockets, Scovel would find pills of Lorazepam that had been prescribed to someone else, brass knuckles and apparently stolen jewelry.

A search followed in which authorities found numerous items, including a Remington RP9 handgun that Kelly had stolen from a woman he'd stayed with in Anaconda, Montana; the gun belonged to the woman's late husband, whose driver's license was found in Kelly's wallet. Meanwhile, three of the woman's necklaces and two rings — including one inscribed with her name — were also found in the U-Haul.

Kelly must begin his time on supervised release at a residential re-entry center, residential substance abuse treatment program, halfway house or sober-living environment. He's also required to follow a long list of conditions, including participating in cognitive-behavioral, substance abuse and mental health treatment, obeying the law, refraining from alcohol, working a full-time job and submitting to searches by his probation agent.

Wednesday is Color Day, where each class is assigned a color. The freshman class will be dressed in yellow, sophomores are red, the junior class wears green and the senior class of 2020 will wear blue. On Wednesday evening, the Parent Support group is sponsoring Homecoming Olympics at the Park County Fairgrounds, starting at 6:30 p.m. Teams will show off their costumes and their enthusiasm throughout the night.

A recent internet trend, VSCO girl and E-Boy, will be Thursday's dress-up day. Meanwhile, the Panther tennis teams will head to Gillette for the Thursday-Saturday state tennis tournament. Also on Thursday, PHS cross country will run in Worland at 4 p.m. and Lady Panther Volleyball will be at home, again with game times at 4, 5 and 6 p.m.

Panther Pride Day is the last dress-up day. Following the early release Friday will be the 1:30 p.m. homecoming parade, where Powell students will make their way downtown in various floats.

Finally, the 2-1 Powell Panther football team will host the 0-3 Evanston Red Devils at 7 p.m., with the homecoming royalty announced and homecoming queen crowned at halftime. A homecoming dance follows the game.

Big Horn Ankle and Foot

Older Feet Deserve Special Care

Living a long and satisfactory life can have many rewards. Unfortunately, some things that may come with the later years are not rewards.... and for some people foot trouble is one of these.

For years, your feet have been bearing twice your weight when you walk and up to five times your weight when you run. That normal abuse, plus damage from wearing ill-fitting shoes, can show up as problems like corns and calluses or brittle, bruised toenails. Also, aging feet are more vulnerable to infection, fractures, skin problems and deformities like bunions and hammertoes.

Your feet have carried you through life, and they deserve a visit to my office for a thorough examination.

In the meantime, give your feet some TLC by wearing shoes with plenty of padding and by replacing worn heels. If you go barefoot, keep in mind that a minor cut may easily become infected. Strengthen your feet with regular exercise; any walking as you do housework is beneficial.

Don't let foot pain keep you from being busy and independent. Schedule an appointment with me to give your feet a treat.

Esther Larue Alexander

(Jan. 30, 1926 - Sept. 19, 2019)

Esther Larue Alexander passed away peacefully at the Powell Valley Care Center on Sept. 19, 2019, at the age of 93. She was preceded in death by her husband of over 70 years, Sammie Lee Alexander, who passed away on Dec. 13, 2015.

Esther was born, Esther Larue Dettrich, on Jan. 30, 1926, in Ringwood, Oklahoma, where her parents, Carl and Effie Dettrich, worked and lived on a small farm outside of Ringwood. Esther was the youngest of three daughters and was preceded in death by her sisters, Delores Dettrich Ratzlaff and Dorothy Dettrich.

Esther married her high school sweetheart, Sam Alexander, in 1945, after he returned home to Ringwood from WWII as a decorated war hero. Esther and her husband moved to Powell in 1950 and worked their Angus cattle ranch on the northeast part of Park County for over 65 years. In addition to managing the cattle ranch, Esther also worked as the head bookkeeper for the Powell school district for 34 years.

Esther had many interests and passions. She enjoyed family and holiday celebrations, but particularly enjoyed the patriotic day of the Fourth of July. She and her husband, Sam, also enjoyed gardening, camping, exploring the countryside in Wyoming and Montana, rock collecting and attending powwows.

After the passing of her husband, life was just not the same. But even in her later years, she greeted everyone with her big smile and warm hand held out, still giggling like a young schoolgirl. Though visitors came to bless her, she gave more in return and always said goodbye with "and God bless you" and "thank you."

Esther was a member of the Glad Tidings Assembly of God Church. She was a devout Christian and loved the Lord. She and Sam hosted many bible studies and church services at their farm.

Esther is survived by her niece, Donna Oldham of Norman, Oklahoma; and her nephew, Don Ratzlaff, of O'Fallon, Missouri, as well as many great- and great-great-nieces and nephews.

Cremation has taken place and a graveside service will be held at 2 p.m. on Wednesday, Sept. 25, 2019, at Crown Hill Cemetery. Condolences for the family may be left at www.thompsonfuneral.net or by mailing to P.O. Box 807, Powell, WY 82435.

Lowell (Gene) Gimmeson

(Sept. 3, 1927 - Sept. 16, 2019)

Lowell "Gene" Gimmeson passed away on Monday, Sept. 16, 2019, in Casper, at the age of 92. Gene was born on Sept. 3, 1927, to Ernest Carter Gimmeson and Bessie Marie Hallam in Powell, Wyoming.

Gene did all of his schooling in Powell. After he graduated high school, he joined the Navy during WWII. He was stationed in Guam, serving two years before being discharged when the war was over.

He married Lavern "Vernie" Viola Allshouse on March 8, 1950, in Billings, Montana. They had one son, Brant. Gene loved his wife, who was so special, and all of his family, friends and people he worked with.

He enjoyed skiing, riding motorcycles, boating, fishing, backpacking, camping, hunting, farming, gardening, raising animals, and he had some very special dogs and cats. One of his most enjoyable passions was snowmobiling with his wife and friends. He spent a large amount of time in Sunlight Basin, the North and South Fork of the Shoshone, along with Yellowstone, the Tetons and Jackson Hole.

He went to work for the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service after getting out of the Navy, instead of going to college as he had planned. He went to work in Powell for the U.S. Department of Agriculture ASCS for 22 years and became the county director in Powell. He also farmed and owned an auto repair service, which he also worked at. He then was promoted to regional manager and transferred to Worland, as district director for seven years. He was then promoted to state director in Casper for seven years. Then he retired and did consulting work as a crop insurance adjuster for several years.

Vernie and Gene loved to travel and spend time with their grandchildren and visiting friends. Gene enjoyed people and loved to help anyone. A very special and kind-hearted person!

He was preceded in death by his wife, Lavern (Vernie) Viola Allshouse; brothers, Willard, Merl and William (Bill); and his sisters, "Lucille" Crane and Mary Alice deHaan.

Gene is survived by his son and daughter-in-law, Brant and Lori Gimmeson and two grandchildren, Kamry and Kolby Gimmeson of Aurora, Colorado.

Gene will be cremated and laid to rest alongside his wife, Lavern Viola Allshouse, at 10 a.m. on Tuesday, Sept. 24, 2019, at the Oregon Trail State Veterans Cemetery in Evansville, Wyoming.

City of Powell prepares to pick firm for substation upgrades

The City of Powell is initiating interviews with engineering firms who will develop plans for a future upgrade of the existing substation or construction of a new one.

A June explosion and fire at the Vining Substation — the city's only substation — left the city without power for several hours.

Brief outages followed during hot summer days when air conditioners were pulling more load than the crippled substation could handle. In August, the city had a series of three planned outages to address the needed repairs, which brought the substation back up to full capacity.

The events highlighted the limitations of the 30-year-old substation and the need for future electrical infrastructure upgrades.

"We are looking at all the available options," said City Administrator Zack Thorington.

The engineer the city chooses for the project will develop plans for whatever options are feasible for satisfying Powell's future electrical needs, as well as estimates for associated costs.

This information can then be presented to the Powell City Council to decide which option to pursue.

"This process will be time-consuming for sure, but it needs to be addressed for the future of the city and its growth," Thorington said.

Thorington told the council at its last regular meeting that six firms submitted statements of qualification for the work.

"We're pleased with who applied," Thorington told the council.

He said it could take about nine months to develop designs and cost estimates, and then another year or two for the bidding process and construction of whatever option the council chooses.

Former City Administrator Zane Logan — who's an electrical engineer himself — is helping city leaders choose a firm.

Logan is acting as a part-time consultant for the city for two or three months, Thorington has said. Beyond providing input on the selection of the firm, Logan is available to answer any questions about the substation from his deep knowledge of the facility and has helped oversee electrical inspections in the city while Electrical Superintendent Steve Franck finalizes his state certification for inspections.

Logan is being paid $3,000 a month while working up to 80 hours monthly.

"[Logan has] always ... really put Powell first and he has no problems helping out," Thorington said last month. "And he should get paid for it."

other guys out there who are looking out for you," he said.

Keri McNare is an investigator with the Converse County Sheriff's Office who worked with Gross, while Ron was a close friend. After Gross's July 2011 death, the McNares and other friends created a memorial in his honor.

Located near the North Platte River, it explains how Gross responded to a report of a girl in the water, stripped off his gear and dove into the river "without hesitation." Bystanders saw the 29-year-old deputy throw the girl toward the river bank and she ended up being rescued downstream. Gross, however, was swept away.

His sacrifice — described as both heroic and selfless by his supervisors — drew national attention; during the 2012 National Peace Officers' Memorial Service, President Barack Obama described Gross as "a man who swore to protect his neighbors, and who kept that promise no matter what the cost."

While Gross's death has since faded from other headlines, his friends have continued to honor and remember him through the memorial fund.

They raise money through raffles and other events, then donate the proceeds "whenever it's needed," Keri McNare said, in areas related to Gross or law enforcement. Projects have included funding a sports field in Gross's hometown, constructing an emergency services building along the river, establishing a scholarship for criminal justice majors (with a preference given to law enforcement officers) and providing assistance to the Converse County Sheriff's Office to acquire two K-9s.

And now, they'll help provide a detection dog in Powell.

As he chatted with the McNares in the council chambers last week, officer McLain showed them some old pictures of Zeke.

"He was a lot of fun," McLain said.

As McLain searches for a new canine companion, Ron McNare said he hopes the officer is able to find a good one.

POWELL TRIBUNE

IN OUR OPINION

A place for the dogs

Much to the delight of dogs (and their owners), Wiggly Field opened to the public over the weekend. As Powell's first off-leash dog park, the cleverly named addition to Homesteader Park is a welcome one.

It's also a great example of what the community can accomplish when people work together.

After dog parks opened in other communities in recent years, people in Powell talked about the need for one here. The concept gained momentum when local residents Tina Fagan and Judy Londo brought the project to the Powell City Council.

Though a preliminary proposal at a different location ran into opposition from neighbors, advocates for the dog park looked for a new spot and continued working to make it a reality. A local action group raised funds and secured donations, with businesses and residents contributing to the cause. As the project's grant writer, Michelle Gutierrez helped obtain grants for the park, while the Powell Economic Partnership Foundation is managing the funds. The City of Powell Parks Department is maintaining Wiggly Field, which is located on Homesteader Park's north side.

Over the years, Homesteader has grown to include a variety of amenities for the whole family — walking paths, an aquatic center, a skate park, baseball and softball fields, a summertime fishing pond, a wintertime ice skating rink, fitness stations, an RC track and now a dog park.

Establishing a dedicated space for dogs in Powell took hard work, partnerships and patience — but we believe residents and their canine companions will agree it was worth the wait. Wiggly Field provides a safe place for pups to roam free, socialize and burn off some energy.

In the past, people sometimes took their dogs to run around playgrounds at local schools. But after some dog owners consistently failed to pick up after their pets or keep them leashed, Park County School District No. 1 officials decided to ban dogs on its grounds for the health and safety of students. It was the right decision in the best interest of students, but limited in-town options for dog owners.

While Wiggly Field welcomes all pooches, it remains important for owners to always pick up after their dogs. This rule applies to every park in Powell, and we encourage people to do their part to keep all of our public spaces clean and welcoming for everyone.

While it might sound silly to carve out a section of our parks just for dogs, you don't have to look far to see the positive impact they can have on not only our lives but our community.

Consider Zeke, a K-9 who faithfully served our community with the Powell Police Department for five years.

The German shepherd helped detect drugs in Powell and surrounding communities, most notably helping authorities seize more than $260,000 and a plane from suspected drug smugglers in Cody.

Unfortunately, cancer forced the 8-year-old K-9 into retirement earlier this year and he had to be put down this summer.

Powell Police Officer Reece McLain described Zeke as a great dog who became part of his family. It's always difficult to lose a canine companion, but we're thankful that McLain will be getting a new K-9, aided by funds Zeke helped seize and from the Bryan Gross Memorial Fund.

Whether it's a working dog or a beloved pet, animals hold a special place in many of our homes, and like Zeke, they're part of the family. We're glad dogs now also have a place in our community to call their own.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Tyranny in the eye of the beholder

Dear Editor:
Proponents of an expansive view of the Second Amendment use the argument that guns are necessary in order to overthrow a tyrannical government. Watching events unfold over the past couple of years, it has become apparent to me that tyranny is in the eye of the beholder.

We currently have a president that flouts the rule of law when it suits him, a Senate that enables such behavior while conducting some dubious shenanigans of their own and a cadre of the electorate that threatens armed resistance against not the current behavior of our government, but of the government that may follow after the next election.

Saving the world

I've been giving some thought to saving the world, thanks to a string of articles and TV news reports trumpeting warnings that seemed to put responsibility for preventing a killing recession squarely on the shoulders of us ... the consumer. Well, maybe you shared my sense of mission after hearing and seeing the same thing. There were certainly enough headlines like, "Can U.S. Consumers Continue to Buttress the World Economy?" and "Consumer Spending is a Bubble Waiting to Burst."

The problem with charging to the rescue is, of course, money. My last foray into discretionary spending by investing in a new carpet, struck a cautionary note. Not the carpet itself. Once down it gave me great pleasure until it began coming loose. "You have a defective transition," I was told. "It'll need replacing."

For those of you like me who blinked at the word, a transition is a strip that covers the place where the flooring in one room butts up against that of another. Lots of money involved, I thought.

Well, the carpet people were good about it, but ... that's exactly the sort of thing that happens when we start spending discretionary income. I mean, I love my new carpet, but the process was a pain. All things being equal, if I had to do it over again, I wouldn't. I'd save up my nickels until I have enough for something I really need and am ready for cost overruns.

Should I feel guilty for deciding to save my money and let the world go into a recession? Should I change my mind and launch a consume, consume, consume campaign to save the world? Would you join?

Leaving aside the plain fact that my income is just about enough to support me, never mind trying to "buttress" the economy, I'm relatively certain that when economists talk about rising incomes and the need for more consumer spending, they're talking about other people ... not me. (In fact, not us.) I suspect they mean the famous 1 percenters in the economy — the ones who control 40 percent of it and keep getting richer.

The rest of us, not so much. Probably, they're hoping that those who have a million or more dollars sloshing around in their bank accounts will continue to spend massive sums on things like houses in places like San Francisco and New York. I'm talking about the kind of spending that makes it unaffordable for the rest of us to live in those places ... presuming we wanted to.

Those kinds of house buyers (probably multiple house owners already) are clearly spending — strongly. I applaud them for it, too. If they keep it up, I'll happily yield the credit for saving the world to them.

Certainly, they can afford it.

They're the ones who got the big tax breaks. They're the ones who are the least negatively affected by the trade wars and positively impacted by current government policies. Like, I just found a list of 25 American corporations whose revenues, individually, surpass the gross domestic product of entire countries. With that kind of money, they can afford to pull the world back from the brink of recession.

If the economists aren't talking about the executives of big companies and their families, though, maybe what they want to see is a collective massive increase in spending on our part — a "consume" campaign led by you and me.

PAT STUART
Around the County

If so, I suspect they'll be disappointed.

Here's our reality: It still takes two working adults — one earning substantially more than minimum wage — to make a comfortable living in Park County. Comfortable means earning just enough to pay a mortgage or rent, pay down credit debt, buy food, run two cars, cover our kids' school expenses, clothing and other necessities. That's our consumption, which is pretty much the same every year.

National statistics, of course, say that income is rising so we can afford to spend more. Economists tell us another story: Real income is actually flat or declining. Mine is in the latter category and so is yours unless you've seen a large enough rise in income to offset all the debits.

The effects of the trade war, for example, cost each of us around $600 this year (that's the lowest of the per capita estimates that I've seen) and the year isn't over yet. We're supposed to be in for another and bigger wammy from the new tariffs. We'll see.

Next is inflation. I searched Google to see how the dollar is holding up and, sadly, only understood one word in 10. My takeaway, though, was that on average I (for one) spent 1.81 percent more in 2019 than in 2018 for the same item. That comes out to about 2 cents per dollar.

State taxes play in this, too. Our taxes aren't onerous by anyone's standards and, since we retired the extra penny tax this year, that represents money in my pocket which I can use to offset inflation — one penny in and two out. Ouch!

Debt also makes a difference. To learn how much I, again, let my fingers do the walking and Google obligingly told me about "credit debt." That's us borrowing against our future income to buy things now that we don't currently have the money to pay for or would rather pay for later — it's our credit cards, our car loans, our student loans, etc. It does not include mortgages.

It also turns out that the size of our credit debt has been slowly increasing every year since 2013. Who knew?

That's more money out of my pocket — $11,000 per year/per person as a national average. Which is a good place to stop before I start feeling I'd better scrimp as well as save. I've given up all thought of saving the world ... economy, that is.

Government needs to reunite savings bonds with rightful owners

During my time as Treasurer, I have seen thousands of individuals across the state of Wyoming locate money being held by our Unclaimed Property Division. Some of these checks have been in the six-figure range, and the rightful owner may not have ever been paid if not for the Unified Unclaimed Property laws in our great state.

I have seen first-hand how effective this program can be, yet our federal government doesn't want to turn over nearly $26 billion in savings bonds (an estimated $45 million belonging to Wyomingites) that have reached maturity and no longer pay interest. Unless the owner or rightful heir of the owner of these financial instruments have the physical bond in their possession, these funds may never be returned.

That's why I support Senate Bill 2417, "The Unclaimed Savings Bond Act of 2019," which was introduced by Sen. John Kennedy, R-La., and co-sponsored by Sens. Jerry Moran, R-Kan., and Bill Cassidy, R-La.

Savings bonds traditionally are sold for a set amount and then mature many years later when they are redeemable for a larger amount. As an example, a $100 savings bond that matures in 20 years could have been purchased in July 1980 for $14.33. The owner of that bond could have cashed it in for $100 in July 2000 or any date thereafter.

The U.S. Treasury does not have an active program to locate the bondholders and therefore reunite them with the proceeds of their bonds. In fact, according to the National Association of State Treasurers, if an individual knows they have purchased a matured bond but can't locate the physical document, they have to wait at least six years after the maturity of the bond AND supply the serial number of that bond. Since the U.S. Treasury is the sole holder of that information, it is difficult if not impossible for the owner to get the money if the certificate was lost or forgotten.

Turning over the money from these matured savings bonds along with all their owners' identifying information to the states' unclaimed property divisions makes sense in many ways:

- All 50 states along with the District of Columbia and Puerto Rico already have successful unclaimed property programs.
- Many citizens are already familiar with the process of filing unclaimed property claims in their state, as well as other states where they resided in the past.

If given access to the federal records, these bondholders' names and last known address would become part of each state's searchable database.

The proceeds from these bonds rightfully belong to individuals across the nation, and we should make it as easy as possible for the rightful owner to locate their money.

In Wyoming, we were able to reunite Wyoming residents or former residents with more than $6.85 million in the fiscal year that ended June 30. Even if just a small percentage of these matured savings bonds have a last known address in the Cowboy State, that number would swell in the years to come.

The State of Wyoming still holds more than $85 million in unclaimed property. If you haven't searched to see if you or a loved one are entitled to any of these funds being held in Wyoming, I strongly encourage you to access our database and search for yourself at www.mycash.wyo.gov.

I have asked Wyoming's elected officials in Washington to support this bill, and I encourage you to share your thoughts with them as well.

(Curt Meier, originally of La Grange, took office as Wyoming's state treasurer in January. Before becoming treasurer, Meier served in the Wyoming Senate for 24 years.)

The Wyoming Game and Fish Department plans to vacate this building south of Cody within the coming years and move to a new facility north of town. County exploring possibility of selling Game and Fish building

DECISION STILL YEARS OFF

BY CJ BAKER
Tribune Editor

When the Wyoming Game and Fish Department eventually moves to a new office north of Cody, Park County commissioners will become the owners of the agency's current building south of town.

The planned move for the Game and Fish's regional office is still a couple years off, but commissioners are already weighing their options — including the possibility of selling the building into private hands.

The Game and Fish office sits on land the federal government gave to Park County back in the 1900s. However, the gift came with some strings attached.

Restrictions placed on the deed say the county can only use the land for public recreation or for governmental purposes, said Commissioner Lee Livingston. The county could also return the land to the federal government, "which I don't think we want to do," Livingston said at the board's Aug. 20 meeting.

He has instead been discussing a fourth option: seeing what it would take to have the deed restrictions removed. That option, commissioners said, would open the door to selling or renting the property to anyone — including private businesses.

Livingston said the county might have to pay to have that deed work done.

"If we want to move forward with disposing of that land, there's hoops we have to jump through," he warned, adding that Bureau of Land Management staff are looking into it.

The 49.2-acre parcel along Wyo. Highway 120 south of Cody includes not only the Game and Fish office but also the county's road and bridge shop for the Cody area. The Game and Fish is leasing part of the land from the county for essentially nothing. But while the rent is cheap, the department says it's outgrown the 1979 building, which serves as the agency's headquarters for the Big Horn Basin. That's why the Wyoming Game and Fish Commission recently agreed to purchase a 22-acre parcel of land along Wyo. Highway 120 north of Cody, near Road 2AB. The department is paying $350,000 to buy the private land from Park County Commissioner Joe Tilden.

Although the land is in hand, the Game and Fish has said that it won't break ground on the new facility until the spring of 2021 at the earliest.

"So we have time," Commission Chairman Jake Fulkerson said at last month's meeting, "but it will probably take us that long to get our arms around it."

"That's why I wanted to start the ball rolling now," said Livingston, deadpanning, "I mean, it might surprise, but things don't move very fast, especially at the federal government level."

'If we want to move forward with disposing of that land, there's hoops we have to jump through.'

Black-footed ferrets were brought back from the brink of extinction after a colony of ferrets was discovered in the Meeteetse area more than 35 years ago. In recent years, the species was reintroduced to the area. Tribune file photo by Mark Davis

Meeteetse set to host Ferret Day on Saturday

Ferret Day festivities will take place in Meeteetse on Saturday. Ferret Day is an annual celebration of the endangered black-footed ferrets' rediscovery in Meeteetse in 1981.

The ferret — which has become a symbol of the town — was reintroduced to the area in 2016.

Ferret Day will begin at 10 a.m. at the Meeteetse Museums with the story of rediscovery told by Kris Hogg. Following Hogg's retelling of the famous event, children can play games with the Meeteetse Recreation District at the school football field from 10:30-11:30 a.m.

Beginning at 11 a.m., the Basin Fiddlers will perform at the Elkhorn Bar and Grill. The fiddlers will be followed by an open mic from 1-4 p.m. Local and traveling musicians are welcome to perform during this time. In addition, local craft and food vendors will be set up in the Ferret Den and on Water Avenue.

Thanks to the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, a live black-footed ferret will be on display at the Meeteetse Museums all day.

"This is your chance to see North America's most endangered animal — the black-footed ferret," said David Cunningham, executive director of Meeteetse Museums.

Wyoming Game and Fish will also be present with current counts on the Meeteetse ferrets that were first reintroduced in 2016. Even Farrah the Black-Footed Ferret, the museum's

Both presenter Kris Hogg and Meeteetse Museums mascot Farrah the Ferret will be on hand for Saturday's Ferret Day. The day will feature a variety of ferret-themed events in Meeteetse and Cody. Courtesy photo mascot, will be out and about throughout the day.

Following the events in Meeteetse, the Cody Theatre will host a free screening of the film "Ferret Town." Doors open at 6:30 p.m. Saturday, with the event starting at 7 p.m. There will be exclusive footage shown that didn't appear in the Wyoming PBS version of the film.

The live black-footed ferret also will be on display at the Cody Theatre.

Following the screening, folks will get a chance to ask questions to a panel including Virginia Moore, Dana Nelson, Kris Hogg and others. Free refreshments are being provided by Fat Racks BBQ.

All events for the day are free. Due to limited space at the film screening, folks are encouraged to pick up free tickets at the Meeteetse Museums beforehand. Tickets will also be available at the door.

The project is supported in part by an award from the Wyoming Arts Council as well as local sponsors.

DIGEST

Walker and Varian promoted to sergeant

A pair of Park County Sheriff's deputies have been promoted to new leadership roles.

In late August, Sheriff Scott Steward promoted both Deputy Dan Walker of Powell and Deputy Andy Varian of Cody to the rank of sergeant.

"First line supervision is an essential ingredient to the success of any law enforcement organization," Steward said in a recent news release. "I have the utmost confidence that these two officers will not only ensure quality service from their respective divisions, but that they will be able to motivate and lead the deputies under their command with pride and professionalism while commanding their respect."

Sgt. Walker joined the Park County Sheriff's Office in June 2017 after 15 years with the Wyoming Highway Patrol. He also spent several years as a law enforcement officer in Oklahoma: three years with the Tulsa County Sheriff's Office, two years with the Kiowa Police Department and three years with the Major County Sheriff's Office. He lives in rural Powell with his wife and four children.

Walker replaces Mark Hartman of Powell, who was promoted from sergeant to lieutenant last year and assumed command of the patrol division.

Meanwhile, Sgt. Varian is replacing Chad McKinney, who retired this summer. Varian joined the Park County Sheriff's Office in October 2011 as a detention deputy and transferred to patrol in May 2013.

Varian hails from California, where he worked part-time with the Ripon Police Department. He lives in Cody with his wife and three children.

Kanye West sings during a public presentation of Sunday Service at the Buffalo Bill Center of the West's Powwow Garden. The singer took the microphone for only one song.

by the 80-person choir before he flew them all in to Cody for Sunday's free service.

The scene in line was a mix of fans of Kanye's rap music, those seeking to get a glimpse of West, and families — many bringing children — to hear the gospel music on a beautiful Sunday morning. West's popular song "Monster" blared from a portable stereo while the line grew. Many of those in line sang along, word for word, while others grimaced as very naughty words filled the air.

"It's nice to see something different around here, but it does make certain people a little uncomfortable," said Levi Meyer, a spokesperson for the Center of the West.

Jaclyn Haire of Powell stood in line for two hours to get a front row spot next to dozens of singers in the choir and a decent view of West.

"I wanted to see it," she said. "It's like the biggest thing that's ever happened in Cody."

The Sunday Service at Buffalo Bill Center of the West followed West's purchase of Monster Lake Ranch, located south of Cody, earlier this month.

Haire, an elementary education student at Northwest College, said she was familiar with West's music and enjoyed the presentation.

"I'm so proud of the community and [those visiting] coming together to worship," she said.

By the time the gate opened at 11:30 a.m. — about a half-hour later than advertised — the line wound around the museum property with more than 1,000 waiting for their piece of turf at the standing-room-only event.

Starting around noon, West pulled up in a black Ford truck and entered the garden to cheers. Choir director Jason White led from a platform in the center of the choir, with

Sam Risser, a student from Montana State University in Bozeman, takes a nap while waiting at the gate to the Powwow Garden at the Buffalo Bill Center of the West. the crowd surrounding them in every direction. At one point, White called Wyoming "God's country."

"... If I had a view like this to look at every day, I don't know what I would do," White told the crowd, thanking area communities "for having us."

Dressed in a yellow hoodie, a custom Wyoming Sunday Service sweatshirt and sweatpants, West took the microphone to sing one song but never took center stage.

The choir — also wearing customized Wyoming sweatshirts — sang more than a dozen songs with West joining in on the drums midway through the performance. Songs on the set list included traditional hymns, at least one West original and some pop songs repurposed as worship music; for instance, the

No Doubt classic "Don't Speak," became "Lord Speak."

Accompanied by two pianos and a brass section, the Sunday Service thrilled the large crowd, made up mostly of young people.

"Children are hungry for it. They're eager for it," said Kema Jamal, who has produced rap concerts and has a dance company in Casper. She hopes this opens up the area for music rarely heard in the rural areas of the cowboy state.

West's Sunday performance capped a busy weekend at the Center of the West. Friday brought the annual Buffalo Bill Art Show & Sale, followed by the center's annual Patron's Ball on Saturday night. As usual, the black tie gala drew some big name guests of its own — including former U.S. Supreme Court Judge Anthony Kennedy — though with less public fanfare.

A large tent was set up for the art sale and caterers were staged on the center's grounds for Saturday night's ball, apparently leading the celebrity news website TMZ to mistakenly report those were part of the preparations for West.

At the end of Sunday performance, choir members offered high fives, blessings and thank yous to the Cody crowd as they filed out. Many of West's fans followed him as he exited the venue, reaching out to touch him — and to thank him for bringing the Sunday Service to his new home away from home.

Kanye West fans line up for several blocks waiting to get into the Powwow Garden at the Buffalo Bill Center of the West prior to the Sunday Service concert.

PANTHER TENNIS CLAIMS 2019 NORTH REGION TITLE

BROWN, PREATOR REGION CHAMPS IN NO. 1, NO. 2 SINGLES

BY DON COGGER
Tribune Sports Editor

Just a week removed from finishing up a perfect regular season, the Powell High School boys' tennis team added a regional championship to its resume over the weekend in Casper. Jesse Brown and Dylan Preator both avenged regular-season losses to claim individual titles at No. 1 and No. 2 singles, while the Panthers' No. 1 and No. 2 doubles teams finished as runners-up. The No. 3 doubles team shook off an opening-round loss, battling back through the consolation bracket to finish third. And PHS head coach Joe Asay was named Wyoming North Conference Boys' Coach of the Year.

The Panthers finished the tournament with 59 points, well ahead of runner-up Campbell County's 37 points. Kelly Walsh was third with 34, Sheridan fourth with 30 and Thunder Basin rounded out the top five with 22.

The Lady Panthers finished seventh in the eight-team field with 12 points; Kelly Walsh was first with 53 points, narrowly beating Cody with 52. Sheridan rounded out the top three with 44 points.

"It was a good trip, it was fun to see them finish out regional play well after having a good conference season," coach Asay said. "It was good to get down there and show everyone that, yeah, that's where we should be."

As for being named coach of the year, Asay was quick to deflect the praise to his players.

"Those accolades come pretty easy when you have such a good bunch of kids," he said. "For me, those kids are just so darned talented, it's just good and exciting to see them do so well."

PANTHERS

Coach Asay called it a great weekend on the boys side of the tournament, featuring good energy and "just a bunch of great kids here in the north."

"It was very competitive for our boys, so it was great to see them battle well," he said, noting that four of the Panthers' five competitors went all the way through the championship bracket.

At No.1 singles, Panther senior Brown opened the tournament with a 6-0, 6-1 win over Jackson's Campbell Gervais. He followed that with a 6-3, 6-4 win over Campbell County's Miles Veyna in the semifinals, setting up a rematch with Sheridan's Ethan Kutz. Kutz won the first meeting between the two in straight sets.

"I was just excited to play the Sheridan kid the whole time," Brown said. "We've been playing against each other since middle school, and he's beat me the last two years; he improved so much. I just came in with the mindset that I just need to stay focused the whole way through. In a long match like that, a lot can happen."

PANTHERS FALL TO DOUGLAS IN DEFENSIVE BATTLE

YEAMAN RUNS WILD IN 13-7 BEARCATS WIN

BY DON COGGER
Tribune Sports Editor

After a pair of emotional wins to start the season, the Powell High School football team came back to earth Friday with a 13-7 loss to visiting Douglas at Panther Stadium.

"We didn't perform to our capability, and that starts with me," said PHS head coach Aaron Papich. "I'm going to make sure that we're ready for Evanston for this conference game Friday."

Powell was unable to find an answer to Douglas quarterback AJ Yeaman, who accounted for 130 of the Bearcats' 233 rushing yards; the senior added 56 yards through the air.

The Bearcats got on the board on their second possession, when Yeaman connected with Cooper Gamble for a 12-yard touchdown; the extra point made it 7-0 with just under five minutes to play in the first quarter.

Powell answered in the second quarter, as the Panthers crept into Douglas territory on solid runs by back Kadden Abraham. Facing a 3-and-11 on the Bearcats' 44-yard-line, Panther quarterback Landon Lengfelder took a play out of last week's book, hitting Jesse

Panther defensive back Kobe Ostermiller and a teammate stop Douglas' Rylan Wehr in his tracks during Friday's game at Panther Stadium. The Panthers lost 13-7 to drop to 2-1 on the season. Tribune photo by Carla Wensky Trotter for a 44-yard scoring strike with 7:41 left in the half.

"That was a great connection between Langfelder and Trotter," Papich said. "The timing between those two is awesome.

We're just one step away, I think, from hitting some big plays with our running attack as well."

Hawkin Sweeney's PAT tied the game at 7-7, and that was the score at halftime.

Both quarterbacks struggled in the first half, with the only completion on either side going for a touchdown. Lengfelder threw a pair of interceptions, while Yeaman threw one of his own. Yeaman got it done on the ground to the tune of 10 carries for 100 yards, though Powell's defense held the Bearcats to 132 total yards.

"Yeaman is a really good athlete, and we weren't prepared for how dynamic he was as a runner out of the quarterback spot," Papich said. "We made adjustments at halftime, and I

Lady Panthers swim to win against Worland

FIRST IN 11 OF 12 EVENTS, 25 PERSONAL BESTS

BY DON COGGER
Tribune Sports Editor

The Powell High School girls' swimming and diving team hosted Worland in a dual meet Thursday, winning 11 of 12 events, with 10 athletes earning 15 state-qualifying marks.

As a team, the Lady Panthers won the meet 99-79, though Powell didn't receive team points for the final four events.

"So as to not run up the score, we marked our relays and individuals as exhibition in the last four events," said PHS head coach Bob Smartt. "This has been a challenging year for Worland with the graduation of their two top athletes and with continuing pool problems. Worland has had to practice in a two lane pool that is very shallow and warm."

Powell had 1-2-3 sweeps in the 200 freestyle, 100 butterfly, 500 freestyle and the 100 breaststroke events. Eight Lady Panthers won events, led by Anna Fuller with wins in the 50 and 500 freestyle.

Addison Moretti (200 free), Elizabeth Liggert (200 IM), Emma Karhu (diving), Rachel Kuntz (100 butterfly), Sydney Legler (100 free) and Lucia Harder (100 breaststroke) also claimed wins.

"All eight of these event-winning performances were in state-qualifying time," Smartt said. "All told, 10 of our athletes achieved 15 state-qualifying marks, including Gabby Paterson [200 IM], Sidney O'Brien [100 butterfly] and Maddi Hackenberg [diving]."

Unofficially, Smartt said there were 25 personal bests set on Thursday; athletes who achieved personal bests in both of their individual events at the dual include: Katie Beavers (200 free and 100 back), Gabby Paterson (200 IM and 100 backstroke), Grace Sapp (50 and 100 freestyle), KayCee Twitchell (50 and 100 free), Hannah Hawley (50 free and 100 breaststroke), Sidney O'Brien (100 butterfly and 100 breaststroke), Emma Mitchell (100 freestyle and 100 backstroke) and Kami Jensen (50 free and 100 breaststroke).

Likely personal bests not listed in Smartt's database were Natalie McIntosh in the 200

PHS golfers Wainscott, Higgins earn All-State honors

BOYS TEAM TAKES 11TH AMID TOUGH WEATHER CONDITIONS

BY DON COGGER
Tribune Sports Editor

Perserving amid some tough weather, a pair of Powell High School golfers earned All-State honors at last weekend's 3A State Golf Tournament in Afton.

Lady Panther Mycah Wainscott, the lone representative for PHS on the girls' side, had a tournament to remember the Star Valley View Golf Course, shooting 85-95 to finish in a tie for third. Wainscott earned All-State honors for the second straight year.

"Mycah played outstanding golf in the final event of her high school career," coach Troy Hildebrand said of the PHS senior. "She hung in there and did an excellent job of limiting her big numbers. She hit the ball very well and made a lot of pars and bogeys to stay right near the top throughout both days."

Hildebrand added that Wainscott's positive attitude in the face of adverse conditions served her well over the course of the tournament, giving her an advantage.

"She [Wainscott] has a great chance to move on and play golf in college if she would like, and she has left a tremendous mark on our program," he said.

Lander's Rachel Stoinski took top honors, carding a 75-77 for the championship. Riverton's Sierra Brubaker was second, shooting a 87-90.

Meanwhile, for the boys, PHS junior George Higgins followed up his All-Conference performance by earning All State honors. He fired rounds of 79 and 80 for the tournament, despite hitting a rough patch on the back nine during Saturday's round. He closed out the final round with a birdie to take sixth place.

"George's rise from beginning golfer two years ago to this point is amazing, and to have him for another year is very exciting for Panther golf," Hildebrand said. "While many high school players would have folded, the mental toughness and perseverance that George showed to hang in there and start making pars again was remarkable. He worked extremely hard on his game this summer and I was pleased to see him get rewarded for those efforts."

The Panthers finished 11th out of 13 full teams overall, with their four best scores over the two days totalling 788 strokes. Lander completed a three-peat as state champions, shooting a blistering 601 — post an average score below 74 across their eight best rounds.

"That is the lowest that I have seen in 3A in any of my 19 years as the head coach," Hildebrand said. Lander's Jaren

Brown won a hard-fought first set 7-5; Kutz answered with a 6-4 win in the second to bring the match back to even.

In the third set, Brown jumped out to a 5-0 lead, holding on to win the set and the match 6-3.

"At 5-0, I was focusing more on winning the match, and not so much winning points," Brown said. "He came back a couple of games, but I got it done."

Preator, last year's state champion at No. 2 singles, also gained a measure of revenge against a Sheridan opponent that had his number in the last week of the regular season. After easily dispatching Natrona County's Bridger Myers 6-0, 6-0, Preator squared off against Sheridan's Reed Rabon in the semis. Rabon won the first meeting in three sets (7-4, 4-6, 6-3), but Preator won the rematch in straight sets, 6-0, 7-6.

"Beating Reed [Rabon] was difficult, but it wouldn't be fair if it was easy to make it to the championship," Preator said. "I've learned that to beat someone better than you, you have to make them play your game. I had to come out playing as hard as I could on every point."

Preator faced Campbell County's Tanner Lemm in the final, winning in three sets 6-4, 1-6, 6-3.

"It felt good to win the title, but I don't dwell on that much," Preator said. "I am now trying to focus on playing my best at state."

In No. 1 doubles, Powell's Aidan Jacobsen and Justin Vanderbeek defeated Thunder Basin's Joel Klassen and Mason Miller (6-2, 6-3) and Jackson's George Gervais and Jackson Santomauro (6-4, 3-6, 6-4) to reach the finals. There, the senior duo lost in straight sets to Campbell County's Jefferson Neary and Austin Robertson, 6-1, 6-2.

"It's been a good opportunity for Aidan and Justin to play together, because Justin has really proven to be a tremendous player — he has as many shot selections as any kid out there," Asay said. "He doesn't quite have the power of Aidan or Dylan [Preator] or Jesse [Brown], but he hits that ball really well."

The coach said he's excited to see what Jacobsen and Vanderbeek do at state this next week.

The No. 2 doubles duo of Grant Dillivan and Ethan Bartholomew also advanced to the finals, losing to Kelly Walsh's Parker Phillips and Colton Alaire 3-6, 6-4, 6-1.

"Having Grant and Ethan at the No. 2 spot really demonstrates the depth of our team, a senior and sophomore playing together," Asay said. "Those guys have really started to click — everything's coming together for them. Unfortunately they couldn't quite get it finished against the team from Kelly Walsh, but it was great to see them in that runners-up spot."

Choosing to forgo a first-round bye to get some match experience, Jay Cox and Logan Brown — the No. 1 seeds at No. 3 doubles coming into the tournament — dropped their opening-round match to Jackson's Elliot Sanchez and Will Aepli 6-4, 6-7, 6-2.

But the pair battled back through the consolation bracket with wins over Sheridan and Thunder Basin to reach the consolation final. Playing against Cody's TJ Smith and Tristan Dollard, Cox and Brown dropped the first set 7-6 before winning the next two 7-6, 6-3 to claim third place.

"They [Cox and Brown] have been a lot of fun to watch, another senior and sophomore pair," Asay said. "Two tall, athletic kids, and they've been very dominant together. They were bummed about that first-round loss; they had the opportunity for a bye, but I felt the best option for them was to get out and play some tennis. They battled back and got third, so that was a good victory there."

LADY PANTHERS

Powell senior Sloane Asay faced a pair of heavy hitters at No. 1 singles, losing to Sheridan's Julia Kutz (6-0, 6-1) and Thunder Basin's Kinsley Larson (6-3, 7-5).

"Sloane dropped her two matches against some tough competition, but once again that's two matches of experience under her belt," coach Asay said. "Now she'll have the opportunity to come out and see what things look like when she gets to state. She's played great tennis."

Ashley Dunkerley fared a little better at No. 2 singles, losing her first match to Cody's Torrie Schutzman (6-3, 6-3) before bouncing back against Thunder Basin's Taylin Smith, winning in three sets (4-6, 6-4, 6-2). Dunkerley's tournament ended in the consolation semis against Jackson's Valerie Stevenson in straight sets 6-3, 7-6.

"Ashley is a good, scrappy competitor, and did well in that second match for the win and a chance to play on Saturday for a shot at third or fourth," Asay said. "I think Ashley has done well there, and we'll see what next week looks like for her."

In No. 1 doubles, Powell's Hailee Paul and Sophe Morrow dropped their opening-round match to Kelly Walsh, but bounced back with a win over Natrona County's Elana Galles and Taylor Bundy in straight sets 6-2, 6-3. The duo was knocked out by Thunder Basin's Alyson Borchers and Kim Kern 6-0, 6-2.

"It's been fun to see those two girls come together [Paul and Morrow]," Asay said, adding, "They've played competitively, and we'll look forward to how they can finish out the season."

After losing in the first round, Powell's No. 2 doubles team of Sami Cole and Sydnee Thompson knocked off Campbell County's Taylor Kannapel and Mari Bouzis in the consolation bracket 6-4, 6-1. Cole and Thompson then lost in the consolation semis to Kelly Walsh.

At No. 3 doubles, Whitney Hull and Kaili Wizniewski won their opener against Natrona County's Breanna Flesvig and Avery Olson 6-4, 6-5 to advance to the semifinals. The pair fell to Kelly Walsh in the semis, then beat Thunder Basin's Katie Bruse and Ali Morgan 6-0, 0-6, 7-5.

The pair finished fourth, losing in the consolation final to Sheridan 7-6, 6-0.

"Hull and Wizniewski really battled back to get the win in that Thunder Basin match after getting out to a fast start," Asay said. "They came up against a pretty strong Sheridan team in the consolation final, but battled well all the way through."

The teams will have light practices this week, then head to Gillette for the state tournament beginning Thursday.

"I reminded the kids on the way home from Casper, that hey, we're not done," Asay said. "We have some more tennis to play. Hopefully we'll be ready to show up and play some state tennis."

Brown agreed. "Having a group like this is super-special," he said of the boys' squad. "I love the atmosphere of this team — everyone is having a great time. We're going for it at state. Regionals is one thing, but state is a whole different animal. We have to be able to execute."

thought we did a better job containing him in the second half."

The Panthers had 95 yards in the first half, led by the 44-yard touchdown pass to Trotter and 41 yards on the ground by Abraham.

Douglas kicked off to start the second half, though the Panthers were unable to capitalize on decent field position, going three and out. The Bearcats went on a sustained drive that chewed up most of the third quarter, culminating in a 6-yard touchdown run by Yeaman. The two-point conversion failed, and Douglas led 13-7 with four minutes left in the third. That would be the final, as neither team was able to get anything going for the remainder of the game.

Abraham finished with 65 yards on 14 carries to lead the Panthers; Toran Graham had 8 yards on four carries and Reed Smith added 7 yards on four carries.

Lengfelder didn't have his best stuff against the Bearcats, completing just the 44-yard touchdown to Trotter amid nine attempts and three picks.

"I told Landon [Lengfelder] to not try to do too much — trust your teammates and yourself," Papich said. "He's been very cool and collected, so he'll shake it off and be fine."

Defensively for Powell, Carson Olsen again led the charge with 31 defensive points, finishing with 14 tackles; that included eight unassisted and three for a loss. Adrian Geller and

Panther running back Reed Smith maneuvers around a wall of Douglas defenders during Friday's game at Panther Stadium. The Bearcats won the contest 13-7. Tribune photo by Carla Wensky Toran Graham finished with 22 and 20 points, respectively.

"Our guys really rallied in the second half, and stayed positive throughout," Papich said. "I was happy with that. Obviously we didn't come out with the win, but I told the kids to hold their heads up because they had a lot of big defensive stands. They should feel proud of their effort."

Garrett Stutzman had a pair of interceptions, while Lengfelder also helped his own cause with a pick. The defense held the Bearcats to just 56 yards passing.

"I thought our secondary did a good job communicating on the field, making sure they were on the same page with the coverage they were in based on what we saw on offense," Papich said. "It was just a good job by our secondary group executing on that level."

Though the Panthers were on the losing end of this contest, Papich expressed his appreciation to the Douglas program and its supporters, who presented Powell with a $10,000 check for the Asher family prior to the game. PHS senior Ethan Asher, who was preparing to be the Panthers' starting quarterback, suffered severe injuries in a rollover last month.

"Coach Jay Rhoades and Douglas, they're just a class act," Papich said. "It's very humbling and just amazing that they presented us with that money for the Asher family and Ethan's recovery. It really is a big family here in Wyoming. We have a long tradition with Douglas, and it was just very meaningful."

This week is Homecoming Week at PHS, as the players prepare to welcome in Evanston Friday. Papich said the team will continue to work out the kinks on offense, especially with blocking.

"That's really where it starts, the fundamentals," he said. "We're also going to work on getting the ball out to our guys on the perimeter, take advantage of some one-on-one battles out there. We're going to spread the ball out more. We know our guys are going to be ready to play. I'm really encouraged right now."

PHS golf: Boys team has 'a nice foundation' for the future, coach says

Calkins won the event by going 2-under par with rounds of 71 and 67.

For the Panthers, only senior Crandell Sanders and Higgins had played at state before and "that inexperience along with the weather resulted in our scores being a little above where we had been the last few weeks," Hildebrand said.

Sanders shot an 87 to open the tournament, and was in position for a Top 10 finish with a good round on day two. It wasn't to be, however, as he wound up with a 101 on Saturday, finishing 34th.

Sanders "ran into a hole where he got every bad break possible," according to his coach, and "that really took the wind out of his sails."

"... While he hung in there to put his best foot forward, the weather turned and he had a tough back nine," Hildebrand said. "While it wasn't the finish Crandell was hoping for, I will say that his value to our team over the past four years is immeasurable."

A varsity player since his first tournament as a freshman, Sanders can claim numerous Top 10 finishes over the course of his career, as well as back-to-back All-Conference honors.

"Crandell will be a very tough player to replace in our line-up," Hildebrand said.

Freshman Steven Stambaugh carded a 107-109 in his first-ever state tournament appearance.

"[Those scores] are a great baseline for him to build off of over the next few years," Hildebrand said. "It is always nice to have freshmen that can step in and contribute for your team in golf, and that is exactly what Steven did for us this year. He's a very athletic young man, and I know his best golf is yet to come."

Sophomore Brandon Wentz shot 114-111.

"Brandon wasn't able to play a lot of golf this summer, but he truly made the most of our short six-week season to improve as much as he possibly could," he said. "Brandon will be exciting to see where he is by this time next fall."

Junior Yogi Sullivan rounded out the Panther contingent, carding a 114 and 118. Sullivan played some of his best golf of the season in a Thursday practice round, the coach said.

"The poor conditions Friday and Saturday really didn't allow him to match that in either tournament round, but at least he saw what he was capable of as a player," Hildebrand said. "It was fun to see him play like that and have the bounce in his step from that experience. Yogi will have some positive experiences to draw on..."

Hildebrand said he's "very pleased" to have four of the five boys back next year.

"Crandell [Sanders] has been a fantastic leader for this team all year," the coach said, "and while we will miss him next fall, he has helped build a nice foundation for our team."

'While it wasn't the finish Crandell was hoping for, I will say that his value to our team over the past four years is immeasurable.'

Women in the West

NWC LAUNCHES SERIES OF TALKS

In celebration of the 150th anniversary of women's suffrage, Northwest College's Women in the West course, taught by Amy McKinney, is launching a series of monthly talks focusing on Wyoming women. The first event takes place at 6:30 p.m. Thursday in the Yellowstone Building Conference Center.

In keeping with the celebration, the Wyoming Office of Tourism has declared 2019 the "Year of Wyoming Women."

Earlier this year, McKinney received a grant from the American Heritage Center in Laramie to use their archival collections in her Women in the West course. She's including a special focus on Wyoming women and suffrage this semester. As part of the grant, the class will be hosting a series of public presentations throughout the fall semester featuring Wyoming women.

AMY MCKINNEY

At Thursday's event, McKinney will present on the 50th anniversary of suffrage in Wyoming in 1919, which coincided with the final push for the passage of the Susan B. Anthony Amendment (what became the 19th Amendment to the U.S. Constitution).

The presentation is based on a chapter she contributed to the forthcoming book, "Equality at the Ballot Box: Votes for Women on the Northern Great Plains States," which will be released in October.

Future presentations in October and November include Wyoming women in agriculture and in the military. The culminating event will take place Tuesday, Dec. 10, at 7 p.m. in the Yellowstone Building Conference Center — the exact date suffrage was signed into law in Wyoming. The Dec. 10 presentations will feature students in the Women in the West class, who will share various archival collections from the American Heritage Center. Audience members will vote on their favorite presentation, with that student receiving $150.

Area residents are encouraged to attend and help celebrate Wyoming's history of suffrage. All events are free and open to the public. Light refreshments will be provided.

For more information, contact Amy McKinney at amy.mckinney@nwc.edu or call 307-754-6008.

Odd Fellows seeking new local members

BY CJ BAKER
Tribune Editor

Although they've moved to smaller quarters, the Powell branch of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows (IOOF) is looking to grow its membership.

Between the Odd Fellows and an associated group, the Rebekahs, membership in the fraternal order and service organization in Powell is down to roughly eight to 10 members, said Larry Yonts, a leader of the local group.

"We're still going, but we're still short of members," Yonts said.

For decades, the Powell IOOF owned a lodge on North Clark Street, next to the Powell Police Department. They ran weekly bingo nights — distributing some of the proceeds to local organizations like the Boy and Girl Scouts — and held an annual steak fry to raise funds. However, for various reasons, bingo attendance dropped and the event became unprofitable, Yonts said, while a steak fry is no longer feasible for the Odd Fellows.

"We just don't have the number of members to handle it and do it," he said.

The Powell IOOF downsized this year. The group sold its building on Clark Street in April — it's being remodeled into an Anytime Fitness location — and they're moving to the former Dan's Boot & Saddle Repair store on South Douglas Street. Pending renovations will eventually create a new meeting space, along with a kitchenette and other features, Yonts said.

Larry Yonts, a member of the Powell branch of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows (in the foreground), was chosen as grand master of the order's Grand Lodge of the State of Wyoming during an event over the summer. Yonts says the Powell Odd Fellows are currently looking for new members. Courtesy photo

He's hoping that more people will consider joining the IOOF, suggesting retirees might want to become a part of the service organization.

"We do need members," Yonts said.

He joined the organization in 1957 — more than 60 years ago — while a student at Northwest College. At the IOOF's Grand Lodge of the State of Wyoming event this summer, Yonts was chosen as grand master for 2019-2020. He said his duties will include officiating the grand lodge meeting in 2020 and visiting various lodges around the state throughout the year.

In Powell, the Odd Fellows and Rebekahs generally meet the third Friday of each month.

The IOOF is a "secret society" with a mission to "improve and elevate the character of mankind." The organization provides a framework for personal and social development.

"For members, the Degrees in Odd Fellowship emphasize a leaving of the old life and the start of a better one and of helping those in need," says the IOOF website. The group's emblem features three links with the letters, F, L & T, representing the "friendship, love and truth" that binds the members of the fraternity together.

Anyone interested in joining the organization can contact Yonts at 307-754-4357.
